Morley Won Acquittal In 1929 Here In Death of J. H. Randall

RENO, Nev., Oct. 23.—Fern Morley, also known as Fern Morley, who was acquitted of first degree murder charges in Klamath county in 1929, was shot and killed early today in Reno by William Conrad, building contractor, who claimed he found Morley and Mrs. Conrad together in his home. Conrad then killed his wife with two shots.

Mrs. Conrad filed suit for divorce a week ago. Mrs. Conrad was shot twice in the abdomen. An emergency operation was performed in an attempt to save her life but she died at 4:20 this morning, three hours after the shooting. A bullet through the temple killed Morley.

A neighbor heard the shots and summoned police, who found Conrad waiting for them. He greeted them with "Boys, I'm the man you want."

A week ago yesterday, Mrs. Conrad had her husband arrested on a charge of drunkenness and disturbing the peace. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was placed on six months probation.

Inquest Over Bodies of Two Slain Women Is Held

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23. (AP)—An open verdict was returned by a coroner's jury today in the deaths of Miss Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Le Roi. In the inquest police revealed that they considered the first reliable clue as to the whereabouts of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, suspected slayer.

Although testimony during the inquest showed that Mrs. Judd called for the two trunks containing the bodies of her two friends, the jury found that Miss Samuelson and Mrs. Le Roi had come to their deaths "October 14 from gunshot wounds inflicted by person or persons unknown." The verdict did not include a recommendation for the search for Mrs. Judd.

Clue Said Authentic The clue, considered by police as authentic, came from J. Robert O'Connor, former deputy district attorney, who told authorities he had obtained information he regarded as reliable that Mrs. Judd was hiding in the Calaveras Pass hills, near here.

Editorials on the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS THE railroads are denied the 15 per cent flat increase in rates which they had requested, and on the day the decision denying the increase is handed down by the interstate commerce commission the 29 leading rail-stocks listed in this newspaper by the Standard Statistics company RISE in value by an average of 2.5 points.

Well, the investing public must have figured it out something like this: "If the railroads had increased their rates by 15 per cent, a large part of their business would have gone over to the trucks and the boats, thus affecting seriously the earnings of the railroads."

There is an experience that many business men are having in these days: When real bargains are offered, people snap them up.

That is to say, when people see exactly what they want, they BUY.

Industry's present problem is to find out what people want and then provide it.

OREGON agriculturists are finding that out. Eggs, for example, Oregon poultrymen produce fine, white-shelled, perfectly fresh eggs, ship them clear across the continent and sell them in New York at a premium over local Eastern eggs that is high enough to offset freight costs and show a profit.

They have found out what people back there want, and are SUPPLYING it. Buyers are paying the price.

BUTTER is another example. Coos Bay and the Lower Columbia country are producing 93 score butter, which means butter made of sweet cream, under strictly sanitary conditions.

Coos Bay and the Lower Columbia country are SELLING their 93 score butter, getting good prices.

Again quality scores. If you read the papers at all, you MUST have been reading about England. And it is probable that you have drawn the conclusion that things are in a pretty bad way over there, with the future looking exceedingly dark.
