What About the Whiskers on the Boys of Battery D? General White May Have Something to Say About It. Few Gifts Appreciated so Much as Regulation American Flag.

Warm Weather Fakir Abroad in Land—Far Away Investments Good to Leave Alone Any Time. By BRUCE DENNIS

WHAT about the whiskers on the boys of Battery D?

MILITARY discipline demands smooth shaven faces. The Elk-Legion celebration order is that all Klamath Falls whiskers shall grow and be nursed until after the Fourth of July celebration.

Which order shall prevail? When Captain Abbey ordered his Battery aboard the troop train for the training camp every man had his whiskers. Some were rather thin and some were loud and black, but whiskers they were without doubt.

General George White may speak the final word as to whether the Klamath whiskers shall remain. Knowing the General we look for a heading of the military order and our boys to return from camp with beards akin to that of Sampson.

Few gifts are appreciated so much as a regulation American flag. That is why every member of Battery D felt so proud of the beautiful national emblem presented to the Battery by the local W. C. T. U. organization. It is a gem with its beautiful folds of white and red and with blue field studded with white stars. The gift is complete for together with the flag was a staff ornamented with gold leaf and a silver plate carrying the inscription of the donors.

THE warm weather fakir is abroad in the land and Oregon is now the center of some of their work. We have before us a fakir from the Better Business Bureau which lays bare a new scheme. It is the "Burial Certificate" racket. Under it the promoter takes the stand that all undertakers are heartless in their charges and to avoid such charges he sells the individual a certificate which guarantees a "funeral and burial at cost plus ten per cent."

One can hardly understand how the promoter can sell such trash, but it is being done. The Better Business Bureau very properly urges everyone to shun such promoters, and then it adds a few more schemes that should be taboored. They include, Musk-rat, Rabbit and Fox Farming Schemes; Picture Enlargement Solicitation; Real Estate Deals where Free Lots are Offered; Memberships in Promotion Auto Clubs; Citrus Fruit Development in Southern States; Telephone Solicitation where Premiums are Offered; Membership in Clubs that Offer Discount on Merchandise; and Stock Companies Promoting New Type Airplanes.

INVESTMENTS far away in untried and unseasoned companies are good to leave alone at any time. Surplus money can be put to use in Klamath Falls where values are rising to better advantages than almost any place else on the coast.

FIND SCULPTOR OF STONE LADY

PORTLAND, Ore., June 13. (A.P.)—A photograph of the "Lady of the Woods," solid rock sculpture in Crater Lake national park, printed in a Portland newspaper today brought answers from two men, which placed together and lifted the mystery which has surrounded the carving.

Art Kinne, Portland, said first the form of a woman was sculptured on the rock by a young government physician in 1917 while he was a member of a construction crew.

A. B. Willis, inspector in the United States engineer's office, Portland, supplied the young physician's name. He was Dr. Earl B. Bush, now in the federal public health service in Cincinnati, Ohio and that he carved the work of art in 1917.

Willis said he was a member of the same crew to which Dr. Bush was connected. Willis said that Dr. Bush refused to allow many in on his secret of carving the figure, but after he had completed it showed it to all in the crew.

ELECTRICITY IS BOYLE'S TOPIC

Former Copco Manager Addresses Rotary Club Today.

An enthusiastic reception was given John C. Boyle, former president of Klamath's Rotary club, at the Friday luncheon in Herberger's Pelican grill, for Mr. Boyle came over from Medford to address Rotarians on the subject of "Electricity and Its Delivery to the Consumer."

He viewed the marked development in electrical plants the past few years, stating that a short time ago 5,000 to 10,000 kilowatt plants were considered large whereas today both steam and hydro plants go to 50,000 kilowatts per unit and larger ones are being developed.

Of the 55 million horse power now developed in electricity in the United States 24 per cent of the total amount is generated from water power and the remainder from fuels of different kinds," said Mr. Boyle.

Product Must be Sold. Generating the electrical product is of little avail unless it can be sold, was the opinion of the speaker, and the greatest (Continued on Page Ten)

These aren't street sweepers, but they are sweeping the streets of Venice—with their oars. SIMPSON TALKS ON NAVAL PACT

Assails Opponents of Treaty of America and Abroad.

WASHINGTON, June 13. (A.P.)—Replying to the senate foreign relations committee assertion of its right to the London naval papers, Secretary Stimson wrote today to the committee it should base its treaty action on the language of the treaty itself.

Assailing the opponents of the treaty here, in Great Britain and in Japan for a "narrow viewpoint," Secretary Stimson last night delivered a radio address in which he said the London conference was "one of the great victories for peace."

The treaty, he said, "is the culmination of a ten-year movement toward peace between the various naval powers of the world and also a step in the victory." (Continued on Page Ten)

Federal Ruling Handicaps Road Work in Oregon

SALEM, June 13. (A.P.)—Refusal of the federal steamboat inspection service to allow passengers on road oil to be carried on the same ferry is a handicap to road construction in Oregon and Washington, and appeals for relief have been sent to Senators McNary and Senator Jones. A message was sent McNary today by J. M. Devers, attorney for the state highway commission.

The message makes particular reference to the ferry between Astoria and Ilwaco. Devers claims the oil is not a fire hazard, as contended by the steamboat inspectors.

The federal bureau of public roads is also interested in the ruling.

New Bank Building Work Being Rushed

The H. H. Winner company of San Francisco, architects and engineers, specializing in bank and hotel construction, is pushing work rapidly on the new First National bank building at Sixth and Main streets.

While the structure is still in the basement stage, it is like a beehive in activity. Every man has his portion of the work to do, and is doing it, which makes the whole construction scheme work in a most perfectly synchronized manner.

No completion date has been set so far as given out as yet, but if Superintendent - In-Charge Mark Finleyson keeps the swing already started, and there is no doubt that he will, the class A building for the First National bank of this city will be a full reality before the summer days give way to winter.

Klamath Farmers Studying Nevada Irrigation Plans

Four prominent Klamath farmers have been sent by the Klamath Irrigation District to investigate the irrigation district at Newlands, Nevada, which has taken over its own operation and maintenance from the United States government.

The matter of taking over the operation and maintenance of the Klamath Irrigation district was to have come up at a special election set for May 1st, at which time the Klamath water-users were to vote on the question.

Because it was the consensus of opinion that the water-users were not sufficiently familiar with the contract framed by the government upon which they were to vote, the election was indefinitely postponed.

Election Date Set. The date has again been set, this time for June 23, and it is the desire of the delegates from the Klamath district to investigate thoroughly the Newlands project, and then submit a report of their findings to Klamath water users, to aid them in their decision on June 23.

Copies of the United States contract on the taking over of the O. & M. have been printed by the district, and sent out to all members.

Burrell Short and Harry Wilson are two of the Klamath men chosen to go on the Newlands inspection, but the names of the others in the group could not be learned today.

HARVEST ARMY BEGINS WORK

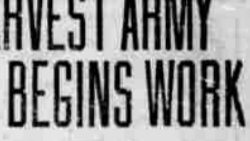

KANSAS CITY, June 13. (A.P.)—The vanguard of the 1930 harvest army today was sweeping into the wheat fields of four states reaping the first quotas of the 21,723,000 bushels estimated June 1 by the department of agriculture as the section's contribution to the world's food supply.

The United States employment service here has estimated 190,000 workers will be needed to finish reaping of the estimated crop of 137,300,000 bushels in Kansas, where the harvest is expected to become general June 20. Of this number all except 27,500 will be recruited within the state, George Tucker, farm labor director, has estimated.

Reaping of Texas' estimated yield of 24,000,000 bushels began with ample help at hand, the employment service reported, as did harvest of Oklahoma's and Missouri's crops estimated respectively at 31,233,000 and 19,500,000 bushels.
