Death occurred last night from a heart attack, which followed a general breakdown in health last month.

Howarth was reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in Northern California, and is said to have paid the largest income tax last year of anyone in this section of the state. Railroads Ready To Handle Heavy Tourist Traffic

Oregon today is preparing for the annual influx of summer tourists from every part of America, scheduled to start May 15 with the inauguration by the country's railroads of westbound summer excursion fares.

That this year's trek of the vacation-minded into the countess pleasure haunts of the state will be highly satisfactory is the prediction of railroad officials, with the result that every preparation has been made for the expeditions and comfortable handling of the nation's travelers.

Inquiries Increase

Already advance inquiries and purchasing of summer excursion tickets by residents of every section of the country has borne out the optimistic view of the railroad chiefs as regards the 1930 season travel. J. A. Ormandy, passenger traffic manager of Southern Pacific company with headquarters at Portland, today joined in expression of confidence in this regard.

While Oregon is preparing to play host to countless visitors from other sections, thousands of Oregonians are planning to avail themselves of the special east-bound summer excursion offers, effective May 22, Ormandy said.

Oregon Attracting Many

The state's far-flung vacation resorts, offering every variety of scenic beauty are reported ready for the 1930 season, with the country decked in perfect natural raiment after the spring season.

Limited trains and others have been improved with new and modernized equipment providing all possible luxuries of travel, according to Ormandy. In this connection, he said, the Pullman company has announced a 22 per cent reduction in the rate for a standard section occupied by one passenger.

Current Book Reviews

"Look Homeward, Angel"—by Thomas Wolfe. Published by Scribner's Sons, New York.

"Look Homeward, Angel" is not a book that can be classified as light fiction. The reader choosing it for entertainment is certain to be disappointed. It is a book to be read thoughtfully and sympathetically.

Eugene is the youngest child in a large family headed by a father who is governed by his imagination and his impulses both good and bad, and by a mother who is controlled by a miserly desire to save, accumulate money and to acquire property. Eugene's early life is influenced by the conflicting nature of his mother and father. His brothers and sisters with their strange medley of character inherited from their parents, also play a part in his life.

School, his reading, his contacts with other boys and his teachers are among the many things which mold the boy's life. Eugene's awakening to a consciousness of sex in the world about him and in himself, his acquiring an unwholesome knowledge of sex especially while working on a paper route in the neighborhood during the early morning hours, are minutely delineated. His four years at college where he still faces the problems of life and his love affair with an older girl, continue the story of Eugene's life.

The novel is, in fact, the unfolding of Eugene's life from infancy to young manhood along with the unfolding of his awareness of the world about him and the absorption of his surroundings into his own life. His life is this fusion of his inherited nature with his environment.

It is during many of the experiences which make the greatest impression on him that he receives fleeting notions of immortality and that he questions the reason for his existence.

"O waste of loss, in the hot mazes, lost among bright stars on this most weary, unright cinder, lost!"

This book has been compared with Gleanings of Westcott's "The Grandmothers," possibly because it gives a feeling of the continuity of life, because fundamentally our lives are much alike, a mingling of inheritance and environment with now and then glimpses of eternity.—E. R.

Torrential Rains Drench Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 13. (AP)—Hail storms and torrential rains, doing great damage to crops, have accompanied devastating winds into parts of the southwest.

Eight counties of northwestern Oklahoma were swept by hail storms last night. Leaves were stripped from trees, livestock was injured, and homes were damaged.

Reports from Woods, Alfalfa, Woodward, Grant, Roger Mills, Dewey, Major and Custer counties all told of ruined crops, hampered into the ground by hail stones. The storm was accompanied by a deluge of rain, which varied from one to three inches throughout the storm area.

High water also is causing alarm.

Mrs. Hoover Not Doing So Nicely

WASHINGTON, May 13. (AP)—Suffering from an injury more serious than was at first supposed, Mrs. Herbert Hoover is not expected to return to her normal White House activities for several weeks.

Captain Joel T. Boone, White House physician, however, said today the wrenched back she suffered in a fall had improved and she would be able to take brief automobile rides soon. He said she would probably not be able to accompany the president to Gettysburg, Pa., May 30.

Mrs. Hoover has been confined to the White House for more than a month. In the last two weeks she has been using a wheel chair.

Man Who Paid All Bankruptcy Debts Victim of Murder

RICHMOND, Va., May 13. (AP)—Harry Rohm, 43-year-old Richmond leather merchant, was found shot to death in his home here shortly before midnight last night. Police said it obviously was a case of murder.

Police today were working on a clue furnished by a neighbor, J. C. Cotrell, who said his father was called to the door of his home about 9:45 p. m. last night by a man inquiring as to where Rohm lived.

Rohm was conspicuous some years ago when, after being adjudged bankrupt, he recouped his fortune and gave a banquet for his creditors. Beneath all plates were checks covering amounts of indebtedness due the several individuals.

President Hoover To Visit Parks

PORTLAND, Ore., May 13. (AP)—L. C. Newlands, president of the chamber of commerce, received a telegram from Senator Charles McNary, Republican, Oregon, stating that President Hoover probably would visit Portland and Seattle during the summer.
