

KLAMATH FOLK GIVE YULETIDE GREAT OPENING

novel idea in a color scheme of black, white and silver. An array of gift suggestions, almost perfect in its line, was shown in Kirkpatrick and Kenner's store.

Christmas wreaths and candles were used to decorate the windows of the Klamath Variety store.

Original Effects
Snow banks, upon which were placed silverware, dishes, electrical gifts of all kinds, tool chests, sleds, wagons and other gifts for kiddies, graced the windows of the Baldwin Hardware store.

The spacious windows of La-Pointe's store were beautified with artificial evergreens, silver-edged pine cones and glittering stars.

At Houston's shoe store were shown many gift suggestions against a background of red and green decorations.

A brilliantly lighted Christmas tree was placed on the marquee of Montgomery Ward's store.

At the opening hour, when curtains were withdrawn from display windows, the beautiful Christmas tree at the California Oregon Power company, was lighted.

Black and silver tiers formed an effective base for gift displays in Garret's shop.

Winter Scene Shown
The two Star Drug stores, Fifth and Main and Tenth and Main, afforded many gift ideas.

Lingerie and evening gowns were featured in Clifton's store. Wreaths and floral decorations were cleverly used.

The windows of K. Sugarman's store suggested a winter scene. A red silk tapestry, on which was painted a Christmas candle, throwing out rays of silver light, formed a clever idea for the Buster Brown shoe store.

Toys Numerous
Underwood's pharmacy was in gay holiday attire for the occasion.

Red, white and silver wreaths formed the Yuletide motif at B-hart's.

Barth's Dollar store featured boys in their Christmas displays. Toys were also shown at the Klamath furniture store.

A lighted Christmas tree occupied one corner of the window. Tinsel wreaths set off the gift suggestions at Drew's Man's store.

Window Dress Clever
A clever window effect of green with a wreath of holly was seen at Shaw's Stationery store, where gifts for the office and home were shown.

A modernistic Christmas tree, lighted by a flood light, was placed in front of May King's studio.

A background of blue, studded with silver and gold stars was effectively carried out at the Green Cross drug store.

Glimorous gift displays were shown in the large windows of the Golden Rule store.

For those with a sweet tooth, Wright's Candy shop afforded a pleasing display.

Christmas scenes, against which were placed all kinds of gifts for men, occupied the windows of the Klamath Clothing company.

Santa Claus was seen in the windows of Roberts and Harvey's store.

Attracting many children were the nice penguin balloons in Curran's drug store.

Flowers Shown
One of the most effective floral displays ever shown was that at the Klamath Flower shop.

A candy church on a background of white snow, centered the window of Candy Land.

The Pelican Grille had a unique display, a huge cake on which rested a tiny village with Santa Claus and his reindeer.

Shining silver stars and tiny silver trees were interspersed among the gifts shown at the Pelican drug.

Justin and Montgomery's store had an interesting line of men's gifts.

Wagoner's drug store windows were effectively decorated in the Yuletide colors.

Grocery stores and meat markets were "all dressed up" for the occasion, as were many of the smaller stores of the city.

by a third party in the Manchurian quarrel.

Those who heard M. Ito said it was their impression Japan was determined to get the Chinese military and perhaps civil government out of Chinchow.

It was understood the members of the council gave Dr. Sze no hope of assistance in the matter of China's retaining Chinchow, but rather pleaded with him to avoid conflict, even if it became necessary to withdraw.

Dr. Sze went to see Ambassador Charles G. Dawes to inquire about the attitude of the United States government in case Japan should occupy Chinchow. The results of the interview were not made known.

The day's developments amounted to a tightening of the deadlock between the council and Japan, and disapproval in China and Japan, and disapproval was expressed when the twelve neutral members of the council met.

NEW DRIVE PLANNED
TOKYO, Dec. 5. (AP)—A new military drive, southwestward toward Heilmintun, is to begin soon, it was announced here today, against alleged bandits and other lawless elements in Manchuria.

The decision to make the new thrust, after the Japanese withdrew an offensive last week in the direction of Chinchow, was made, it was stated, after receiving reports said to indicate that bandits were active along the Peiping-Mukden railroad and that Chinese troops were concentrating in the region of Tahushan and other places almost within striking distance of the south Manchurian railway.

Reports from Nanking that conversations between Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese foreign minister, and Japanese minister Shigenata, relative to the establishment of a neutral zone at Chinchow have broken down also helped to influence the decision.

Army authorities here and at Mukden, the announcement said, decided to take measures to deal with a situation which they considered was partially brought about by the previous following orders issued on November 27 at the time Japanese troops were advancing upon Chinchow. Military intelligence reports, it was said, indicated Chinese troops began immediately to occupy the former Japanese position.

TO HAVE REPORT
MUKDEN, Manchuria, Dec. 5. (AP)—The United States government is to have a special report on the situation in Manchuria from its own military observers.

Col. James G. McIlroy, United States military attaché at Tokyo, who has been on a tour of Northern Manchuria for several days with a party of other neutral attaches under Japanese auspices, has left here for Chinchow to meet Col. Nelson Margetta, American attaché from Peiping.

The two will collaborate on the report. Col Margetta has been in the Chinchow area since before the Japanese advance last week which was halted half way between Chinchow and Mukden when the army received orders to withdraw.

watched if material reductions in taxation are to be effected.

ON June 30, 1931, the gross debt of the federal government, which means the government of the United States, was 16.8 billion dollars. On June 30, 1930, it was 16.2 billions.

In other words, the government of the United States last year failed by about 600 million dollars to take in as much money as it spent, and so had to increase its debt by that much.

It should be added that since June 30 of this year the increase in government debt has been piling up at an even more rapid rate.

That is why congress is compelled, much against its will, here at the beginning of a political year, to consider new forms of taxation. Governments, like individuals, can't go on spending beyond their incomes without getting into trouble.

PUBLIC WARNED NOT TO OVERDO HOME BUILDING

assumption of home building operations" were answered by the committee, in a report sent to the White House, as follows:

Effects Feared
"These would be helpful to their proponents and create a slight wave of benefit to unemployed artisans, but would only result in an increase of residences for sale in a market already demonstrably over-supplied, and have an adverse effect upon the already deflated values of existing homes."

The committee explained its statement by citing that there were thousands of homes in every state "that are either held by a tenant or held by their owners, or have become involuntarily owned by mortgagees who are striving to sell them to home-minded citizens for acquisition cost or less, on terms that give a new meaning to installment purchasing in its most favorable aspect to the buyer."

Rents Reduced
Also, the committee said, many people are occupying houses for almost no rent, just to take care of them; elsewhere rents have been reduced, and there are many vacant houses. The first need, it was said, was to care for the present emergency.

or cancelled without a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission. We wish to say that so far the joint trackage arrangement has worked out satisfactory to all concerned.

"In regard to the celebration to be held next summer, we wish to advise that this matter has not been considered by the executives at St. Paul."

BUT that doesn't alter the fact that $0 BILLION dollars is a lot of money for the people of even this great country to owe, or the further fact that they will have to be taxed to pay this great debt, along with interest.

High taxation is a burden on business, and heavy burdens on business make it harder to provide jobs at good wages for the people of this country.

It is high time to be giving serious thought to the problem of paying the debts we owe as a people, meanwhile refraining, so far as possible, from creating other debts.

It Was Love, All Right—

BUT the idea was new only to Joan. Jerry wished it were that way with him, too. It would be so sweet and beautiful to be loving for the first time.

But ten years before there had been Claire Hempstead. Confound Claire Hempstead! Why did he have to keep remembering her? He didn't love her. He loved only Joan!

And when Claire Hempstead came back after Jerry and Joan were married—what then?

Can you bury an early passion by drinking a toast to it as something that is dead?

HERE is the story, at last, which draws the true picture of modern youth as it lives and loves with careless abandon. These young people lived deeply, thoroughly and frankly.
