

U. S., BRITISH DRAW UP FIVE POINT SCHEME

to Tokyo and Nanking which Mr. Thomas read was:

(1) That all acts of violence and preparations for hostilities shall be brought to an end.

(2) That in the Shanghai area both sides shall withdraw their troops as further protection to the international settlement, and a neutral zone shall be arranged.

(3) That negotiations shall begin immediately to settle the dispute.

The American and British governments, said Mr. Thomas, would follow their lead, but in any event the two English-speaking nations are determined to stop the fighting and to bring about a settlement under the terms and in the spirit of the Kellogg pact.

War Assailed

"War—in everything but name is in progress," said Mr. Thomas. "Shanghai has been the scene of conflict in which artillery and airplanes have taken part to such a state of affairs that the members of this league cannot be indifferent. If we allow it to go on, the league covenant and kindred international treaties must inevitably lose the confidence of the world."

"It is not without significance to the league members that the government of the United States holds an identical view of the situation in all the efforts of peace which the council has made in the past four months."

The armies of both belligerents must settle, he asserted, and a neutral zone must be organized under British and American supervision.

The British representative spoke with tremendous emphasis, and by his side, listening quietly, sat Naotake Sato, the Japanese representative, pouring over a booklet of the league covenant.

Near the council table sat Mr. Mary Emma Woolley and the other American delegates to the disarmament conference. There was a crowd of tense spectators.

Germans May Act

Mr. Thomas finished, the German delegate said he was informing his government of the developments. "I am sure," he said, "that the council for China, and then Sato rose to reply."

Mr. Thomas lit his pipe and turned sideways in his chair to regard his brown notebook.

The Japanese severely expressed satisfaction at the "important declarations" of the great powers and read a long statement explaining that the bombardment of Nanking was provoked by a Chinese attack on Japanese blue-jackets.

Sir Eric Drummond, the league commissioner of observers, composed of neutral diplomatic representatives on the spot would meet today at Shanghai.

Then Andre Tardieu, French minister of war, who was chairman of this meeting adjourned the session so that the members could go across town and open the disarmament conference.

MERCURY HITS EIGHT BELOW EARLY TUESDAY

Sunday night, according to statistics.

The following road report was issued today by the chamber of commerce:

All highways in the Klamath Falls district are open, however they are slippery and utmost care must be exercised in driving over them. Chains are essential. Travel is more advisable during daylight hours.

Snow conditions prevail to some distance beyond Bend on the Dallas-California highway and on the Wapinitia highway. The Pacific highway is icy with some snow. The Siskiyou are plowed and in fair shape.

The Lakeview-Alitara road and the Fremont highway are quite passable. The road from Alitara to Susanville is closed. The Alitara-Redding road is open.

The Klamath Falls-Weed road is open. Snow will also be encountered on this route and chains are advised.

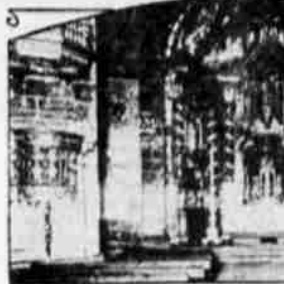

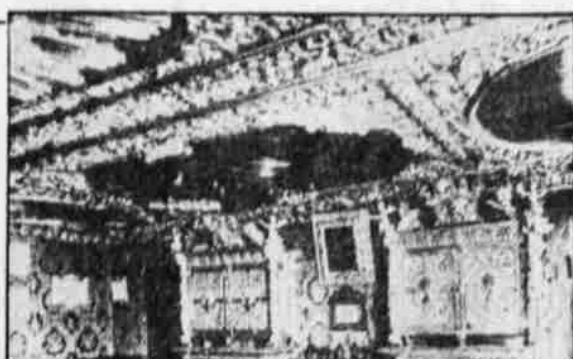

The highway plowed out beyond Fort Klamath on the Crater Lake route as far as the new ski jump. Practice is underway for the annual races and jumps on February 21.

Senior Forest Ranger Jesse G. C. Egan Tuesday reported on depths of snow in a number of places in Klamath county, giving the following figures: Pelican ranger station, 36 inches; Cherry Creek, 50 inches; Seven Mile ranger station, 78 inches; Ski jump north of Fort Klamath, 72 inches; Lakeview Woods on January 18, 50 inches.

"The ground is not frozen in any of these places, which means that the moisture will go into the ground, causing the run-off to be gradual and bringing back many of the springs and streams in the hills which have dried up during the last few years due to the shortage of snowfall in winter months."

Rich Treasures Lost By Jesuits As Spain Banishes Historic Catholic Order

Official banishment of the Jesuits from Spain—deplored as "a real outrage" by Pope Pius XI—may bring to an end the powerful influence which the order has exerted on Spanish affairs for many centuries. Property of the order like the famous Sanctuary at St. Ignacio, shown below, is to be confiscated by the Madrid government, and the gold ornamentation of the Chapel of St. Ignacio, upper right, and the magnificent panels and carvings of the Sacristy, left center, are valued at millions of dollars. Salaverría's painting of St. Ignacio, creator of the order, is reproduced upper left; and Sembrarista of the Jesuit Convent, Jesus de Loyola, who will be driven from Spain, are pictured right, center.

In the hills, which means good pasture next spring and summer, bringing about better range for stock, meaning more fat cattle and sheep, bringing better times for stockmen, ranchers and all concerned. Sufficient moisture in the mountains will bring better times for everyone. There is plenty of snow in the high hills now and still another month remains in which snow may fall, Elkan stated.

A. L. Swanberg, at the Pelican ranger station, writes Elkan that there was three feet of snow there January 30, and that it was still snowing. Roads are closed and banks along the road are too high for a grader to be used in clearing them. He stated that the Lake of the Woods caretaker came to the ranger station on January 18 and reported 56 inches of snow at the lake, and that by now there must be at least six feet of snow at Lake of the Woods.

PORTLAND, Feb. 2. (AP)—Winter tightened its cold grip on the Pacific northwest today, sending temperatures down to below zero in several cities. The present cold spell, the most severe of the season, was expected by the weather bureau to continue for a day or two longer.

Spokane had a low of 6 degrees below zero. At Umatilla it was 2 below. Pasco had 2 below, and at Eugene, Wash., the minimum was 4 below.

Other minimum temperatures included Portland 23, Tacoma 4, Medford 18, Roseburg 30, Hood River 5, The Dalles 5, Baker 10, Meacham 6, Marshfield 24, Seaside 22, Walla Walla 12, Wolf Creek 16, Eugene 20, Albany 25, Salem 19.

Rain and snow was predicted for the western part of the state late tonight or Wednesday. The only snow flurries reported to the weather bureau at 3 a. m. today were between Boise and Pasco.

Fort Yukon, Alaska, and Prince Albert, Sask., were the coldest spots on the entire weather map last night with minimum temperatures of 30 degrees below zero.

measure by Senator Bingham which is under consideration. Woodcock said "the technical efficiency of the prohibition bureau has been steadily increasing" since he became its director in July, 1930.

The percentage of convictions, he said, is higher than for other federal law violations.

Woodcock quoted figures for pre-prohibition years and said they showed that "in a free market the ability to get beer did not decrease the desire to buy spirits."

Bingham asked Woodcock whether there are not more unlawful saloons in existence now than there were lawful ones before prohibition.

"It is a matter of opinion, Senator," Woodcock replied. "My own opinion is that in the vast areas of the country, that isn't so, or even approximately so."

"Is it not true that temperance was steadily increasing before prohibition?" Bingham asked.

"The figures which I have introduced show the opposite," Woodcock replied. "They show the per capita consumption was increasing."

Arnold the $2000, which the attorney put in his pocket. Arnold then turned, the witness testified, and remarked that "I'll have to go back and say goodbye to the boys." A moment or two later Arnold rejoined Shrader, he said.

PORTLAND, Feb. 2. (AP)—J. G. Arnold, attorney here who was mentioned in testimony in the Foshay trial at Minneapolis Monday, as having been given $2000 to obtain a permit to sell Foshay securities in Oregon, today declared "the story of the $2000 is all bunk."

The Cyclo-Stormograph at Underwood's pharmacy shows that the barometric pressure is still on the upward trend. If this continues we may expect clear skies tomorrow.

The Tyco recording thermometer registered maximum and minimum temperatures today as follows:

The Japanese claimed the artillery bombardment was in anticipation of a big Chinese offensive to be launched within 48 hours. About 450 Japanese blue-jackets were landed during the day, bringing the Japanese landing force to nearly 5000 men.

Meantime, the international settlement garrison had finished its sandbag outposts and went ahead strengthening the barbed wire barriers in the streets.

Along the boundaries were Americans, British, French and Italians under steel helmets, standing side by side, to repulse any attack.

Every street was barricaded and guarded, but thousands of refugees poured through the narrow apertures in the barbed wire. Police estimated that more than 50,000 had swarmed into the settlement since the fighting in Chapel began.

Newcomers Searched
All the newcomers were searched for weapons, and the streets were jammed, despite the fact that all the stores were closed.

Women were enrolling by the score in a motor corps such as served the allies in the world war, and all the men civilians were volunteering for an auxiliary defense unit. More than 3000 foreign residents have been thus enrolled.

The authorities said there was still food in sufficient quantities for present purposes within the settlement.

The British arm of the settlement garrison strung outposts well into Chinese territory, paralleling the western boundary of the settlement. They did this to protect extensive foreign property in that area.

It was much the same in the northern area of the settlement, where United States marines were on patrol. Machine guns were ready behind sandbag barricades, but the American position was more delicate than that of the other foreign troops.

Only the narrow Szechow creek separated the American patrol area from the Chapel battlefield, and the chief danger was that retreating Chinese troops might be pushed up against the American line into the U-shaped curvature of the creek, where they might quite possibly be trapped.

patrol within the American area, guarding cotton mills there with machine guns, and should the fighting grow hot there was a menace in the possibility of firing between Japanese patrols and Chinese troops across the American defense line.

Southern Pacific To Correct Plans

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.

Successful in proceedings designed to test legality of the Pacific Motor Transport company, a subsidiary employed in pickup and delivery service, Southern Pacific company today moved to correct minor features of operation in the transport concern found objectionable by the California railroad commission.

W. A. Worthington, vice president of the railroad, announced intention of Southern Pacific and related interests to "as promptly as possible" take such steps as are necessary to adjust rate matters suggested by the commission.

STOCKS IN QUIET REACTION TUESDAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—The stock market turned quietly reactionary today, as the rail shares slid back 1 to 4 points and similar losses appeared in other sections of the list.

Speculative efforts to put forward "war stocks" were squelched.

The turnover was about 1,200,000 shares.

Losses of 2 to 4 points appeared in such issues as American Gas, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Union Pacific, and Santa Fe. One-point losses were numerous in the rails and other groups.

There was a brief intermission after Henderson had spoken, and the conference resumed to appoint three committees, one of them on rules and procedure, another on credentials and a third on petitions from laymen's organizations.

Dr. Mary Emma Woolley, American delegate, is a member of the last named.

Henderson proposed a special meeting for next Saturday to receive these petitions, and the conference then adjourned until tomorrow.

Randall Bargert and W. E. Berry appeared in a rapid repartee whose significance need not be repeated here. It probably would have been better if Doris Jones, the pretty stenographer, had been able to keep Bargert out of Berry's office.

The run of shorts ended with a Dutch twosome featuring A. G. Geboring and Elmer Halsiger, delightfully touched off with the presentation of a bouquet of carrots.

Walter Sheets played a medley of popular songs, and a girl sextet, directed by Madge Hampton, sang "Love's a Merchant," and appeared again advantageously in the finale with Donald Summers, eccentric dancer, and Pat Smith, a small trap drummer.

Dewey Powell was master of ceremonies in the night club presentation of S. V. Pickett's orchestra.

A moving picture program smooch of shorts, each in itself entertaining, rounded out the versatile performance.

All in all, it was well above the usual run of local talent entertainment. Johnny Houston reports that tonight unnecessary delays will be eliminated. There long intervals between acts have no place in such entertainment where most of the amateurishness has been eliminated. Tonight's show should be a knock-out.—M. E.

of Rio Vista. All mail aboard was destroyed.

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 2. (AP)—The burned wreckage of the plane of John W. Sharpnack, United air lines pilot, was located seven miles north of Rio Vista, in the Sacramento valley of California, air line officials reported here today.

Information here said searchers had been unable to reach the wreckage and the fate of the pilot, a veteran of the Boeing division of the United air lines, had not been determined.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2. (AP)—Ninth corps area headquarters of the United States army here received word from Sequoia National Park today that Lieutenant William A. Cooke, Jr., one of two army fliers missing since yesterday, had been found in the park alive and well except for exposure to the elements all night.

The flier had "bailed out" with his parachute about 11 a. m. yesterday when the weather became bad, he said.
