

STATE LIQUOR STORES OPEN FEBRUARY 10

The week, both at Portland and at Salem.

The seventeen cities which will have liquor stores were announced by George Sammis, administrator, each to have one store with the exception of Portland which will have two at the outset and possibly two more.

The report by the administrator for simultaneous opening of stores and agencies was adopted unanimously by the three commissioners, and Chairman George L. McLerran stated the organization work would continue despite the pending suit on the constitutionality of the Knox bill under which such operation was authorized.

Liquor stocks are already moving to the state, at least three carloads and they will be here within two weeks, it was announced.

No agencies for the sale of hard liquor will be established in communities which oppose the sale of liquor and no agent will be authorized without recommendation of the city council, the chamber of commerce and the district attorney.

Portland, Salem First Sammis stated it may be possible to open three or four stores just prior to the opening date, but that within a week of February 10 all would be in operation.

The opening of the stores simultaneously was recommended in fairness to all communities, the commission stating that liquor would be obtainable in every part of the state at virtually the same time.

While no applications for state stores have been received, Sammis reported, it was believed these cities took it for granted they would be established.

Many applications have been received for agencies, but the complete list awaited contact with every community to make sure none were placed where the community did not desire an agency.

ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY ISSUE AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT

Call by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress for ratification of the long-debated St. Lawrence waterway treaty is expected to result in a bitter and lengthy battle. Proponents declare that great savings will result in freight and power rates. The map shows the vast task involved in development of the St. Lawrence River from Montreal to Lake Ontario, a 180-mile stretch. The picture upper left shows two giant hydro-electric plants on opposite sides of the Niagara River, one in the U. S. and the other in Canada. Despite their proximity, consumers on the American side pay twice as much for power as do patrons of the plant on the Canadian side. At lower right are shown the three huge twin locks at Thorold, Ont., by means of which vessels now pass each other on their way up and down between Lakes Ontario and Erie in Canada's new Welland ship canal, one of the links in the proposed waterway.

Soviet Envoy Visits State Department

It's one of his first official calls as first Soviet Ambassador to the United States. And that's why Alexander A. Troyanovsky (left) was wreathed in smiles when this picture was taken as he called on Acting Secretary of State William Phillips in Washington.

of such importance that I prefer to ask the congress by specific enactment to vest in the United States government title to all supplies of American-owned monetary gold, with provision for the payment therefor in gold certificates.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13. (UP)—The first witness to testify against Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynkoop in her trial on charges of murdering her daughter-in-law, Rheta, will be her closest friend, Miss Edith Hennessey, high school teacher, with whom Dr. Wynkoop chatted of Eugene O'Neill's play, "Strange Interlude" on the evening Rheta's body was discovered, will be called Monday by Assistant State Attorney Charles S. Dougherty as his first witness.

Plane Foils Milk Strikers After Train Is Looted

Milk strike pickets who defied a federal injunction to shut off Chicago's milk supply were foiled when one producer employed the big plane shown in the top photo to transport milk from Kankakee, Ill., to Chicago airport, where the ship is shown being unloaded under police guard. Plane transportation was resorted to after pickets halted, burned and upset inbound milk trucks and, near Burlington, Wis., crippled a Soo Line train from Wisconsin dairy farms and destroyed 200,000 gallons of milk by opening tank car faucets and dumping cans from box cars. The lower photo shows the emptied cans dumped along the right of way.

REVALUATION FOR DOLLAR F. R.'S AIM

the nation's supply of gold hereafter would be held in the treasury as a reserve and basis for the country's currency. Ultimately he looks for permanent stabilization of the dollar in relation to the British pound and the French franc. Meanwhile he will be working toward a definite and permanent devaluation of the dollar. In the talk with newspapermen, the president restated that the objective of his monetary program is to bring the purchasing power of the dollar back to the level at which the average debts of the country were incurred so that these debts may be paid off with a dollar equal in value to that at which the debt was incurred.

done if the treasury has all the gold. Therefore, if the gold content of the dollar is cut by 50 per cent, the gold held by the treasury will be worth twice as much in dollars.

It was made plain at the White House that this profit does not represent a base of currency. Mr. Roosevelt also made it clear that the program did not mean a resort to greenback currency, and said that the object of authority to buy government securities out of the stabilization fund was simply to safeguard the price of these securities against any ulterior depreciation move by the private holders of the securities.

The president believes that the gold buying policy of the government, which he said has resulted in huge purchases, is largely responsible for the recovery in commodity prices following the drop of last September and October. Another result of the program, he feels, has been to permit foreign sales of American export surpluses such as cotton and copper. Mr. Roosevelt told congress he felt that he had the authority to take title to the gold supply of the nation, but "this is a step this very thing, and do it handsomely. A few years ago, only the very rich knew anything about this type of costume which has such an intimate aspect to it. It's a cross between a ravishing gown and an irresistible negligee. In fact, the best of them combine the most precious characteristics of both.

Such a handsome contribution to any busy woman's life is a monk's gown of brown luscious washable heavy crepe, shot with silver in broken checks. Its lines are classical, with long, flowing sleeves that make your hands look little and helpless, and the monk's collar, high in front, just naturally makes you hold your head high and hopefully. At the back, instead of a very low, backless cut as so many things have this winter, this gown has a cowl neckline, draped so it actually looks a little like those old-fashioned "hood" backs that could be drawn up over the head for protection. The gown trails all around. You have to kick it a bit to walk, but that gives you a lady-feeling that every woman should have once in a while. And about the waistline is a handsome silver cord which crosses in the back, comes to the front again to knot and then hangs with handsome silver fringes about six inches long. Whether this is the exact gown you want or not, just think about it. It's the type every woman needs. It brings out in her that soft, feminine, helpless quality that women—even the most successful, would do well to cultivate in this new year 1934.

Only ten years old ... Yet She'll Soon Be Wearing Glasses for the Rest of Her Life

EYEGLASSES are a wonderful aid to vision, but they are for DEFECTIVE vision; and defective vision is a serious handicap that is seldom overcome... You can postpone the time when it will be necessary for YOUR children to wear them if you will give as much care and thought to their eyes as you would to any other phase of their health and well being. Says an editorial in Safety Engineering: "Poor lighting in the home and lack of supervision of the manner in which children misuse their eyes in the home... are largely responsible for the fact that one out of three pupils leaving our elementary schools have defective vision in varying degrees." If you have children in your home, watch their eyes. They seldom realize the damage they are doing to their eyes by straining them. YOURS is the responsibility. Poor vision is usually caused by straining the eyes when reading and studying, and most eyestrain is caused by bad lighting. This can easily be remedied.

How to Improve Your Lighting

EVERY time you turn on a light, you are purchasing lighting service. The difference between good and bad lighting amounts to only a few cents a day at the most in the average home. However, in order to secure good lighting, proper fixtures and lamps are necessary. Our one purpose is to give you the greatest possible benefit from the electric service you pay for. We are prepared to help you with your lighting problems. Why not phone for this service today or see the new type fixtures on sale at your dealers?
