Willamette Valley Votally Interested In Governor's Race

Interest Shown in Race for Governor; Talk of Candidates

Editor's Note: Although there seems to be little interest in this section of the country in the governor's race or in politics, Willamette valley people have been discussing it freely. To show the interest taken by some in the Willamette valley, the News publishes the following editorial from the Newberg Graphic:

CORBETT FOR GOVERNOR

Henry L. Corbett seems to us to best fit the needs of the state of Oregon as its executive head and while we have been very slow in announcing our support of any of the six republicans seeking the gubernatorial office, yet this has been because we did not wish to make any mistake. We have studied the various candidates as fully as possible and after analyzing their qualifications, character, records, achievement and personal habits, we find Mr. Corbett more nearly our ideal of what a governor should be than are any of the others.

Mr. Corbett has a background of hardy pioneer stock and a heritage of successful progenitors. If there is anything in heredity, and we believe that there is, then Mr. Corbett has an advantage in this respect. Mr. Corbett has a record of his own, however, and does not rely upon ancestry, blood or inheritance in asking the people of Oregon to elect him as governor. He has served in the state senate and was president of that body during one term. In all of his legislative career he has been careful and conscientious; and votes have been cast on the right side in practically every important matter.

There is nothing of bombast or egotism about Mr. Corbett but in spite of his position and his successor, he impresses people as being one of themselves and as having their interests very much at heart.

It is refreshing to have a man of this type seek public office, for too often the professional politician is that other type which when elected fails to recognize his common friends, until election time comes along again.

Politics demand that not only shall a man be qualified and of the right sort to be nominated for office by his party, but he must have some chance of election. In Mr. Corbett we find this very desirable requisite also. He comes from Multnomah county, the center of the state's population and will if nominated receive the almost solid support of his large home community to which may safely be added practically all of the Willamette valley regardless of whom the opposition select.

At the present time three of the six republican candidates have some chance of receiving the nomination. These three are Governor Norblad of Astoria, George W. Joseph of Portland and Senator Corbett. We have already given our opinion regarding Mr. Joseph, whose candidacy we believe to be animated almost solely by a desire for revenge and vindictiveness. Governor Norblad is not the type of man whom we would ever choose for governor. He is too much on the hair trigger. This was shown when he announced himself as a candidate to succeed himself before the late Governor Patterson's body had hardly become cold. It has been shown time and again since in situations which have arisen and has resulted in his being in hot water over appointments and over the handling of state affairs almost all of the time.

We believe that a vote cast for Senator Corbett for governor will be one cast in the best interests of the republican party; in the best interests of the common people and the good of the state and in the best interests of a good government.
