

PROHIBITION ILLEGAL, NEW YORKERS FIND

Eminent Lawyers Raise Question Over 10th Amendment

NEW YORK, March 12, (AP)—A new question of the constitutionality of the eighteenth amendment, not heretofore passed on by the United States supreme court, was raised today by a committee of the New York Lawyers' association, which recommended its presentation to the court.

Ratification of the eighteenth amendment by state legislatures and not by the people, the committee report said, violated the tenth amendment to the constitution, and was therefore illegal.

The report is to be voted upon at the next general meeting of the institution in April or May.

Authority Quoted

After quoting the tenth amendment, which reads: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution or prohibited by it to the states are reserved to the states respectively or to the people." The report says:

"The state legislatures, under control by either states or people, have not been made the agents of the people to vote away the people's rights or to give any additional power over them.

"The eighteenth amendment conflicts with these constitutional rights of the American people, and can confer no powers on the national government over the people or their individual rights until ratified by the people themselves, assembled in constitutional conventions in their several states.

Enforcement Illegal

"Consequently, the attempts of congress and the courts to enforce the eighteenth amendment without its prior adoption by the people of the United States attack the very foundation of all our constitutional rights and liberties as American citizens."

The committee consists of Daniel F. Cohalan, former supreme court justice, chairman; Professor Leslie J. Thompkins, head of the law school of New York university; Martin Conboy, former president of the bar association of the city of New York; Seldon Bacon, Charles Strauss, Julius Henry Cohen and Robert McCurdy Marsh, former supreme court justice. Judge Marsh cast the only dissenting vote against the report.

Albert Bergman Is Injured by Auto

Albert Bergman, messenger boy in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph company, was seriously injured about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the bicycle upon which he was riding was struck by a car. Location of the accident could not be learned last night.

Bergman was taken to the Hillside hospital, where it was revealed that he had suffered a concussion of the brain but no fracture. He was reported last night as resting comfortably. He will be confined to the hospital for several days.

It was reported that Sam Schiffrer, messenger boy for the Postal Telegraph service, was bruised and scratched when he was struck by an auto in the vicinity of Eighth and Klamath avenue yesterday morning. The motorcycle was badly smashed.

The lowest scores ever returned for a 72 hole tournament over real courses, I believe, were those returned by George Duncan and C. H. Mayo in a contest played at Axenfelds and Luerne, in August, 1913. Thirty-six holes were played at each course. Duncan's total was 56, 71, 74—Total 301. Mayo had 61, 65, 72, 73—Total 271.

It is hardly necessary to point out that Duncan's total of 118 for the two rounds at Axenfelds and his 56 for the second eighteen holes are probably world records—records for 36 and 18 holes. Duncan's card for that record second round read:

Out—4 4 4 3 3 3 3 2—28.
In—3 3 4 3 3 3 3 3—28.

Total 56

If I'm wrong about this being a world's record for a low round in tournament competition, write me, care of this paper.

Corbetts Return to Portland Wednesday

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Corbett left last night for their home in Portland after a two-day visit in Klamath county, during which time Mr. Corbett renewed friendships with friends here, surveyed conditions, and made several addresses.

Mr. Corbett, republican gubernatorial candidate, spoke yesterday at the chamber of commerce forum luncheon. Yesterday afternoon he spoke briefly by invitation to the Southern Oregon Law Enforcement Officer's association, which was in session.

Tuesday he addressed the Lions club and a meeting of the grange members of the county at Henley on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Corbett yesterday attended the chamber of commerce forum luncheon and in the afternoon spoke at the Mills Parents-Teachers association meeting.

Yesterday afternoon both Mr. and Mrs. Corbett were taken for a tour of the city and Mr. Corbett visited several of the large industrial plants.

The longest river in the world is the Amazon, in South America, which is 4000 miles long.

Why People Abhor Fat

Not only because it blights beauty and vigor, but because informed people regard it as needless. They know that a chief cause is a gland weakness, easily corrected.

Modern physicians, the world over, now aim at that weakness. The remedy is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, now used for 22 years. The countless fat people who have grown slender now everywhere show what this method does. Perhaps your close friends can tell you.

If you are over-fat, you owe to yourself a test of Marmola. The reasons and formula are in every box. Every drug-gist supplies it—$1 a box. Starving is not necessary. Go start today.

- Guest cards may be obtained for the asking at the chamber of commerce, the high school, and Underwood's Pharmacy.

State Excise Tax Increases Funds Around $500,000

SALEM, March 12, (AP)—The single tax commission believes that over $150,000 will be realized under the new state excise tax from bank-owned securities that are not taxable under the federal income tax act. These securities are subject to the excise tax, according to an opinion received by the commission from Attorney General Van Winkle.

Included in these securities are federal and state bonds. It was estimated that the attorney general's ruling would increase by 30 per cent the revenues under the excise tax act. It is believed the total revenue under the act will be around $500,000.

Corporations have until April 1 to pay the tax without penalty and interest.

AT THE PELICAN

"Sunny Side Up," the Fox Movietone original musical comedy which is the current feature at the Pelican, not only has marked the singing debut of Janet Gayner and Charles Farrell, but has also given El Brendel his first chance at the musical comedy screen.

Brendel is known at present for his Swedish characterizations. He included the Scandinavian after we entered the war and the great demand for Weber and Fields type of guttural comics fell under a bear market. Both the German and the Swedish dialects have been acquired; Brendel was born in Philadelphia.

The public schools of the Quaker City were a little slow for El Brendel. After a fair trial at them he ran away, acting in the smaller motion picture theatres of the city. There is no record of the routine he used at that inspiring time of his career. Old inhabitants remember it as something fearful and wonderful. Brendel himself confesses to an act that included "songs, stale jokes and sleight of hand tricks."

The tricks were a little too slight and Brendel found his great public wanting. He then found work with a traveling medicine show, the forerunner of the touring companies. After a good many summers trying to hold the peasants on the benches until the Professor could get up and sell them a bottle of Swamp Bitters, Brendel broke into vaudeville.

Some time along about here Brendel married Flo Bert. They formed a team and toured vaudeville so successfully that they were booked for 12 years. The tour was broken for a legitimate appearance in several Shubert musical shows, "Cinderella on Broadway," "Spice of 1922" and the Century Roof show.

When the German dialect became taboo Brendel picked on the Swedish as being the best neutral. It wasn't so easy. But he continued until even a native of Minnesota would greet him with "Skoll!" He went into pictures, playing several character parts. He was signed with William Fox to play a part of "Olson" in the "Cock-eyed World." His work in that stirring story of the Marines led to his latest part in "Sunny Side Up."

In his private life Brendel is the antithesis of all that is generally connected with Hollywood in the mind of the uninformed. He spends most of his spare time at home with a lot of pets, planting flowers, or motoring. He finds as much fun in this now as he did in his first ride in a gas buggy. His hobby is baseball and prize fights.

AT THE PINE TREE

Taking a melodramatic premise and turning it into humor is no new trick for Harold Lloyd. Yet never before has he done it with the finesse he exhibits in his latest picture, "Welcome Danger," at the Pine Tree theatre now, his first picture in a year and a half.

"Welcome Danger" relates a story that with but a few twists could have been developed into a thriller - the first water. Lloyd retains the three elements, the mystery and the romance of the drama, but adds laugh after laugh to the story by little twists of his own.

"Welcome Danger" relates the experiences of a boy whose avocation is botany, and who suddenly finds himself a detective in underground Chinatown trying to outwit wily Chinamen who have baffled the police of San Francisco. Lloyd portrays the son of a far Golden Gate police officer, who passes on, assuming he has left the world a legacy in the form of a great law - forcing son. Harold prefers toying with flowers to swinging blackjacks and guns, but when his father's old friends call on him for assistance, he reluctantly assents, with results that are ghly humorous for the audience.

AT THE LIBERTY

Rex, King of Wild Horses, again demonstrates his ability to outdo many human screen players in public approval by unearthing a really marvelous performance in Universal's thrilling production, "The Harvest of Hate," which opened at the Liberty theatre today.

There is fascination in watching this almost human horse play his part. As he went about delivering messages, fighting the villain in a burning cabin, racing over a hilltop, or placidly standing by his mate beneath a tree.

the audience breathlessly followed his every move.

Jack Perrin, known through his numerous exploits in many other Western pictures, enacted his part of the hero to perfection. Helen Foster, pretty and charming, is an ideal heroine. Her love scenes with Perrin are beautiful in their sentiment.

Senator Jay Upton Visiting In City

Senator Jay H. Upton of Bend is in Klamath Falls for a few days to visit friends.

Senator Upton, who represents Klamath, Lake and Deschutes counties in the upper house of the state legislature, is not up for reelection this year. He is in Klamath to visit friends and to survey conditions. He registered at the Hotel Hall late yesterday evening when he arrived.

The Canadian government's aviators mapped 52,000 square miles of territory during the 1929 season.
