"Civil War" Bursts Out This Week

General Schissler Will Bring Northern Forces For Corvallia To Engage Oregon On Hayward Field

By JOE PIGNEY
Late in 1884, General Sherman was marching through the couth to the sea, and on November 14 he stopped over at Atlanta, Ga., to Ised a section of that town to the militant flames of the north.

That's just 67 years ago, the battle front of the civil war has moved from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific, Saturday, November 14, 1931, Major-General Paul J. Schissler, commander-in-chief of the morthern foothall armies at Oregon State college, will march 40 miles southward to Engene to engage the University of Oregon forces of General Clarence W. Spears, chief of the Webfoot regiments.

This Oregon-Oregon State of the Webloot regiments.

This Oregon-Oregon State football battle is "civil war." It'll not be a more skirmish. It'll be a fight with every maneuver known to football. And this is one time history may not "repeat itself." for the southern forces of the university are very likely to rise up and wreck the hig gridfron soldiers from Corvallis. But don't count too strongly on pre-game dope in these Web-foot-Beaver clashies. Anything can happen, and it is just as possible today as 67 years ago that the north will come through.

The two state institutions began hostilities in the '90s, and the struggle still is undecided. In the numbers of games won and lost the university is a long way in the lead, but in recent years the State college has reduced the advantage to within striking distance. For three years previous to 1925 the Orange did an unprecedented thing and won every battle. Then came Captain John J. McEwan, now head coach at Holy Cross, where he consistently bowls over his big eastern opponents, with Johnny Kitamiler, and thumped the Beaver 13 to 0. The following year the captain and Kitamilier did it again, 16 to 0.

Last year Major-General The two state institutions

Last year Major-General Schisaler got very scorched over two successive defeats, and wiped out Dr. Spears' first Wehfoot team, 15 to 0. Johnny Kitzmiller sat on the bench that rainy day at Corvaille.

But last years, this years and next years, don't amount to much when Oregon and Oregon State get together, It's always an inspired football game with each team playing miles over the head of its normal attempth. normal strength.

normal strength.

If you are an Oregon Stater you can easily give the Orange the edge this Saturday. The Beavers lost to Southern California 20 to 6, while Oregon was blasted 53 to 6. Schissler's forces are 26 points stronger, if you want to put it that way.

But if you are an Oregon fan, you can be happy in Oregon's victory over New York. New York was hot after the national championship and the Wedfoots were, after all, only a second rate Pacific coast team. Oregon is growing a second rate Facility coasts team. Oregon is growing stronger and stronger. It will be at its peak Saturday after two weeks' rest, since its astounding win in the east.

Oregon State has it all over Oregon in the number and size of its players. The Webfoots, too, are a long way behind in experience. Only two regulars on the Oregon team, Captain irv Schule, guard, and Eric Forsta, center, have served in the varsity rank and file for more than two years. Three men in the Oregon starting backfield are sophomoros, and the fourth, Bill Bowerman, Medford, subbed last year as both center and end. Schiseier's backfield and line are full of hunky young men who are in their third year as members of the Pacific coast conference.

But anything can happen in this "civil war." The slight-est break may turn victory into defeat or defeat into victory.

More than traditional rival-More than traditional rival-ry will be at state this year. Both Oregon State and Ore-gon will be fighting for the state title, and the opportuni-to meet Utah, champion of the Rocky mountain conference, Rocky mountain conference, in a charity game at Portland, December 5. The Beavers want that game, for their regular playing season ends with the Oregon encounter. Oregon, however, still has U. C. L. A. and St. Mary's to finish off.

Something cracked in San Francisco Sunday, and St. Mary's, the only undefeated eleven on the Pacific coast, dropped its game to the Olympic club, 10 to 0. Another year will go by without a national champion for the Pacific coast.

The south has another big game sharing department.

If Dempsey, now 26 years old, decides his barastorming tour has put him in condition for another comeback, Johnston is prepared to offer him two matches which might lead to a "shot" at Max Schmeling and the heavyweight championship.

Johnston said the Garden would not offer Jack any guarantees, but an adequate share of the receipts for a bout in February at Mami, Fin. against an opponent drawn from a list of four leading heavyweights — Tommy Loughran, Johnny Risko, Paulino Uzcudun and Tom Heeney.
