

MEDFORD GLEE CLUB PRESENTS LOCAL BENEFIT

and received with delight. It was typically modern, with a predominating American influence—If, as some artists claim, America's own music lies in its "dark" songs—for fully half of the numbers were purely negro, and sung with the swing, the resonance and sadness, rollicking glee characterizing the negro race.

The individual hit of the evening's performance, however, was James Stevens, himself, who stood with his back to the audience and dominated the Glee Club with the living music of his hands and body. We had heard that Mr. Stevens did not sing at these concerts, but Tuesday night he was there on the program for a solo, "I Love Life," by Manna Zucca. His powerful dramatic voice drew encore after encore, and the audience was treated to "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime," "Song of the Flea," and "On the Road to Mandalay," the latter by special request of Harry W. Poole.

Opening Weird
The playing of the gifted and imperturbable Sebastian Apollo was also one of the highlights of the program. His "Valse Chromatique" by Godard, showed masterly technique that drew an encore, his own interpretation of "Music Box," Apollo accompanied the group in all of its numbers except "Aframerica," a special potpourri of negro spirituals arranged by Almus Pruitt, one of the Glee Club members who played his own arrangements.

The weird, even bizarre beginning of this group—stage and house dark—tom toms beating—men's voices raised in strange guttural cries—was a most effective of theatrical treats. M. E. Olson was featured in "Crucifixion," one of the imported melodies and his clear tenor drew out the haunting melody perfectly.

Not all of the program was negro, but the remainder was entirely modern in choice and rendering. "Sylvia," by Oley Speaks, "Stenka Razin—a Cossack Ballad," arranged by McMillan, and James Stevens' initial solo "I Love Life," were calculated to appeal to the popular taste, and they did. The oldest melodies were from near-modern scores, "Dear Land of Home," from Finlandia, "Heldberg Stein Song," from Prince of Pilsen, and "Hunting Chorus and Crow Song," from Robin Hood. In this last, George Packham's rich bass took the solo part, and the audience demanded that he encore the song.

Tenor Sings
Just before the end of the program, Fletcher Fish, tenor sang "This is a Great Country," extolling the virtues of the Klamath country, with assistance in the chorus from the Glee Club. Words to the song were composed by Dr. H. N. Butler, a member of the group, and ended with an invitation to Medford's "Diamond Jubilee" next June.

As a part of the good-fellowship evidenced throughout, short speeches were made by Klamath Falls men between numbers. Frank Jenkins acted as master of ceremonies, then having been introduced by John H. Houston, and himself presented to the audience Mayor Willis E. Mahoney, representing the city; George Canning speaking for the Klamath chamber of commerce; and Paul T. Jackson, representing, as he himself declared, "the average men." The program was broadcast over KFJL.

Band Will Visit County Infirmary

The high school band will visit the county infirmary, Thursday morning, to play for the inmates as a special Washington birthday treat.

A. G. Morrison, infirmary superintendent, said Wednesday that the interest in the fraternal and religious workers in the infirmary and its occupants, is warmly appreciated.

Secret Wedding Isn't Secret Long

A secret is just something for everybody to know in Hollywood as Pat Peterson, English actress, and Charles Boyer, actor, ruefully will admit. They eloped from Hollywood to Yuma, Ariz., and planned to keep it hushed for a month. But the little bird circled the news and so they've confessed. They are shown here, smiling for the photographer, at the Hollywood home of John McCormack, which they have leased.

NRA Criticism Invited From All Over U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (UP) Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson last night invited the nation to a "field day of criticism" of NRA from which, he said, the administration hoped to correct "all of the errors for the cure of every just complaint."

He called upon all persons who feel that they have evidence of injustices under codes to present their complaints, in person or in writing, at the "field day," February 27, a week from today. This will be a prelude to conferences or code authorities starting March 5 at which all codes will be opened for revision. Whatever mistakes and injustices have crept into codes, Johnson said in an address to the nation, will be corrected "in a gold fish bowl, under the full vision of the entire American people." The program, he said, is without precedent.

"First—No great governmental administration ever voluntarily exposed itself to a general public review; and
"Second—Neither here nor in any other country has it ever been possible to hold a responsible and representative industrial and economic congress—merely of commentators—of practically the whole of industry and commerce in the United States acting in partnership with, and under the ultimate control of, the government itself."

Man Captured At Corvallis

CORVALLIS, Ore., Feb. 21. (UP)—P. H. Burnett, alias Phil King, said to be the son of a well-to-do family, was captured today in a lonely cabin at the foot of Table mountain, west of here, as latest chapter in a national manhunt extending over two years.

CHAMBER GROUP MEETS SATURDAY

The agricultural committee of the Klamath county chamber of commerce will meet at the county agent's office Saturday morning to discuss the feasibility of re-flooding Lower Klamath lake for the re-establishment of a game refuge there. Reports from Washington indicate increasing interest in the possibilities of this project. Senator McNary, in a telegram received here Wednesday, stated that the president is now considering the program of game refuges, and that the committee on wild life restoration has considerable information already at hand with regard to the Lower Klamath situation.

19 Involved In Alleged Swindle Ring at Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 21. (UP) The Alameda county grand jury tonight indicted 19 persons allegedly involved in a widespread "chick insurance racket." The action followed the charge of District Attorney Earl Warren that E. Forrest Mitchell, state insurance commissioner, had evaded service of a subpoena requiring him to testify before the grand jury in the cases. Warren said that further indictments are expected. He said that all evidence will be turned over to the federal government for possible charges of illegal use of the mails. Sixteen of the indictments were secret. Three made public named Harry Kramer, E. J. Knotts and Harry Blankenstein, in custody here. Knotts and Kramer were arrested at Reno recently after a police raid on their luxurious offices in San Francisco.

Washington Liquor Control Challenged

OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 21. (UP)—Suits were on file in Thurston county superior court yesterday on behalf of state commercial interests charging that the Steele liquor law is unconstitutional on 17 counts.

Included in legal counsel for plaintiffs were two former state supreme court judges, Henry E. T. Herman of Spokane and William O. Askren of Seattle. The suit asked the court to restrain the board from collecting taxes on liquor, selling liquor bonds and in general to rule the entire act void.

One of the major points cited in the suit said the act was unconstitutional because it infringes on individual rights of the people. The Steele liquor law sets up the state in the liquor business, transactions to be carried on through state-owned dispensaries.

Americans, it is predicted, will drink 440,000,000 gallons of beer this year. That's encouraging for the pretzel business.

GEORGE HILLIS EXPLAINS DEAL FOR MACHINE

The posting machine story that has played a part in courthouse hostilities in the past few weeks, came to the fore again Wednesday when George Hillis, of the Oregon Equipment company, made a statement explaining the sale of the machine to the county.

Hillis said: "My connection with the sale of the posting machine to Klamath county has been mentioned so often that I feel a few words of explanation to be in order. I bought this machine from Albert Williams, who is not a public official. The machine was repaired and overhauled and changed over to do the work required, and placed in the courthouse, in the county clerk's office on trial. After some time I accompanied the county clerk before the court, with a request that they buy the machine, which was done, the price being $650.00. I made a profit on it of course, and the county got a real bargain. The machine is giving satisfactory service, and no one has ever claimed that it is not worth the price paid for it."

Other than Hillis' statement, all was quiet on the courthouse front Wednesday, in contrast to the two previous days when County Commissioner C. R. Williams made a statement and County Clerk Mae K. Short retaliated.

State Irrigation District Finance Aided by Court

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 21. (UP)—Way for Oregon irrigation districts to refinance themselves with federal aid was opened today after the supreme court ordered the state treasurer to cancel approximately $514,000 in certificates of indebtedness, issued by the Warm Springs Irrigation district.

The opinion was written by Judge Bailey. It probably will result in districts freeing themselves from heavy debts. "There is nothing in the constitution," the court declared, "to our knowledge, which would prohibit legislature from cancelling or authorizing cancellation of such evidences of indebtedness . . . upon the facts as they appear in the alternative writ . . . the state treasurer should have . . . cancelled the certificates." Under this decision the districts may apply to the federal government for aid in financial organization.

Treasury Issue Over Subscribed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (UP)—The treasury announcer yesterday that it had accepted $347,022,400 in subscriptions for two bond issues dated February 19, placed on the market as a part of the $10,000,000,000 winter spring financing program. This is $47,022,400 above the amount originally planned. The issue was oversubscribed four and a half times, subscriptions amounting to $3,818,164,400. The New York federal reserve district alone offered to buy more than the total issue.

Socialist Leader Attacks NRA Plan

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 21. (UP)—NRA has brought improvement to the nation, but in the of that is a failure, according to Norman Thomas, scholar, perennial socialist candidate for president. "The NRA has lost its momentum," Thomas said today as he sat in his hotel room, resting before giving an address.

"Let us say that we are down in the pit. Let us go up the steps a short distance, and then stop. You are better off than you were before—but you are still in the pit."

Doctors Give Creosote For Chest Colds

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on. Creosolium with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble. Creosolium is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take. Your own druggist guarantees Creosolium by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creosolium as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creosolium on hand for instant use. (adv.)

An Economical Car

built for those who want the power and pick-up of a V-8

AT normal touring speed, test runs show that the Ford V-8 for 1934 will give 20 miles to the gallon. It is actually less expensive to operate than most cars with fewer cylinders. Here are some of the reasons.

- 1. The Ford V-8 is a high-compression motor—the type that uses fuel most efficiently.
- 2. The Ford V-8 has aluminum cylinder heads—which means that, although it is a high-compression motor, it can use regular medium-priced gasoline.
- 3. The Ford V-8 has less weight per horse power than any car we know of.
- 4. The Ford V-8 has dual manifolds and dual carburetion. You utilize every drop of gasoline.
- 5. The Ford V-8 has automatic engine temperature control. The engine operates at correct temperature for maximum gasoline mileage.

These engineering features, which make for economy, also help to increase Ford performance. That's why we say, before you buy any car at any price drive the Ford V-8 for 1934.
