Mutual Accomplishment

IT IS especially fitting that the Banks of the country should express gratification on this day which each year is set aside as a tribute to the accomplishments of Labor. It is to these accomplishments that the Banks must pay respect, for they have made possible the high place Banks occupy in the structure of the nation. Through an ever ready willingness to participate in every new and worthwhile project the Banks have constantly supplied Labor with new fields in which to build, to create and to grow. We glory in our association with such a potent ally in the promotion of Progress. To them we dedicate this day.
