MANCHURIAN CITY TERRORIZED

Editorials on the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

AT Florence, on the Oregon coast, an orange tree—with plenty of pitting and coddling, to be sure—grows up in the open and matures a half dozen oranges.

AN accident? Possibly. Still, it is interesting.

Did you ever stop to think that wheat, in its historical origin, is a tropical plant? But it has been creeping steadily north until now they grow it clear up to the edges of the Arctic circle.

WHEN the white men came to the western hemisphere, they found three new things—maize, known generally in this country now as corn; potatoes and tobacco.

It would be interesting if a modern corn grower could see the maize the first white men found here. He wouldn't know the scrawny stuff for the corn of today.

And it would be equally interesting if we could show our modern and up-to-date potato growers here in the Klamath basin the potatoes that were found by the first white men.

THE corn and the potatoes first found growing on this continent grew far to the south, and it was not supposed that they COULD be grown in the north. Your grandfather can probably remember when Minnesota was looked upon as too far north for a corn state.

It has been only a few years since it was commonly believed that corn would not grow successfully in Oregon because of the cool nights. Now it is a fairly staple crop all over southern Oregon.

LOST SUBMARINE STILL UNLOCATED

LONDON, Jan. 27. (AP)—The British admiralty announced at 1:30 this afternoon that the submarine M-2 which failed to come up from a dive off Portland yesterday had not been located at that time.

"No communication has yet been received from the M-2," the admiralty statement said, "and in consequence great anxiety is now felt for the safety of those aboard."

Earlier, the Evening Standard said the submarine had been located on the bottom and lighters were on the way with floating tackle but efforts to establish contact with the crew had failed.

Wives of all the men aboard the M-2 received telegrams today stating the submarine was missing and the commanding officer of the H. M. S. Dolphin, reading: "I regret to inform you that your husband is missing and feared drowned in the submarine M-2 which is believed to have sunk off Portland Tuesday."

Forty-Eight Years Of Growth Recalled By Stirring Story Of First Church In Klamath

Forty-eight years ago in February, when the village of Linkville boasted 400 inhabitants, seven leaders of the community, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Houghton and Mrs. Hattie Roberts, formulated a charter for the parent church of the Klamath basin, the Presbyterian church.

ILLNESS OF JUROR HALTS JUDD TRIAL

Will Recess Until Thursday; Woman Faints As Court Adjourns.

Father of Defendant Tells of Eccentricities of Daughter's Youth.

By Ralph O. Brown
COURT HOUSE, Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 27. (AP)—The murder trial of Winnie Ruth Judd was recessed at 2:30 p. m. today until 1:30 p. m. tomorrow, because of illness of a juror.

The juror, M. T. White, was ordered to bed by his attending physician, who examined him during a court recess called by Judge Howard C. Speakman for the purpose of a juror.

White's illness was diagnosed as "probable influenza," and Judge Speakman adjourned court for the day when it was reported to him the alternate juror, Joseph L. Standage, was "not feeling well."

As the ballistics gavel fell adjournment court, Mrs. Mary Miller, 40 years old, a spectator, pitched to the floor on her face. She was carried from the room by sheriff's deputies, who battled through excited spectators. Fifteen minutes later the efforts of a physician failed to revive her, and an ambulance was called to take her home.

COURT HOUSE, Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 27. (AP)—The Rev. R. J. McKinnell, father of Winnie Ruth Judd, brought the skeletons of insanity from the family closet today in an effort to ameliorate the charge of murder, for which the state would forfeit his daughter's life.

RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. (AP)—President Hoover today signed the $500,000,000 appropriation measure to provide the capital for the emergency reconstruction finance corporation.

Chairman Norbeck said the nomination probably would live over a day and come up for senate confirmation tomorrow.

Meanwhile, a forecast President Hoover will turn to the far West for the third democratic director of the corporation was made by Senator George H. Dyer, after a conference with the chief executive, said he was "definitely disposed to think the president will go West for his choice."

Son To Carry On In Behalf of Cub Title Aspirations

CHICAGO, Jan. 27. (AP)—The job of making the Chicago Cubs champions of the world—William Wrigley's most cherished dream—has been left to his son, Phil K. Wrigley.

While there is no definite information concerning the disposal of Wrigley's vast fortune, his controlling share in the Cubs is believed certain to go to his son.

Wrigley was busy, just before his fatal illness, planning ways and means of realizing his dream of seeing the Cubs win a world championship, and thus wipe out the memories—bitter ones to him—of the Cubs' failure to win in 1918 and 1929, after conquering the National league.

Snow Visits Oregon Again; Heavy Fall on Highways But All Open; Barometer is Up

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 27. (AP)—Snow visited Oregon again today but the weather bureau predicted that in the northwest portion the heavy, wet flakes would soon turn to rain. Temperatures generally were below normal throughout the state. Snow was falling at Medford, Klamath Falls, Castle Rock, Kelo, Longview, Salem, Portland and other points.

In the mid-Columbia region a heavy fall of snow covered the ground, to the satisfaction of orchardists in the Hood River and The Dalles regions. At Hood River five inches of snow fell in less than three hours last night.

The snow squalls were general over most of the Pacific Northwest, the airways weather bureau said. Crown Point reported heavy snow, with no wind, and no ceiling for fliers.

The morning westbound Varney plane was down at Cascade Locks and the morning northbound Pacific air transport ship was grounded at Medford.

MISMANAGEMENT CHARGED IN SUIT

Another Court Action To Obtain Receivership for Long-Bell Opens.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 27. (AP)—A suit in equity, which charges mismanagement, was filed this afternoon in federal district court asking appointment of a receiver for the Long-Bell Lumber corporation and thirteen subsidiary companies.

The suit was brought in the name of W. Verdner Carson of Quincy, Ill., who was designated as the owner of $5,100 of Long-Bell bonds. The St. Louis law firm of Leahy, Saunders & Walther filed the petition.

A protest against the formation of a bondholders' protective committee was included in the petition on the grounds preference would be shown.

The court has not taken action in a similar suit recently filed by a Lawrence, Kas., bondholder asking a receiver. The first suit was filed after R. A. Long, chairman of the board, had issued a public statement, suggesting the formation of a bondholders' protective committee.

The bondholders' committee recently was announced with the firm of Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago in charge of its activities.

In the statement in which Long suggested the committee he said the indebtedness of the $55,000,000 concern was approximately $42,200,000, including the bond issue.

WOLFE DENIES ANY PART IN BANK ROBBERY

Defendant on Stand In Own Behalf, Tells of His Movements.

Says Money Found Under His Bed Not Taken From Bank.

Taking the witness stand in his own defense Wednesday morning, George W. Wolfe, 62 year old defendant in the Bonanza bank robbery case, told in detail his actions on November 12, 1931, in an effort to clear himself of the charge against him by establishing an alibi.

Wolfe denied having taken Horace Nordstrom, Bob Bradley and John Doe Slim to Bonanza either on the day of the robbery, or at any time previous, and stated that he had only been in the town of Bonanza twice in his life.

Has Car Difficulty

The defendant told of having difficulty with his car after his arrival in Klamath Falls on November 6, and stated that he had minor repairs made at the Roy Call garage on the morning of November 12. He told of visits made to local offices of the Great Northern and Western Pacific railroad companies on that day, in an effort to secure information regarding rates on lumber. He also declared that he made negotiations with the Great Northern company for a piece of land south of those yards.

YEAR MORATORIUM FAVORED BY MEAD

3-Year Relief Plan Hit By Commissioner In Senate Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. (AP)—Reclamation Commissioner Elwood Mead today endorsed before the senate irrigation committee the idea of a one-year moratorium on irrigation districts' debts to the government, but opposed extending it three years.

Mead was testifying on bills by Chairman Thomas (R. Idaho) and Senator Carey (R. Wyo.) seeking relief for the districts unable to pay.

The Thomas bill provides for a three-year blanket moratorium. Carey's would permit a 50 per cent reduction in payments for a like period.

The proposal of the Wyoming senator, he explained today, is in line with recent resolutions adopted by the irrigation districts at a meeting in Salt Lake City. The 50 per cent reduction would be in the gross charges, rather than in the net.

Battle Under Way to Throw Out Indictments in Honor Murder Case in Honolulu

HONOLULU, Jan. 27. (AP)—A motion to quash the second degree murder indictment against Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three navy men accused of slaying a suspected woman attacker was filed here today by defense attorneys who charged the grand jury had been coerced in its activities by Circuit Judge A. M. Cristy.

The motion charge Judge Cristy had refused to accept a report from the investigating body last Friday in which "no bills" were voted against Mrs. Fortescue, Lieutenant Thomas H. Meade and two navy enlisted men, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Joffe.

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 27. (AP)—The socially prominent wife of a famous American soldier, her son-in-law, a navy officer, and two enlisted men were named in belated indictments charging second degree murder returned yesterday.

Those named in the true bills, voted by the Oahu grand jury, were:

Her daughter, Mrs. Thalia Masie, was attacked by five men in the Ala Moana district last September and all of them escaped punishment after their first trial.

SIX HOUR DAY ON RAILROADS STUDIED

The vote was 191 to 1. Representative Blanton (D. Texas) voted against it.

House sponsors of the investigation said they understood the house resolution would be substituted for the senate measure in the latter chamber.
