

KLAMATH FACES GRANTS PASS

Determined to turn the tables on Grants Pass for their 13 to 2 defeat and to win their first game of the conference, Coach Al Sinclair's Pelicans left early this morning for the other side of the mountain.

The Klamath gridders have been putting hard licks in on the practice field the last week and are confident they will show much better form than they displayed in the Medford game here last Saturday. Sinclair has been drilling his men on pass defense, and hopes to stop big Hal-back Austland's running attack, for this boy was poison to Klamath when he performed here before.

If the Klamath forward wall can charge last enough to stop the Grants Pass receivers from reaching their zones, the Pelicans are in a fair way to succeed. The forward wall, as well as the secondary defense, however, will have to stop big Hal-back Austland's running attack, for this boy was poison to Klamath when he performed here before.

As Grants Pass holds a win over Medford and Medford dumped the Pelicans last Saturday, Sinclair has his job cut out for himself. If Klamath can pound the right side of the enemy line as they did in the second half in the first game, some touch-downs may be made. Eddi, Boyd and Bob Elliott have been showing some powerful plugging ability, and may succeed in doing considerable damage before the game is over.

All Camps Strong In Assurance

didate, will be carried into office by a vote as large as that of all his opponents, is the opinion expressed by Rufus C. Holman, chairman of the Meier campaign committee, goes further in predicting Meier will carry Multnomah county by a minimum of 20,000 votes over his nearest opponent.

He said a study of campaign developments outside the Multnomah county territory indicates an independent candidate will sweep 18 counties by "handsome pluralities," that nine more will give him a comfortable lead, and only seven might be placed in the doubtful column.

More Bailey Talk

From the democratic camp comes the statement that "there is much more Bailey talk on the streets of Portland than a month ago." "In fact," the statement of Chairman Donough continues, "the trend of republican votes in Multnomah county and throughout the state is toward Bailey; he is the beneficiary of the switch from both the independent and republican candidates. The silent vote is already solid for Senator Bailey because of his pronounced and consistent stand on prohibition."

Predictions of Donough state "Bailey will carry Lane county by 20,000, and will carry Linn, Marion, Benton, Polk and Yamhill in east counties he will run strong, with a victory in Clatsop assured. East of the mountains are definitely Bailey. He will break even in Washington, Clackamas, Coos, Columbia, Jackson and Deschutes, with much stronger vote in Klamath and Multnomah than opponents are willing to admit."

Omitting Jefferson county, all of the other 26 counties in the state are mentioned in the strong, sure and doubtful lists for Meier by Chairman Holman. His prediction states "that the counties where I am confident Meier will lead the field beyond question are Clackamas, Clatsop, Columbia, Coos, Deschutes, Douglas, Gilliam, Hood River, Jackson, Josephine, Lincoln, Linn, Marion, Sherman, Tillamook, Union, Washington and Yamhill. Those counties where his lead will be sufficient should include Baker, Grant, Klamath, Morrow, Polk, Umatilla, Wallowa, Wasco and Wheeler. In the doubtful column I would place Benton, Crook, Curry, Harney, Lake, Lane and Malheur. These listings do not include Multnomah county, where the probabilities are Meier's lead will be close to 20,000 votes."

"The people are tired of machine politics and the domination of power interests in state affairs," Mr. Holman continued. "The expression of their resentment is found in the army of supporters who flocked to the Meier banner when he took up the fight of the people when his life-long friend, the late Senator George W. Joseph, republican nominee in the primaries, died on the platform which had won the acclamation of the republican electorate was ignored by the state central committee of that party."

Hoover and Secretary Mellon issued statements, when the speculation was in full swing, to warn people that savings accounts, fixed investment securities and life insurance policies were "still the safest and best form of investment."

The democratic champion asserted that the money of the federal reserve system was poured into New York and that no steps were taken by the federal reserve board to restrict it during the heavy speculation period. Mr. Newton continued by saying the federal reserve board raised the rate of interest "in a desperate but vain attempt to stem the tide of speculation."

events of modern times. But all the money in Abyssinia could not overnight provide facilities for the gathering here, and many are sleeping in the fields, suffering keenly from the sharply cold atmosphere. Addis Ababa, although near the equator, has a climate much like that of New York in late autumn, because of its altitude and the mountainous character of the country.

All Night at Prayer

Late this afternoon the frail emperor and his empress will enter the inner sanctuary of St. George's church and spend the entire night in prayer, and at dawn tomorrow, in the first rite of their coronation day they will receive communion from the hands of Archbishop Cyrillus, coptic prelate, who will anoint them with oil from Gethsemane, outside Jerusalem. No one except the emperor's family, the highest church prelates, state dignitaries and ruling princes will be allowed to witness this ceremony.

Then, preceded by 200 elaborately robed coptic ecclesiastics carrying crosses, a crucifix, shepherd's staffs and incense lamps, the two sovereigns will proceed ceremonially to the newly built coronation hall adjoining the church, where, after oblations before the high altar, they will take their places on two golden thrones.

Supreme Event

Here the supreme event of the day and the week of celebration which is to follow occurs. Promptly at 9 a. m. the venerable coptic archbishop, after pronouncing a benediction and reciting a special coronation ritual in the emperor's ancient tongue, will place a dazzling crown of gold and diamonds, emeralds, sapphires and rubies on the emperor's brow.

It will be the queen's next. The archbishop will proceed to her throne, about ten feet distant from that of the emperor, and taking her by the hand, will lead her to the side of her lord and master, where his holiness will place upon her head a glistening high domed crown, which is only less costly and elaborate than that of the emperor.

On either side of the monarch's throne will sit foreign dukes, princes and ambassadors, resident ministers, Ethiopian princes, members of the cabinet, the governor of British, Italian and French Somaliland, the British governors of Sudan and Adan. In front of the two sovereigns will sit members and relatives of the royal family, the highest ruling Ethiopian princes and the emperor's personal guests.

ADULTS CUT CAPERS

"Disorderly conduct" was the charge filed against two grown-up Halloween prank players, who were arrested Friday night for soaping windows of automobiles parked along the streets of the city. One of the practical jokers was 24 years of age, and his companion 27, but they were enjoying the soaping business much more than the children, who spent a quiet evening. The puerile sport cost the two adult children several dollars apiece in fines and a night spent in the city jail.

W. V. Meade, Mr. Hout's successor, has been with the Big Basin for 11 years. He became affiliated with the company immediately after the World War. At the time war was declared, Mr. Meade was a student at Oregon State college, which he left to join the navy. He is capable, and C. K. Fleming, assistant to the vice-president and general manager of the Long-Bell company at Longview, Washington, who is in the city for a few days, stated this morning, "We have every confidence in Mr. Meade's ability to handle the business of the Big Basin in an efficient and satisfactory manner. It is particularly pleasing to the company to appoint him as Mr. Hout's successor." Mr. Fleming expects to spend several days in this city looking over the territory, and inspecting the various building projects of the Big Basin.

Interest along Main street has been centered lately on the display of trophies of Battery D, local organization of the Oregon National Guard.

Through the courtesy of Ben Woods, manager for the Magill Drug company here, this display was made possible.

In the center of the window, as you enter the Magill Drug store, is the large National Defense Trophy, given by the War Department at Washington, D. C., giving Battery D first honors. Only two other organizations in the state of Oregon have possessed this coveted trophy. Just below this large trophy is the Oregonian Attendance Trophy, presented to the National Guard Unit in Oregon having the highest percentage in drill attendance. This has been in the possession of Battery D in 1928 and 1929 and will be awarded again for 1930, at which time it will become a permanent possession. Below the display is the large framed certificate giving Battery D the highest figure of merit in target practice with the rifle.

The fact that these trophies represent just a few of the many achievements of Battery D since its organization in 1927 is one reason why this organization is working so hard to get an Armory in Klamath Falls. Their efforts are not taken as selfish as Battery D feels that by helping Klamath county, and Klamath Falls to get the civic auditorium, they are helping themselves.

Child Wanders From Its Home

Sixth street. When the attendant was making ready to close for the night, he found a little boy curled up in the grease pit sound asleep. The poor little had crawled in there to keep warm, too frightened to ask questions, and had cried himself to sleep. We soon located his home, by questioning neighbors, and found that he had wandered only about two blocks before losing himself.

One day last week, a baby girl, about three years old, was found by Officer Douglas, running back and forth across the heavily traveled intersection of Spring and Main streets. He picked the child up, and brought her back to police headquarters about 1:30 in the afternoon. Nobody called for her and she spent the long afternoon with the patrolmen at headquarters. Becoming hungry she asked for an orange, and one of the boys went to the store and bought it for her. Not until 5:30 that afternoon did her mother miss her, and come rushing to the police station where she found her baby having a grand time, and loth to leave her new friends.

"The kids like to stay at the station, and don't seem to care how long they wait for their families to call for them," one of the boys said. "One day we picked up a little Indian child. He was only about four or five years old, but had wandered from way up town to Payne alley. We picked him up and it wasn't long until the heap big chief and mamma chief came after the little feller and took him back to the reservation.

forts to check it, and raged southward threatening to break into a section covered with manzanita and buckhorn 20 feet high, in which more fire has burned for sixty years. Fire wardens said once in this dense underbrush they doubted whether it could be halted short of the Hollywood city limits. A changeable wind was retarding its progress, but the northerly blow of the past week was thought likely to spring up this morning.

In Ventura county where seven fires in the past five days have charred nearly 50,000 acres of pastures and watersheds, only one burned today. Although it made further inroads into the Simi and adjacent valley watersheds it was not considered dangerous at the present time.

Weather predictions were for continued low humidity, high temperature and dry winds from the desert—fire weather such as that that has prevailed for a week.

That traffic was stopped in Topanga canyon. A pall of smoke settled over the coast line from Santa Monica to Oxnard. A steady stream of men and supplies were being rushed into the affected areas.

Maskell kicked off to Buerke, who returned the ball to his 33-yard line. Little went out of bounds for no gain. Ellingsen sent a quick kick over the goal line, and O. S. C. put the ball into play on the 20-yard line. Little gained five yards on two plunges and Hughes punted 42 yards with no return. The ball was on W. S. C. 32-yard line.

On two plunges through center Tomkin made 11 yards for a first down. Ellingsen and Lainhart made it another first down on Oregon State's 42-yard line on three more smashes.

Sherwood hit the line for nine yards on three attempts. Attempting to punt on the fourth down, Ellingsen received a bad pass from center and was thrown for a ten yard loss, the ball going to W. S. C. on the Beavers' 37 yard line.

The Cougars were penalized for holding on their first play and lost 15 yards. A long pass by Ellingsen was grounded. Another aerial shot went wild and W. S. C. was penalized five yards.

Ellingsen punted out of bounds on O. S. C. 33 yard line. On a lateral pass from Moe to Sherwood gained two yards around left end. Buerke's long pass over the center of the line was knocked down as the first period ended. Score: Washington State 7; Oregon State 0.

Rammied through center for six yards. Schwartz cracked left tackle for seven more, but he started too soon and W. S. C. was penalized five yards. Ellingsen's pass was knocked down.

The Cougars got mixed up on their signals and the ball shot back from center with nobody taking it. The pigskin rolled to the 5-yard line where Hammer pounced on it for O. S. C. giving the Beavers a break for a chance to score.

Sherwood squirmed through right tackle for two yards. A lateral pass from Buerke to McKallip gained another yard.
