

HOOVER WARNS OF DANGER OF A SUPERSTATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. (AP)—Through a microphone placed upon the table at which Abraham Lincoln signed the emancipation proclamation, President Hoover told the American people last night that the present furnishes a critical test for the principles and ideals of his great predecessor.

Today as in Lincoln's day, he told his radio audience, states' rights, the relationship of federal, state and local government responsibilities, form the dominant problem.

"Victory over this depression and over our other difficulties," he said, "will be won by the resolution of our people to fight their own battles in their own communities, by stimulating their ingenuity to solve their own problems, by taking new courage to be masters of their own destiny in the struggle of life. This is not the easy way, but it is the American way. And it is Lincoln's way."

For his far-scattered listeners the president in terse words pictured the scene in the Lincoln study from which he delivered the anniversary address.

He told of Lincoln's principles of government.

"You will find Lincoln addressing the country in strong and urgent support of the protective tariff. You will find him advocating federal aid in internal development of waterways, rivers and harbors, and transportation. You will find him pointing at the public mind against nullification and for adherence to constitutional processes of government."

But it was to centralization of government that Mr. Hoover devoted his principal attention. If the federal government continued to take over new responsibilities he warned, it could lead "but to the superstate where every man becomes the servant of the state and real liberty is lost."

"Such was not the government that Lincoln sought to build," he added.

Mr. Hoover told his audience that Lincoln was a good party man.

He characterized him as a "builder in an epic of destruction."

The president told how Lincoln, if he could return today, would find the south recovered, inspired by a brilliant renaissance of industry and culture, and the negro race he liberated progressed by his own endeavors to "an amazingly high level of self-reliance and well-being."

Health Better Than Riches

"Before I was married, my mother and sister and I did all the farming work on a 6-acre farm for eleven years. I married a farmer and now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help him with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. Our family doctor gave me medicine but no results. One day he told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and now I am a new woman and I know that good health is better than riches."—Mrs. Clyde L. Sherman, R. #1, Lickdale, Pennsylvania.
