SALLIES

A few days ago I advised you that the snow brought a good opportunity to swap or sell sleds, skis or toboggans that you no longer use. If you took advantage immediately you probably made the sale, but if you procrastinated you're too late for that sort of thing.

However, right now if you have a good boat that could be used to sail up Main street in the slush, or perhaps a pair of high-top boots, now is the time to advertise them.

The more seasonal you offer the better the RESULTS will be. Now is the opportunity time to sell or swap many things, among them: wood, coal, furniture, chickens, stoves, electric heaters and hay.

Grasp the opportunity while it knocks.

Amusements

Pine Tree—Now playing—"I Like Your Nerve," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Rainbow—Now playing—"The Miracle Woman," with Barbara Stanwick.

Vox—Now playing—"The Big Parade," with John Gilbert.

Pelican—Now playing—"Muriel Mary Ann," with Gaynor and Farrell.

THE PINE TREE

In conjunction with the regular show today at the Pine Tree, and tomorrow also, there will be a unique stage presentation by Mae De Rosier of her Sunshine Follies.

On the screen is a new role for Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "I Like Your Nerve." It is fast and funny and very reminiscent of young Doug's famous father.

THE RAINBOW

Humor, pathos, and stirring dramatic quality, not to mention the superlative acting of Barbara Stanwick, combine to make "The Miracle Woman," the drama that opens at the Rainbow theater today, one of the better cinemas of the past season. A performance by Barbara Stanwick is always an event to a motion picture audience, and here is one that is a gala event.

NEW VOX

In response to demand from film enthusiasts all over the country, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has released its greatest film, "The Big Parade." The picture, enhanced with new and thrilling sound effects, made its triumphant return Sunday at the New Vox Theatre and proved itself to be a film which not only survives the years but stands out as the most convincing and moving story ever portrayed on the screen.

PELICAN

Beautiful Mary Astor with Robert Ames and Edward Everett Horton make "Smart Woman" playing at the Pelican Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday a feature long to be remembered. A gay gossiping hilarious story you hear everywhere—on the phone, across the bridge table, the whole world is talking about "Smart Woman." A well rounded program of news, comedy and an interesting travelogue round out the screen presentation. Marie Obenchain will be at the Wurlitzer all this week playing special request programs.

THE West—where is it? That all seems to depend.

A young woman in New York, told by a visitor from Oregon that he was from the West, answered enthusiastically: "Oh, I just love the West!"

"Oh, do you?" the Oregonian made reply. "And do you get out West often?"

"Oh, quite," she answered. "I have an aunt out in Utica and I visit her every spring and every fall."

The West, you see, is a relative sort of place, its exact location all depending.

Times are indeed changing in the days when kingship was at its best, subjects never thought of complaining of a little thing like that.

What happened to the servant of course, didn't matter. If he took a draft of poisoned water or wine and died in great agony leaving behind a family of which he had been the sole support, it was just another of those things and nobody paid any particular attention to it.

THIS Musinga, it seems, played no favorites. Even his son-in-law, Wakarataka, got somehow into the royal bad graces and, knowing his father-in-law's unpleasant little habits, did not dare for years to take even a cup of water or wine without HAVING A SERVANT taste it before him.

What happened to the servant of course, didn't matter. If he took a draft of poisoned water or wine and died in great agony leaving behind a family of which he had been the sole support, it was just another of those things and nobody paid any particular attention to it.

This business of kingship is a curious sort of business, governed by a strange lot of rules.
