The Traffic Drive

A DRIVE for more orderly traffic conditions in Klamath Falls was started Monday by the police department. There are details yet to be worked out, and experience may dictate changes in the original plans. We are not sold on every suggestion offered thus far. But in general, the idea is an excellent one, and deserves the cooperation of the motoring public.

The necessity for such a campaign arises out of the increase in the number of automobiles on the streets, incidentally an indication of improved times.

For a year or two when business was slow, the volume of traffic downtown decreased to such an extent that loose driving practices were possible without causing much trouble. Long-time parking and double parking were permitted because they did not seriously obstruct the regular movement of traffic.

Now that the travel volume is getting back toward normal, a more strict adherence to the old rules is needed. Restrictions upon the time of Main street parking and the method and time of double parking are the chief steps proposed by the police department. They should prove beneficial to the entire driving public.

Snow Carnival in the Park

FOR several years, there has been talk of developing snow sports on a large scale in Crater Lake National Park. It took a year when snow was scant in the lower areas to bring about what may prove to be the first important step toward that goal.

On March 18, a snow carnival is to be held in the park, under the sponsorship of chambers of commerce and outdoor organizations of Klamath, Jackson and Deschutes counties. A hill has been found in the vicinity of government camp which is a "natural" for development of a ski jump. A course for a ski race has been laid out that promises to give spectators frequent views of the racers, something that is lacking in such events at many other places. And the snow playground is conveniently near the road.

Appreciation is due the management of Crater Lake park for help in developing the plans for this carnival. The work of the Medford, Bend, Fort Klamath and Klamath Falls organizations in fostering this program is a fine lesson in inter-community cooperation.

It is important that the first snow carnival in the park shall be successful. If it is, there will be provided a basis on which to work for future winter plans in the park. This newspaper has long held that Crater lake park should be made an all-year-round playground, just as is Yosemite in the south.

Sales at the Klamath liquor store totaled $1448.45, including permits, during the first week of business. This exceeds the expectations of the liquor commission officials here, and is in fact quite a sizeable business. It appears that the liquor-consuming public is patronizing the local store, although there is no way of knowing how much money is still being spent through illegitimate channels. The fact that 329 persons, by purchasing permits, have in one week indicated their intention of obtaining their liquor at the state store, is encouraging to supporters of the state control plan.

Political observers were puzzled at Governor Meier's address reviewing his administration. They were trying to find out whether the governor intends to run again for office, and the answer was not definitely given in that speech. Still, why should the governor, nine months before his term is ended, take it upon himself to give "an account of his stewardship?" And why should he pick a date just at the opening of the primary campaign for such an accounting? Draw your own conclusions. Ours is that the governor would at least like to run again.

Some People Say

We mothers-in-law have too long borne the brunt of harsh jokes and misleading insinuations.—Mrs. N. S. Griggs, president of Mother-in-Law's Day club of Texas.

If a newspaper plays up the inflammatory utterances of some fanatic, and plays down what is said by a thoughtful, sober-minded student of world problems, it takes its place in the ranks of the warmakers.—George H. Dern, secretary of war.

I think a man's private life is his own affair.—Prince Sigvard of Sweden, who is marrying a commoner.

I'll get an injunction to keep the police from molesting me.—Bugs Moran, Chicago gang leader.

The tendency of the times is to focus attention on the problems of daily living.—Dr. Alexander Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan.

News Behind the News

The Inside Story From The Capital

By PAUL MALLON

WORRY

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The administration has been more worried than it has cared to say about its policy of dropping CWA workers.

Mr. Roosevelt is secretly conducting an investigation to find out what becomes of the men who are dropped and generally to ascertain how the policy is working.

He had to start curtailing. He could not support four million persons on the government payroll indefinitely. Confidence in the financial position of the government would begin to wane.

But unless the expelled workers find private employment, you can bet that the administration will undertake another major move soon.

PLAN

Some of those very close to Mr. Roosevelt believe the next move will be the establishment of an intermediate credit bank.

That appears to be the real purpose why the federal reserve governors were called to meet here Monday. The insiders have apparently worked out a plan whereby the credit bank can start a little credit inflation without interfering with current banking business.

Commercial loans by banks are largely for terms of 90 days and less. The government bank could handle loans for more than 90 days up to two or three years.

HITLER

Diplomats rarely find it advisable to be frank in public. But they hide nothing in their confidential reports.

Such reports from our agents in Europe lately have indicated that the current European war talk is 90 per cent bluff. They predict there will be no war in Europe within the next year or so. Neither will there be peace.

The way they have figured it out, Hitler holds the whip hand in Europe. He is playing a crafty game which does not call for war—yet. He will go ahead building for war at home so he may be in shape to fight a few years hence. He does not care what the French do. He will not fight them now. They can march into Berlin if they want to, but they cannot stop his program.

If they strike at him, it will be like punching a pillow.

PRESTIGE

Another deeper consideration is world opinion. It would switch to Germany overnight if France declared war or invaded German territory.

So you see what a clever position Hitler has jockeyed himself into. He won't fight. His enemies dare not. He is rebuilding his country in his own way. All they can do is frown and try to think up some way of hindering him without getting themselves into trouble.

Respect for Hitler has grown tremendously in the world chambers in the last few months. Diplomats who hate him have been heard to refer to him as a greater figure than Bismarck, for he is accomplishing the reconstruction of the German empire without half the trouble Bismarck took.

The little independent kingdoms of Germany are now completely under his thumb. Austria soon will be.

All the European nations are preparing for war as fast as they can, but none is in a good position now to fight a war.

The internal situation of the government in France is weaker than at any time since the war. Italy is the only nation which might be able to take up the bayonet against Hitler, but Mussolini has no intention of bayoneting any pillows. He does not intend to fight.

Thus the existing situation will probably continue indefinitely, with grinning and catcalling going on over the back fences so enthusiastically that you may think the boys are going to start shooting any minute. Indeed, there may even be exchanges of blows in central Europe, but no organized warfare.

Of course, there is always the possibility in a strained situation like that of someone sinking a Maine and precipitating trouble.

INFLUENCE

The way Secretary Ickes happened to get his job in the cabinet has long been a mystery. A dozen different stories have been told. One is that Senator Hiram Johnson got the post for him. Another hint is that the Nebraska democratic committee man, Arthur Mullen, met him wandering around the senate office building one day and offered the job to him.

The official version is that Mullen worked with Ickes throughout the Roosevelt campaign organizing republicans-for-Roosevelt clubs. They got to be close friends. Ickes wanted a job after election, but did not aspire to a cabinet post. Then Mr. Roosevelt ran into trouble picking an interior secretary.

So did Senator Cutting. The Californians raised such a rumpus about the third choice (Dern of Utah) that Mullen pressed the cause of Ickes and Ickes was chosen, sight unseen, on Mullen's recommendation.

HINT

A certain democratic senator recently was offered an appointment to the federal circuit court. In declining, he is supposed to have let Mr. Roosevelt know indirectly that he might accept, if offered, a position to the supreme court.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt will take the hint is not apparent at this time.

The retirement of Justice McReynolds is somewhat overdue, but it will be coming along soon.

Attorneys appealing a liquor case in Pennsylvania, charged 1010 errors to the presiding judge. The judge, probably, would add another—that he heard the case.

The reason why the nations are so slow disarming is that the talk is less convincing than the arms.

National Chairman Pays Tribute to Newspapers for Help on Birthday Bails

NEW YORK, N. Y. (To The Editor)—Now that The Birthday Ball for the President has come to a successful conclusion, I feel that I would be remiss in closing this activity unless I took opportunity to express to you the appreciation of the National Committee for all that you and your associates have done in making this success possible.

Of course, no social event is a real success without the cooperation of the press, but in this particular case the newspapers of the country played a much greater role than the invaluable one

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE PELICAN

Pelican—Now playing, "Hips, Hips, Hooray," with Wheeler and Woolsey.

Pine Tree—Now playing, "She Had to Say Yes," with Winnie Lightner and Loretta Young.

Rainbow—Now playing, "King of the Arena," with Ken Maynard.

Vox—Now playing, "Fugitive Lovers," with Robert Montgomery and Madge Evans.

AT THE PELICAN

Held to be the most spectacular and thrilling of all professional sports, automobile racing for the first time is accorded outstanding business comedy treatment in some of the farce sequences of "Hips, Hips, Hooray," the Pelican theatre's musical extravaganza starring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, and playing today.

In this rapid fire musical, Wheeler and Woolsey find it necessary to flee from the long arm of the law, and decide that the most efficient way in which to flee is to join a cross-nation automobile race. Away they dash from home, from business, from Thelma Todd, Dorothy Lee and Ruth Etting, as pilots of a super-fast racing car.

Chicken, motorists and pedestrians are frightened out of many years of life as the mad pair dash to the coast, and eventually into an insane finish.

AT THE PINE TREE

After a year's absence during which she toured the vaudeville stages, Winnie Lightner returns to the screen in the First National picture, "She Had to Say Yes," which comes to the Pine Tree theatre today.

She first made her big hit in pictures, in "Gold Diggers of Broadway." In her new picture, in her last, "Play Girl," Winnie is featured with Loretta Young, while others in the cast include Lyle Talbot, Regis Toomey, Hugh Herbert, Suzanne Kilborn and Joseph Cawthorne.

AT THE RAINBOW

Ride 'Em Cowboy! Ken Maynard, that reckless, hard ridin', straight shootin' two-flated Texan in the most action jammed, lightning paced picture of his career—"King of the Arena"—is coming to the Rainbow theatre today.

And what a picture! Two shows in one. You'll see a circus with all the excitement and entertain-of acquainting all of their readers with the event.

I think the most heartening fact developed by this campaign was that, without a single exception, the newspapers of this country, both daily and weekly, joined in organizing and supporting this great humane work. This is probably the first time in the history of our country that a nationwide organization has been effected through the medium of the press although, of course, the newspapers of the country have frequently given unstintingly of their space to many charitable causes.

As soon as returns from local committees are complete and have been audited by a firm of nationally known certified public accountants, full detailed information will be furnished the public through the press so that all may know the extent of the success of the Birthday Ball.

It has been a real inspiration to me to have been associated with you in this work and I just want you to know that I feel very deeply that you can always have a just pride in having played so important a part in the fight against infantile paralysis.

Sincerely yours,
 HENRY L. DOHERTY
 National Chairman.

City Faces Claim for Five Horses

Alleging that five horses ate poison on the city dump ground and died as a result, V. C. Heavlin filed a claim of $360 with the city council Monday night.

Heavlin's communication stated the horses were on open range in Klamath county. He said the dump ground is not properly fenced, and because of this negligence the city should pay for the animals.

The council referred the matter to the city attorney.

aluminum. An electric motor drives an ingenious spiral beneath the keys superimposed over a set of bell like pipes. This instrument which the Duffs feature in all their services is one of the first to reach the coast.

Monday evening Mr. Walter Duff spoke on the subject "There Go the Ships." Tuesday evening he has announced "The Three Crosses" as the theme of his brief discourse. The young evangelist is quite dramatic in all his presentations, which in part accounts for the large number of young people in attendance. The services began promptly each evening at 7:30 o'clock. About a hundred young people were present Monday night and participated in the reception accorded the Duffs in the scenic hall of the First Methodist church following the regular service.

DUFFS INTRODUCE NEW INSTRUMENT

Another large crowd greeted the Duff trio on Monday evening at the union service at the Presbyterian church. The attendance was considerably beyond expectations.

One of the outstanding features of the "Down to the Sea" service was the reading by Miss Evangeline Duff of the famous old shipwreck narrative, "The Last Survivor," with vibraharp accompaniment.

According to the Duffs, the vibraharp is the latest development in the major musical instrument world, and has been used less than ten years. It has several novel and interesting features, and those who have heard it in the accomplished hands of Miss Duff are generous with their praise of its wonderful qualities.

The instrument has a xylophone keyboard with keys of solid
