

Editorials □ News of Other Days □ Place Names □ Women's Features

Where Do We Stand Now?

IS G. N. FORGETTING PROMISES?

Jimmie Walker Gets Blasts

Ice Plant Location May Go Elsewhere

It is rumored that the Great Northern and the Western Pacific are planning the construction of an icing plant at Beiber to handle refrigeration of cars for the run between that point and Spokane.

When the Great Northern planned its extension into California, officials of the road were more than anxious to obtain the friendship and help of local residents.

How Things Change

Far different are the apparent results now that the construction has been completed. Forgotten are the promises made when the favorable consideration of Klamath Falls residents was essential to the railroad's program.

This city is important to the Great Northern as a tonnage development point. It seems strange that Great Northern officials fail to recognize that if the present policy of Klamath Falls elimination in all favors accorded by the company is continued that local shippers will retaliate by placing all freight with competitors.

Playing auction bridge with contract fans isn't our idea of enjoyable sport.

Have you named your all-American football team yet?

Don't forget the mailman. Mailing early for Christmas will help him.

GEMS of PERIL

CHAPTER XXXIX

Sometimes during the remainder of that first dance, which had become a horrible nightmare to Mary, she was aware of a severe bump—and looked around to see Bates, perspiring and apologetic, blushing a strange woman awkwardly nearby.

"I'm not afraid," Mary assured him. "Don't be long, though. Hurry back!"

and leaned down to speak to her. "Mary, I'm going down to the 'Gypsy.' I can't sit here and see that fellow gyrating around out there like a—like a damned top!"

"I'll pick it up in a cab, anyhow," he finally decided, "and be right back." He hesitated, "I don't like to leave you alone, though—and I want to stop and see how the boys are coming on with the searching of De Loma's room."

as she could muster. Mr. Jupiter was tramping around the room to the exit. Mary suddenly saw De Loma and the orchestra leader and their con-jugal, and De Loma turned and walked swiftly toward the table.

He was dead in earnest about it, and in her relief at having the necklace out of her possession and safely tucked away in Bates' pocket, Mary almost laughed. She was seeing a new and strange side of the man, but one that was as genuine in its way as his less respectable phases.

handful of pebbles—the necklace! Bates hadn't taken it after all! In his hurry he had steezed an empty one and stuffed it in his pocket without looking—and the Jupiter necklace was still here, underneath her hand.

She might have picked it up and put it on again—afterward it occurred to her that that had been the sensible thing to do. But at the moment she was too flustered.

Almost as if he read her thoughts, De Loma suddenly noticed the absence of the rubies.

"You have—lost your necklace?" he asked in a choking voice, pointing to her throat.

"Oh, no," she managed to laugh. "It was so warm, and the stones are so heavy, I just took it off."

He drew in a deep sucking breath and leaned back, his sinister face relaxed. She saw his eyes creeping over her, the table, her hands, searching it out.

"But you had me frightened for a minute!" he chided her. "Such a valuable string could easily become—lost in a crowd like this."

"I asked Mr. Bates to lock it up for me," she said deliberately, answering his unspoken question. His face hardened, seemed to lock together as if he were shutting in his feelings with a titanic effort.

He was silent so long that Mary began to wonder if he were going to speak to her again at all. At that moment the orchestra began to play "Two Tears."

Unsmiling, he tapped out his cigarette and said, "It is the tango. Will you dance it with me?"

"Will you pick up my glove, please?" Mary asked, by way of inspiration. "I think I dropped it over there."

Surprised, he bent over and made an effort to locate the glove, which lay where she had thrown it—under the table. There was nothing for him to do but get down on his knees and pick it up.

(To Be Continued)

Health Talks

Children from one to five years of age are included in the group called "pre-school" children. There has been a gradual tendency to consider children of these ages as different from nurslings or older children, but the two groups merge together so gradually that this is perhaps an error.

In Birmingham, England, clinics have been available for the examination of children from 18 months to five years of age. Out of 5500 such children, 41 per cent had enlarged tonsils, 27 per cent had enlarged glands, 2.5 per cent infected ears, and 28 per cent defective teeth.

Among the chief causes of death in children of these ages are respiratory infections, including influenza and pneumonia, and also infections of the kidneys. Many of the children examined in Birmingham came from families of artisans and laborers. Apparently these children required just as much care as those of the pauper class.

Studies of children of pre-school age seemed to show the need for an extensive use of cod liver oil and of vitamin D concentrates in order to prevent the appearance of rickets and the defects of bone growth and teeth that are associated with this disorder.

There are many who believe the governor should pardon Mooney, yet dislike the idea of the Walker theatricals having a part in such a decision. Ample basis to justify such a course on the part of the governor is already available, and Walker unlikely can produce anything new in the way of tangible evidence.

Fashion Tips

New coiffures bring foreheads into such prominence that they must be fair or not do their bit for your reputation for beauty.

Many women rouge with care and use lipstick with restraint and taste and even make-up their eyes cleverly and then ruin it all by neglecting their foreheads.

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"I'd advise the services of a trained nurse for a few weeks and someone to do the housework. And, above all, she mustn't worry about anything."

Evening Herald of November 24, there is a splendid example of that muddled thinking so prevalent today.

After commenting on the defeat of Notre Dame by Southern California, your editorial writer lists the lineup of the opposing teams and, after apologetically admitting that "names, of course, mean little," he informs us that the names of Notre Dame's lineup contain "a distinct foreign flavor," whereas the Southern California names are "rather characteristically American."

Logical reasoning demands that the defender of a proposition: (1) state his premises; (2) define his terms; (3) prove his premises before proceeding to a conclusion.

Why does your writer violate even the rudiments of right thinking and feed us such insipid drivel? Is it, perhaps, because he viewed the two lineups through the distorting glasses of prejudice?

How can we tell whether Skeetski of Notre Dame is the great-grandson of a Polish immigrant or a bolshevik in disguise? How can we tell whether Smith of U. S. C. is a late arrival from London or one of the progeny of Pocahontas?

He claims in one breath that names mean little and in the next holds that the population of our country can be classified as foreigners and "native Americans" by the "flavor" of the name.

There are new powders made especially for foreheads and chin tones just a little lighter than the cheek powder of the same color and make.

Before you dust on your powder and pat it in with your puff, try using a foundation cream that will improve the texture of your forehead, you can disguise them by clever make-up.

If you have a preference for healthy bloom on your cheeks, do not make the mistake of having your forehead stony white. It may be improved by the use of a cream that will improve the texture of your forehead, you can disguise them by clever make-up.

Business experts are looking for a revival. And so, probably, is Almee Seiple McPherson Hutten.

Some Wise Cracks

Crime, says a scientist, is caused by glands. Second story men are probably victims of monkey glands.

Any way, Theodore Dreiser will henceforth be more careful about toothpicks in public.

A London rubber company pays girls to test wearing qualities of shoes with rubber soles. American co-eds should take advantage of this to make some profit on the way back from automobile rides.

Office Cat

Jimmy Jones, after gazing thoughtfully at the "boy wanted" sign in a store window, stepped into the shop.

Jimmy—"What kind of a boy is it you want?"

Owner—"Oh, a decent sort of lad—one who is quiet and willing, one who isn't lazy and doesn't whistle, one who knows his manners, one—"

Young Husband—"I'm glad you are so impressed, dear, by these explanations I've been making about banking and economics. Wife—"Yes, darling. It seems wonderful that anybody could know as much as you do about money without having any of it."

The late Robley D. Evans entered a pew in an Eastern church. Another occupant, taking a card from his pocket, wrote on it, "I pay $2,500 a year for this pew," and handed it to the admiral, who turned the pasteboard over and returned it with this note: "You pay too damned much."

Five Little Words There are five little words we'd have you know. They are "Parson Me," "Thank You," and "Please."

Good intentions pay but few dividends. Many a safety deposit box is burglar proof, can be opened by a baby stare or dust around now and then, but she never means business unless she has a rag tied around her head.

wants to settle down and get a home. Gertie: Well, he's got a good start. I gave him the gate last night.

Earlier Days

December 1, 1913 Instead of receiving a warrant for $25 each in return for his services, Fire Chief Ed Wakefield will hereafter be paid $25. This change was made at last night's council meeting, following the introduction of a resolution framed by the fire committee.

The committee contended that since the chief is now furnished with living quarters, wood, lights, water, etc., his salary should be reduced proportionately.

Joseph Johnson and Arthur White, indicted by the Klamath county grand jury on charges of burglary, this morning entered pleas of guilty when arraigned before Circuit Judge Benson. They will be sentenced Friday. They are charged with having cut a hole in the tent of a fellow worker near Chiloquin, and with having reached through and taken $10 from a trousers pocket.

Klamath Names

DESERT RIDGE (From "Oregon Geographic Names" by Lewis A. McArthur). This ridge is north of Crater Lake, and has an elevation of 6941 feet at its highest point. It is about a mile long. It gets its name because it is just west of Pumice desert.

A-B-C of Specialized Business and Professional Service

Advertisement grid listing various services: BOARD (ALLEN'S HOME COOKED MEALS), GARAGES (Klamath Garage moved to 820 Klamath Ave.), HATTER (THE MORGAN HAT SHOP), HOSPITALS (KLAMATH'S EMERGENCY HOSPITAL), OPTOMETRISTS (DR. GOBLE OPTOMETRIST), RADIO SERVICE (LONG'S RADIO SHOP), CHIROPRACTORS (Dr. Paul C. Long), CHIROPODISTS (Dr. Stockwell), DANCING SCHOOLS (HOGUE'S DANCING ACADEMY), DENTISTS (DR. ERNEST H. HALL), STENOGRAPHERS (E. J. DUNIVAN), TAILORS (ORRES & WARD), DRESSMAKING (BESS HENDON), ELECTRICAL SERVICE (Service Electric Co.), FURNITURE (Klamath Furniture Co.), WATCH-JEWELRY (Watch and Jewelry Repairing).

Telling the Editor

To the Editor: The Evening Herald, Klamath Falls, Oregon. Dear Sir: In your "Editorials on the Day's News" column in the

Some People Say

The organization of the house is in the laps of the gods.—Rep. John N. Garner of Texas.

Some People Say

Amos: How about stealing another kiss? Sue: Say, who do you think you are—the crime wave?