

NORBLAD ENDS KLAMATH VISIT, RETURNS HOME

Speaks at Four Meetings
During Visit, Will Return In May

Governor A. W. Norblad left last night for Salem after spending Sunday and Monday in Klamath Falls and vicinity. He spoke Sunday at a banquet at Moose hall. Yesterday he spoke at Henley hall, inspected the local national guard unit, and spoke briefly at the Pelican theatre.

He will return May 7 and address the chamber of commerce and a grange meeting.

At the theater last night the high school band, directed by E. R. Derry, played several numbers which were well received by the audience. Harry Poole, boyhood friend of the governor, in Grand Rapids, Mich., introduced the governor.

Won Sousa Medal

The governor told of his boyhood days when he played in the Grand Rapids boys band. He stated that they attended the world's fair in Chicago and took second place. He complimented the high school band here. The governor stated that he had received a medal offered by John Phillip Sousa for the boy showing the greatest improvement in hand work in a year and that the medal was presented by ex-President Benjamin Harrison at a hall in Indianapolis, Ind.

Governor Norblad stated that yesterday he had been on a tour of Klamath Falls. He referred to the fact that he is secretary of the Shaw-Borham Lumber company and mentioned the rapid growth of the city in the past ten years.

Says State Overbalanced

He stated that at the present time the state is overbalanced and that he hoped that Klamath Falls would be the second city in size in Oregon, or equal Portland.

"I saw your shameful army and I hope the time is not far distant when you will have a new army and civic auditorium," he said.

At the meeting at Henley Grange hall last night he spoke of Oregon's road system and blamed the roads in Oregon for the low percentage per acre of population in the state. He stated that he was a progressive Oregonian and for the advancement of the state.

He also inspected Battery D last night and then spoke for a few minutes complimenting the local unit and deprecating the fact that the guard did not have a better armory in which to drill.

Council Will Aid With Local Census

The taking of the census which starts today throughout the country was discussed at the city council meeting last night and local phases of the work was mentioned by Mayor T. B. Watters.

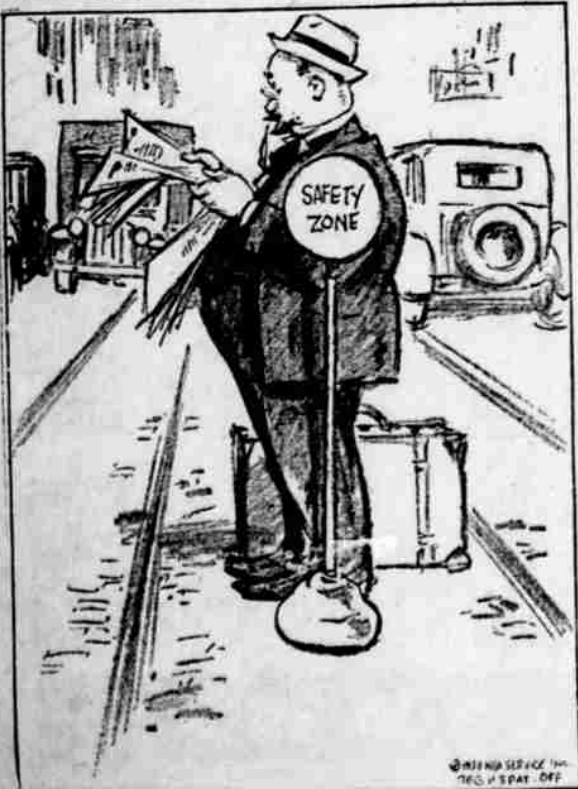

Plans were made for the co-operation of the council in obtaining an accurate count of Klamath Falls' population. Each councilman has been asked to act as chairman in his own ward and to appoint some person in each block or two who will visit each house in that district a short time after the census taker has been through the area and find out if he called there and obtained information.

Any house that was missed by the census taker because of residents being absent will be called to the attention of the councilman in that ward who will ask the census taker to call on the family. In this way it is believed a difference of at least 1000 will be made in the city's population.

"The man you love to hate!" This describes the feeling many motion picture fans will have when they see David Torrence as the tyrannical wheat ranch owner in the Fox Movietone talking picture, "City Girl," directed by F. W. Murnau, with Charles Farrell and Mary Duncan co-starring, coming to the Pelican theatre today. Stern-visaged and vitriolic in his remarks, Torrence goes through the entire picture a character that inspires anything but kind thoughts. He rules his hired workers, and his family too, with an iron hand. Mary Duncan, a waitress in a big city restaurant, marries the wheat rancher's son when he goes to the city to sell his father's wheat. She goes back to the country with her new husband (Charles Farrell) and when his father tries dominating her as he always has everyone else, she fights back, thus creating the first discordant note in the picture.

The bitterness between Torrence and Miss Duncan grows and eventually Farrell awakens from the dominated boy he has been so far and decides to do some dominating himself.
