

ELECTION TO BE LARGEST IN CITY'S RECORD

One thousand and three voters will be eligible to vote this November who were not registered to vote at the primary election.

In fact there are 532 registered to vote this fall who could not have cast their ballots at the primary election for they belong to the independent and other parties who had no tickets at the primary election upon which they could vote, however, they may vote at the election this fall.

There is a tremendous interest in the governor's race, Charles DeLap, deputy county clerk, stated recently "that combined with the mayor's race will bring out the largest vote ever recorded in Klamath county."

There is a total of 13,046 registered in the county who may cast their ballots at the election this fall. Last spring there were 11,443 registered in the county. In the city there are 7,080 registered this fall where there were only 6,105 registered in the spring; in the county outside of Klamath Falls there are 5,965 registered who can vote in November against 5,438 registered for the primaries.

Of the number registered in the county there are 3,556 signed up as applicants while only 2,842 are admitted democrats.

STANDARD OIL PLANT READY

(Special to The Herald) Mrs. John Giacomini, Correspondent

MERRILL, Ore., Oct. 13.—The Standard Oil plant at Malone, two miles east of Merrill, on the Southern Pacific track, has been completed and is now operating at full capacity. Tom Brown, construction engineer who supervised the building, has returned to Medford headquarters. This replaces the plant formerly located at Malin and has taken about a month's work to construct. Ted De Merritt is in charge of the plant.

Glean Strawn and brother, Claude Strawn, accompanied by J. Lowry, have returned to Sacramento. The trio have been here the last month hauling grain for Tom Calames of Tule Lake.

Messrs. R. H. Anderson, E. Hosley and Dennis O'Connor made a business trip to Lakview Monday purchasing lambs.

ALL VICTIMS OF AIRSHIP CRASH IN SAME GRAVE

CARDINGTON, England, Oct. 13. (AP)—The last rays of a swiftly sinking sun lighted the little churchyard here tonight as Britain lowered her 48 dead from the dirigible R-101 disaster into a common grave.

The ceremony was one of moving solemnity which will live forever in the memories of those present.

As the coffins were consigned to their last resting place a firing party loosed three volleys while trumpeters sounded "last post" and "Reveille".

A great crowd of diplomats and officials stood with bare heads. Among them was Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, a sad and lonely figure who stared straight before him. His dearest friend, Lord Thomson, secretary of air, was among the dead.

High above soared a squadron of airplanes, manned by comrades of the men in the grave, below, writing across the darkening sky their "Ave frater atque vale" (Hail brother and farewell).

Slowly the vast crowds dissolved and Great Britain had paid her fitting tribute of love and homage to her lost sons.

In sight of the tear-dimmed eyes of the concourse of mourners in and about the church yard, they reared itself into the blue October sky, a towering steel mooring mast at which, only a brief week ago, the silver air Leviathan had tugged impatiently, awaiting a momentous voyage of adventure to India with a large crew and distinguished passengers aboard.

Cardington was home to many of the dirigible's crew and their long sleep will be within a stone's throw of the little vine-clad cottages where a few days ago they bade their wives and children what proved to be a final farewell.

The village was crowded with thousands of persons to pay their last tribute while other thousands stood along the road leading to the adjoining city of Bedford, there to watch the funeral train bearing the bodies from London.

Bedford itself was muffled, for a day of mourning had been proclaimed. It was a town of quiet thoroughfares, of shuttered shops, of houses with drawn blinds.

Fleeting tributes poured into the village and the church yard was covered with blooms which overflowed into the field adjoining.

The grave itself was a beautiful, although sad, sight. During the night workmen had transformed the sloping, sandy sides of the excavation into a carpet of fresh green grass, dotted here and there with white and bronze chrysanthemums.

Terrific Loss Sustained In Chinese Revolt

NANKING, China, Oct. 13. (AP)—President Chiang Kai Shek, speaking at the National government office today, said that in the recent revolt the total of the rebel armies was 600,000 and that they suffered 150,000 casualties. He said the Nationalist armies lost 35,000 killed and 60,000 wounded.

Boat Raided by Chinese Pirates

HONGKONG, Oct. 13. (AP)—Chinese pirates posing as passengers today held up the steamer Sunambel on the West River, killed two of the shipguards, seized four guards and thirty passengers, and escaped with $9,000 loot.

Bandits ashore cooperated by firing on the ship while the hold-up was taking place.

Teachers Will Be Guests of Women's Club

At 8 o'clock this evening the teachers of Klamath Falls public schools and nearby district schools will be guests at a party sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's club of the city. The bridge party will be given in the auditorium of the city library.

All teachers are invited to attend and members urged to be present. A novel program, including bridge games, stunts, and acquainted methods and other entertainment has been planned. Mrs. Lee Parker, president of the women's club, will give an informal address of welcome.

Those in charge of the party this evening include the following committee heads and their assistants: Ethel Williams, Olive Cornett, Catherine Gaylord, refreshments; Irma Dixon, Isabelle Braxner, Greta Humphrey, Deana Backes and Beulah Drake, program; Beatrice Phinney, Etta Farr and Florence Dreher.

No Inquest Will Be Held As To Death of Hunter

ROSEBURG, Oct. 13. (AP)—There will be no inquest into the fatal shooting of Francis L. Ackley of Salem, who was shot to death near Yoncalla Saturday by accidental discharge of a rifle in the hands of his 11-year-old son, Clifford. Ackley's body reached Salem last night for burial. He is survived by his widow, and three sons, Edward, Richard and Clifford.

Ackley and Clifford and Edward were in the Yoncalla district on a week-end hunting trip. As father and son were climbing a hill, the old rifle Clifford was carrying discharged. The bullet struck Ackley in the hip and ranged upward. He died a short time later.

Murderer Tells of Slaying Boy

DUBUQUE, Ia., Oct. 13. (AP)—The strange slaying of 13-year-old Earl Miller whose mutilated body was found on the Mississippi river flats near here Oct. 5, was solved today by the confession of Joseph Ollinger, 22.

The confession followed 15 hours of questioning. Ollinger said he would plead guilty when arraigned in district court today. No motive for the crime was given.

Two men identified Ollinger as the man who accompanied the Miller boy from a field where a football game had been played the night of Oct. 4. The youth was strangled to death.

More than 200 persons were arrested and questioned in the hunt for the slayer.

ARIZONA'S REQUEST ON DAM DENIED

FALL MODES

Paris Comes to Klamath Falls in These These

Fall Hats

Featuring Exclusively the Glenview and Coralie

$5. $10. $15.

If you've longed for a Paris hat—then you'll love these, with their unmistakable French airs—their sophisticated lines and chic, feminine trims. But their price is thoroughly and thriftyly American. . . . But remember! Coralie and Glenview felts are exclusive hats. Their secret is, of course, that they're reproductions and adaptations of Paris successes. . . . the tip-tilt brims and shallow crowns that show all your forehead and curls. . . . the smart draped turbans, and berets, and audacious "beanie" caps that Agnes, Mado, Alphonsine and the others have made famous.
