LET US LOOK NOW AT JAPAN

JAPAN's approximate total area is 35,000,000 acres, of which roughly one-sixth is tillable. Her population is about 65 millions, which has to be taken care of on some 15,000,000 tillable acres.

STANDING OUT BY THEMSELVES

with nothing to compare them to, these figures don't mean much. So let's make some comparisons with Oregon, reducing the figures to acres in order to make them more understandable.

MENTAL AND PHYSICAL BALANCE

J. R. WILLIAMS

There - watch this! That's what you call balance - the bull o' the woods has a strong desire to ketch that crane man asleep - but he also has a strong desire not to go up the dizzy heights of that rickety ladder. Now see which wins, anger or fear.

A well balanced mind is one that gets mad enough to fight, but has enough fear of a black eye not to fight - I think he's well balanced.
