

New Building Model of Appearance, Convenience

U. S. WILL PUT $250,000 TOTAL INTO BUILDING

Klamath's federal building, with offices for all departments located in this city, is a modern, practically fireproof, three-story structure of attractive design and carefully planned. When fitted with furniture the government's home in this city will be valued at about $250,000. The structure was dedicated Wednesday.

The building is centrally located to all parts of the city, on property which formerly belonged to the Oregon, California & Eastern railroad. It is one block wide, between Walnut and Oak, and extends for over one-half block long between South Seventh and South Eighth streets.

The lot cost approximately $23,000, and the building's cost is $175,322.57 to date, exclusive of furniture, new throughout, which will cost for all offices in excess of $50,000.

The structure, located at Seventh and Walnut, is one of the most beautiful, as well as modern, in the city, and is an example of the type of buildings, complete in every detail, erected by the United States government. George Isaacson is the contractor.

The entire first floor is being taken over by the post office, and has been divided into a large lobby of marble and tile, with two entrances, one on Seventh street and the other on Walnut; a mailing room, well-lighted, which will have completely new furnishings, and a special compartment where C. O. D. packages may be locked; a section for the financial department, surrounded by a heavy network of wire and with windows guarded with heavy screens. It is here that the large vault is located.

Have Special Floors
The private office of the postmaster is located on the northwest side of the building, directly off the mailing room, and will be furnished to correspond with the polished oak floor.

A special flooring, consisting of redwood blocks, laid in hot asphalt, has been constructed throughout the mailing department. This is resilient, making it less tiring to the workers who must be on their feet all day. Over fifty 150-watt lighting fixtures have been installed, providing a brilliantly lighted room for night work. During the day the room is lighted by windows on three sides as well as several skylights.

Install Elevator
The mailing platform is equipped with automatic doors, operated electrically.

Nine post office windows open off the lobby, including two general delivery, special ones for inquiry and box rent, as well as an extra window which can be utilized during a rush season, such as Christmas.

An Otis elevator has been installed to carry passengers from the lobby to the second and third floors.

On the second floor is a civil service room, with facilities for seating 20, an office for the deputy collector of internal revenue, a room for the recruiting officer of the United States army, a special office to be used by the post inspector during his visits, an office for officials of the United States forest service department, and two rooms to be used by the internal revenue collector.

Many Offices
At the end of the second floor corridor, facing on Oak street, are located offices for the county agricultural department, including rooms for the county agent, his assistant, and secretary, and one for the 4-H club agent.

The third floor is devoted to a room for the United States commissioner of the department of justice and offices of the United States reclamation service. Two rooms for the superintendent are at the end of the corridor, with rooms for the chief clerk, bookkeeper, fiscal agent and storekeeper, purchasing agent, engineer and the assistant construction engineer ranged on each side.

Finished in Cream Color
This floor is also equipped with a fire-proof vault, opening off the corridor. All the offices are finished in cream color, adding to their well-lighted appearance.

On each floor are rest rooms, with tile flooring, trimmed in

The postmaster points out that if the water is handy people will drink more and he states he doesn't mean anything else when he says it will be good for the people to drink it.

POSTOFFICE MOVES FIRST TO BUILDING

Removal of the post office from its present quarters at Ninth and Klamath will be started Wednesday night. Postmaster John McCall stated Wednesday.

"Customers of the post office will hardly know that we are moving. We will move gradually and service will be continued uninterrupted," he stated.

The fact that the new federal building is equipped with all new furniture and equipment for the post office makes possible the removal without interrupting the service.

Other offices will be removed to the new building as fast as furniture arrives and is placed.

The reclamation service, which occupies practically the entire third floor of the new building, may not be moved before December 1. Postmaster John McCall, custodian of the building, states County Agent C. A. Henderson states that his office and that of County Club Leader Frank Sexton will be moved about November 1.

Bert Thomas, United States commissioner, states that he does not yet know the date upon which his office, now in the Loomis building, will be moved.

The reclamation service buildings on North 10th street, are expected to be retained and used for various governmental purposes and for the storage and care of equipment.

The United States Army recruiting office, in the Hill building, will move as soon as furniture arrives and is placed in the office provided, according to Recruiting Sergeant Jennings D. Lowman.

DEDICATION OF NEW BUILDING IS CONDUCTED

have for years struggled to bring about the construction of a federal building in this city, by Post Office Inspector Teasman, Jefferson, Seattle, representing the postmaster general of the United States, and by visiting federal employees, from the counties in Southern Oregon, who are attending the meeting here today of the Federal Business Men's association.

Offices Inspected
Following the dedicatory address, Mr. Hall invited the citizens of Klamath to inspect the new home of the post office department, the reclamation service and the other federal agencies which have offices in the city.

The dedication ceremonies took place on the front steps of the three-story, granite, limestone and brick building on South Seventh street between Walnut and Oak, which will hereafter represent to the people of this section the hand of the national government in this territory.

To Occupy Soon
Occupancy of the building will be started within 24 hours, when transfers of the post office business from Ninth and Main to the new federal building will be started, and will be followed by the other offices.

The Klamath federal building was called one of the finest in any city this size in the West, during the dedication ceremony, and citizens who inspected the structure following the ceremonies concurred in the praise of the building, which was constructed by George Isaacson, Portland contractor, under the supervision of A. Earl Patterson, federal construction engineer.

MERRILL TELLS HIS IDEAS FOR RELIEF SET-UP

Chief of Police Guy Merrill on Wednesday outlined his suggestions for the carrying on of relief work in Klamath Falls this winter. Merrill advocated a division of the various forms of relief work needed with a chairman in charge of each and all co-operating to see that the necessary relief is administered.

"There should be one organization on clothing, one for wood, one for groceries and provisions, one for employment for unemployed, one for milk, and last but not least a committee to investigate and report on the merits of each case," Chief Merrill said.

"The relief organization should be run as a large department store, with each division having a head, and the work should be administered county-wide and not just city-wide," he stated, "with no discrimination shown."

"By organizing and working in such a manner there will be no duplication of relief and each head of a department will be responsible.

"There is no shortage of food stuffs in this county and I want to say that the people of Klamath county are always ready and willing to do their part. In all my work I have never been turned down by any farmer in Klamath county and that is something for which they may be proud," Chief Merrill concluded.

QUACKS SENTENCED

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Oct. 20 (AP)—"Dr." William Anderson and his good friend, James Howard, today were sentenced to serve three years, each in the penitentiary for medical quackery and obtaining money under pretenses.
