Out Our Way

For the January Bride

By Joan Savoy
NEA Service Writer

The January bride should pick her going away costume with an eye to looking tremendously smart when she comes back and finds winter on the wane and spring approaching.

If you are one of the lucky January brides, how about an elegant little ensemble, with the coat, hat and bag to match and the frock under it of the same tone but in silk? The beauty and trimness of this type of going-away costume is matchless. You really should indulge yourself to the extent of this elegance for once in your life.

Lido Cloth Fashions Costumes
A costume par excellence for the January bride to embark in is made of that beautiful Lido cloth that has the softness of broadcloth and the soft beauty of duvetyne.

This costume is a perfectly lovely moss green, trimmed with hands of both summer ermine and pony fur. The coat itself is one of those elegant dress-maker types of coats, fitted enough to make the figure look its slender best, yet not flared enough to be outdated by any change in style.

There are fine tucks or cordings running the sleeves and the body of the coat from yoke depth to well below the hips. The sleeves are made in one with the coat body and scarf attached in the back.

This scarf is really the piece de resistance. It has stripes in a smart manner of the two kinds of fur, used diagonally. The cuffs of the coat have the same fur. The purse and the draped turban are both made of the same moss green fabric, the hat molded on the head to give it that well-groomed look that every woman loves.

Under the coat there is a flat crepe frock in the same moss green, with a soft cowl neckline, beautifully cut to enhance the bride's charm.

SECT SEEKS NEW CITY
MEXICO CITY.—The Dukhobors members of the Canadian sect who delight in gambling around attired in little or nothing want to move. They have petitioned the Mexican secretary of agriculture for permission to move fifteen or twenty thousand of their members from Canada to Mexico. Members of the sect went from Russia to Canada about 30 years ago.

THOUGHTFUL
It was a very long play, and nearly midnight when the curtain was rung up on the fourth act, disclosing an actor wearily at a table. Somehow his appearance, instead of occasioning applause, created an undercurrent of sympathy.

One of the members of the audience ventured to express the sentiment of the house. "I hope we're not keeping you up, sir," he suggested, kindly.—Tit-Bits.

HAPPY LANDINGS
AKRON, O.—An airplane tester sure has his ups and downs. In testing a new type plane brake here, Pilot Bill Hudson made 489 landings in one day. This is believed to be a world's record.

Flyweights Battle to a Draw

It was to have been a contest to decide the world's flyweight championship, but after Frankie Genaro, left, and Midget Wolgast, right, had battled fifteen rounds in Madison Square Garden, New York, the bout was called a draw and the title remained in dispute. Here you see Wolgast swinging rather widely for Genaro's jaw, and this, if you'll ask the fans who vainly clamored for excitement, was one of the few spirited bits of action in the match.

MORE NAVY PLANES
WASHINGTON.—The United States needs more airplanes in its naval force, the second airship, Z-48, ought to be constructed, and a Pacific coast base for airship operation should be
