President Re-opens Drive for Improved Working Conditions

ed in evasions of the spirit if not the letter of the law," but x x x we have arrived at the time for taking stock for correcting manifest errors, for rooting out demonstrated evils x x x.

Dictatorship Scooped

"We can not tolerate actions which are clearly monopolistic, which wink at unfair trade practices, which fail to give to labor free choice of their representatives of which are otherwise hostile to the public interest." The president congratulated industry on its understanding of the recovery program's problems. He described himself "a little amused and perhaps at times a little saddened" by writers and speakers who proclaim the administration has committed the country to communism or fascism and dictatorship.

Critics Answered His speech contained also one direct answer to criticism: "There are some people, of course, who do not think things through; as, for example, the man who complained in one of yesterday morning's papers that criticism was held to be unpatriotic." "Let me put the case so clearly that even this type will understand. If we admit that the government has a specific problem to solve and undertakes to do it in a specific way, the critic is unpatriotic who contemplates the thing loudly proclaiming that that way that method is no good; that it won't work; that it is wrong to do this. This critic contributes nothing—he is not constructive; he is unpatriotic because he attempts to destroy without even suggesting a way to build up."

Honest Critics Welcomed

"On the other hand the critic is patriotic whether he be a business man, a worker, a farmer or a politician," he says. "I don't like the methods you are using to solve the problem; I believe it would be far better if we were to use the following alternate method, and thereupon outline for the benefit of his neighbor and his government a helpful proposal." "Then, he added, the "average American is doing splendid service by coming back at the capricious critic and saying to him, "well old man, and what do you suggest?" "One thing is very certain," he declared, "we are not going back either to the old conditions or to the old methods."

Democracy Upheld

The president said that NRA and the entire new deal are fundamentally democratic, conceived for the greatest good of the greatest number. Mr. Roosevelt said the great majority of complaints assembled by NRA was not directed against the act or the codes "but at the errors and omissions in what has been done under codes." In conclusion, the president told of a telegram from Francis M. Law, president of the American Bankers Association, which said the national banking structure was "sound and liquid." There is a definite call, said the message, "for a most sympathetic attitude toward legitimate credit."

Roosevelt Applauded

Thereupon, Mr. Roosevelt departed from his prepared text to say: "If the banks come along, my friends, we'll have the three great elements in American life working together, industry, agriculture and banks, and then we can't stop." The president was vigorously applauded at this point, as he had been repeatedly. Because the number of industrialists attending was so large that two overflow halls had been pressed into service, the chief executive accompanied by Hugh S. Johnson went from Constitution Hall to the other gathering to speak a word directly to those who had heard his address only through an amplifier.

Speech Long One

"I am glad to greet you," the president said to his second audience. He added that he did not know whether his listeners had heard his address in the main assembly room "but I'll tell you a secret. It is the longest speech I have made in all the past year. I said what I believe."

He expressed the belief that "these meetings in Washington where we can be frank and call each other by right names" would do much toward aiding recovery.

SKI ARTISTS TRY HILL AT CRATER LAKE

What is believed to be one of the largest ski hills in the northwest, if not in the country, is being prepared for use in the huge winter sports carnival at Government Camp, Crater lake park, March 18.

Representatives of Bend, Klamath and Medford organizations sponsoring the snow sports show, gathered at the park Sunday, and saw Magnus Hansen, class A ski jumper, try out the natural hill to be used for the ski event. Hansen jumped 60 or 70 feet without effort, and it is believed the hill will permit jumps up to at least 200 feet when shapened. Class A jumpers are expected to be on hand for competition March 18 from Seattle, Portland, Cle Elum, Leavenworth, Wash., Vancouver, B. C., Mt. Hood, Mt. Lassen Mt. Shasta Snowmen. Action Urged

"We wish also to bring to the attention of the court that part of the county fair board funds have been kept on deposit and drawn on by check in the two counties. The law specifically states that county fair board funds shall be drawn by warrant and kept on deposit with the county treasurer. The law in section 18-308 covers this point. "We respectfully request that the county court take such action as would seem to remedy this situation immediately."

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, March 5. (AP)—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Wool quotations in Boston were quite firm even though trade has been tight for several weeks. Some new business on goods was reported to have been placed recently, but it was understood a number of mills that received the orders were covered on raw wool or tops and yarns needed in filling these orders. Estimated receipts of domestic wool at Boston, reported to the Boston grain and flour exchange during week ending March 3 amounted to 4,301,400 pounds compared with 244,300 during the previous week.

Bronchial Irritations Need Creosote

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, cold and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on. Creosolium with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble. Creosolium is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take. Your own druggist guarantees Creosolium by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creosolium as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creosolium on hand for instant use. (Adv.)

charged the state for the store space in the Oregon building in Portland. The investigation will be made, State Treasurer Rufus C. Holman endorsing the suggestion.

In the report of the flax industry as given by Elzing, it was stated the activity has been going on at the penitentiary for 18 years. He stated that for the three years from September, 1927, to October, 1930, a loss of $218,783 was recorded. For the next eight months until May 31, 1931, an additional loss of $91,730 was recorded "covering a time of the most favorable prices in the history of the industry, and at a time during which tremendous profits should have been made."

An additional deficit was shown from that time until July 1, 1933, of only $19,491 which he said was due to a "huge decline in inventory values and to interest charges against the industry," and which in reality showed a surplus for those years. His report stated the inventory of stock on hand February 1931, was $325,282 which was reduced during the past three years to $147,173. The good record, he said, was made possible by the "tremendous lowering of operating and payroll costs by the present management, and a sane salary program."

For the first time in many years the state legislature in 1933 was not asked to make an appropriation for the flax industry, Elzing continued. The balance on hand was increased from $504 on February, 1931, to $170,082 at the present time.

MEIER LEAVES UNCERTAINTY IN POLITICS

wardship as governor of the state of Oregon.

PORTLAND, Ore., March 5. (UP)—Governor Julius L. Meier stepped before a microphone Saturday and "radioed" to Oregonians accomplishments of his administration. The address was taken by observers to be the opening wedge of his campaign for re-election, although to date, the governor has refused to state definitely whether he will be a candidate. Power Issue Stressed The governor delved principally on the power issue, and his efforts to live up to his George W. Joseph platform pledges. "Since my election to the Joseph platform three years ago, it is gratifying indeed to be able to announce that every pledge thereof has been redeemed," the governor said.

As a final refutation of the claim that he had failed to live up to the Joseph platform, Meier cited the part his administration played in securing Bonneville dam for Oregon. "I cooperated wherever possible with United States Senator McNary in securing Bonneville dam which I consider the opening hurdle for development of abundant cheap power on the Columbia," the governor reminded. "I also recommended the creation of a commission to cooperate with the government in development of Bonneville. I appeared before the army engineers in Washington in 1932 and pleaded for federal development of the Columbia."

Bids for Republicans

Failure of Governor Meier to mention Congressman Martin as well as Senator McNary in connection with Bonneville dam, was seen as a bid for the support of regular republicans should he seek re-election. But the governor pointed out that the fight for "cheap power" had only begun. "We must press with all possible aggressiveness our demand for ample federal funds to make the Bonneville dam a project of first magnitude, and also to cooperate wherever necessary in its development," the governor said.

"Carrying out still further the Joseph policies," the governor said, "the old public service commission was abolished by the legislature on my recommendation, substituting the single public utilities commissioner."

Indiana Orders 3 Investigations Into Jail Break

to have been tried for slaying Policeman Patrick O'Malley in an East Chicago, Ind., bank holdup. The Lake county board of commissioners was called to meet in special session today to consider the escape. Reports were current that Sheriff Holley's resignation would be demanded. She has said, however, that she will not quit.

In Ohio, where Dillinger's men liberated the gang leader from the Lima jail last October, killing Sheriff Jess Barber, the Indiana authorities were taken to task by Ohio's attorney general, John W. Bricker. He charged that "oligararchy, corruption of public officials or ignorance permitted Dillinger to escape." "The Dillinger escape," he said, "is additional evidence of the fact that it is not more criminal laws that we need, but public officials possessed of the courage, character, intelligence and ability to enforce the laws." Attorney General Philip Lutz of Indiana expressed surprise "that the Lake county officials let Dillinger get away," but Sheriff Holley, reported on the verge of a nervous breakdown, defended the dozen or more guards whom Dillinger herded into a cell with the aid of a self-carried wooden pistol, made of a broomstick, a razor handle and two blades. "I'd have done the same thing," he said, "if someone had put a gun at my back."

Hunt Spreads

The hunt for the desperado spread today in all directions. The highways of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Missouri were carefully watched for Dillinger and his negro companion, Herbert Youngblood, who used Sheriff Holley's automobile (a Ford with Indiana license number 6729, with red and green headlights), to make their escape.

In Chicago Supervising Captain John Stege and a picked band of sharpshooting policemen, including Sgt. Frank Reynolds, killer of 13 criminals, combed underworld haunts. Detective searches of the homes of some 250 parole convicts yesterday, but without success. All police are under orders to "shoot to kill," and because of this Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker expressed doubt that Dillinger would choose Chicago for his hideout. The investigators were told by Deputy Sheriff Ernest Blunk, who was taken prisoner by Dillinger on a 40-mile ride, that the quick-triggered gunman had to make his plans as he sped to freedom, but it was considered almost a certainty that he would attempt to effect a liaison with John Hamilton, his lieutenant, who is wanted in Chicago for killing a policeman. After Dillinger had been captured and tamed by Tucson, Ariz., officers last January 30, he told the police Hamilton was dead, but the investigators declined to believe his story.

Another possibility for a lead in the hunt was offered by a visit of a mysterious woman to the Crown Point jail about two weeks ago. She posed as Dillinger's wife. The sheriff's office there had protested that Dillinger was not married, but the visit was permitted by a judge, and lasted for half an hour. The woman was being hunted in the hope her apprehension might throw some light on the affair.

As the search widened, various reports sprang up that Dillinger and his negro pal had been seen at various points. All proved untrue. Dillinger's three henchmen in the county jail at Lima, Ohio—Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley and Russel Clark, held for the Sarber murder—were hopefully awaiting Dillinger's appearance to deliver them from freedom, as Dillinger himself was freed last year by pals. The authorities, however, took extra precaution against such a possibility, piling sandbags against the inside of the sheriff's door, and doubling the number of guards.
