About Registration

THIS is the time for every citizen to give thought to his status as a registered voter. The registration books close on April 18. Each voter must register with the county clerk unless he has voted once in the past biennium in the district in which he now resides. If he has changed residence, he should report to the county clerk in order to vote in his home precinct.

In Klamath county as well as throughout Oregon there seems to be a great deal of interest at this time in the registration situation. This is due to a considerable shifting between parties. There are some evidences that in this county the Mahoney gubernatorial candidacy is inducing a certain amount of shifting to the democratic ranks, and it appears the Mahoney supporters are encouraging this movement. On the other hand, instances are reported where rabid anti-Mahoneyites among republicans have indicated their intention of registering democratic to vote against the mayor.

The present roll of voters in the state totals 444,009, of which 287,908 are republicans and 145,731 are democrats. On last July 1, there was a republican majority in every county in the state.

A United Press dispatch from Salem estimates that a vote of 75,000 will probably be sufficient to nominate Congressman Martin or Mayor Mahoney for the democratic gubernatorial candidacy. It is not so easy to give figures on the republican race because of the numerous candidates and the possibility that more may file.

It is the duty of every citizen who is qualified to cast his ballot to vote. Proper registration is necessary to voting. The old swearing-in method has now long been outlawed.

Cluttering the Countryside

CLUTTERING up the countryside with rubbish gathered by city clean-up enthusiasts is NOT part of the junior chamber of commerce clean-up program. It is, however, something that seems to happen every spring about the time townspeople start cleaning up their property.

Indiscriminate rubbish-dumping is a contemptible practice. It violates the laws of the state and the laws of decency. There has been so much of it in this section that there are unsightly messes on almost every back road.

And the rubbish dumpers do not always confine their activities to the back road. A day or two ago someone threw two sacks of tin cans from their automobile as it passed along Lakeshore drive. By careful timing, they dropped the sacks in front of the steps of a residence.

There is absolutely no necessity for this sort of thing. There is a city dump, and that is where the rubbish should go. It might be well for the junior chamber to emphasize that fact in connection with its clean-up program, which is, of course, a highly worthy enterprise.

One of the jobs done under the CWA here was to construct sidewalks on South Sixth street beyond the viaduct. A particular effort was made to obtain approval of this project because of the many accidents there involving pedestrians walking on the highway. There still is, however, a great deal of highway foot travel in spite of the availability of sidewalks, and not infrequently an obviously intoxicated man is encountered staggering along in the path of passing automobiles. It would be an excellent idea for all South Sixth street foot travelers to use the sidewalks.

A few years ago a candidate for mayor here claimed his nominating petitions were stolen to prevent his filing for the office. In 1932, statewide attention was directed on the petition theft case in connection with the Zorn-McPherson higher education row. Now comes John Irwin of the Taxpayers' league with the report that recall petitions bearing about 200 names have been stolen from one of his circulators. Allegations of petition thievery seem to have become an essential part of the "Oregon system."

The police department has exhausted its supply of traffic tags. Few will be surprised at that bit of news.

Maybe it would be a good idea to forget politics for a while and pray for rain.

If this is a false spring, the weather gods are past masters at deceit.

Taste Determines Quality of Fuel

A new and ready way to test the purity and quality of a motor oil has been discovered. "To test a motor oil, taste it," says Earl Gilbert, Klamath Falls Gilmore manager. "Heretofore motorists had to rely on the looks of an oil to form their opinion as to purity and quality. Now they can test it as easily as they tell fresh eggs and butter from stale."

The filter-purified process employed exclusively in the refining of Lion Head motor oil so completely eliminates the light and volatile petroleum fluids and other foreign substances that the usual crude taste is eliminated. Lion Head is almost tasteless and is palatable except for the natural astringency that the tongue and throat have to oil or viscous substances.

"Strange as it may seem, the taste tells—even in motor oil."

Endeavors Direct Sunday Services

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First Christian church took charge of the Sunday evening Christian Endeavor meeting at the newly organized church at Lennox.

Thelma Parrish led the service. "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherd" was sung by Katherine and Everett Egarte.

Rev. Arthur Charles Bates conducts church services at the Lennox church each Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

MEETING PLACES CHANGED

The Dorcas society of the Presbyterian church will meet at the home of Mr. J. L. Olson, 2046 Earl street, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock instead of at the home of Mrs. Guy Merrill. One wishing transportation call at the home of Mrs. William Hobelt, 718 North 11th street.

The Miriam Circle of the Presbyterian church which was to have met at the home of Mrs. C. E. Dennis Thursday afternoon will meet at the home of Mrs. L. F. Willis, 506 Klamath avenue at 2:30 o'clock.

WASHINGTON News Behind the News

The Inside Story From The Capital
 By PAUL MALLON
 Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon

WASHINGTON, March 21—A dozen well-to-do republican senators have put their heads together in what amounts to a secret political society. They have pooled their pocketbooks privately and set up an organization known among its friends as the last of the Mohicans.

The primary object is to re-elect Mohican republican senators, but the long range objective is to restore their once proud race to national political prestige.

Three or four of the senators are wealthy. They have guaranteed a salary and expenses for an exceptionally able publicity man, Warren Wheaton, former Washington newsmen. The understanding is general that he will take over national committee publicity after the November elections.

NEXT SENATE
 The breaks are against them. Their senators come up for re-election in such states as Ohio, Maryland, West Virginia, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Indiana. If the democrats do not win four or five of those states, the new dealers will be bitterly disappointed.

The chances are two to one at this early date that the democratic majority will be strengthened considerably in the senate by the next election.

Nearly all the democrats who are up for re-election come from the south, which has solid today as it was '31.

NEXT HOUSE
 In private, the democrats admit that they expect to lose 40 seats in the house. The inside claims of the republicans are optimistic. They do not expect to gain more than 70 seats at most, which is not enough to let them control the house.

Where the republicans are sure to gain is in states like Kentucky and Missouri. The republican districts in those states lost their congressmen last time because they had to run at large and the state at large went democratic. The republicans also will pick up their normal rock-ribbed districts like the ones in Virginia and two or three in California, which they have held since the year one—1932 excluded.

No matter how you figure it, however, the democrats will retain control of congress. The only thing which can change this is a widespread popular reversion against the new deal. That may come, but it certainly is not in sight.

SKULLDUGGERY
 Political Sam Insull was accused of his escape by a split faction in Greese—not the government.

At least, that is the belief of our officials in touch with the situation. They say sotto voce that the Greek government was quite sincere and fair in its handling of the matter after it changed its tactics a few months ago. But a certain faction, represented by the minister of interior, was not considered fair. That is why the minister resigned.

The state department people are confident they will ultimately get Insull back to Chicago.

The flying bird will have to alight sometime.

JOY
 The high moguls in our state department are secretly glad to see Mussolini expanding.

They believe it may mean a decline of French domination in Europe. French control was founded on alliances with the central European nations. Now Mussolini is muscling in with his new treaties. He will also stop Hitler, if only for the time being.

People say that he will help disarmament because he is more sincere on that subject than the French, but that is a good deal to expect. It was not an idle boast when he said the Italians would dominate Europe within 60 years. Things are certainly heading around in that direction.

AIR MAIL
 Smiling Jim Farley has lost his smile for the first time since he entered public life.

The small situation is much more tangled on the inside than on the out. The house committee has been balky and has got under Farley's skin.

No one yet knows how it will all come out. The airlines will get their contracts back but the bargaining over terms will continue indefinitely.

POWER
 Defeat of the St. Lawrence treaty has been accredited to the power companies. They did not do so much as they are getting credit for. They may have helped to sway three or four senate votes, but the treaty was killed by the sectional self-interest of eastern democrats.

The power lobby here is not what it used to be. Their lobbyist is supposed to have closed down his office Jan. 1 and has been looking for another job.

NOTES
 Two Wall Streeters were talking over the other day and agreed the days of easy money-making were about over. They believed modest investment profits can be expected generally, but that big investment profits will be rare.

Vice President Garner has been running wild with his little gavel. He raps the appropriation bills through the senate so fast that the senators have no time for orating.

The administration has certainly soft-pedaled all phases of the money issue except silver. The committee for the nation is still agitating as much as ever for further depreciation, but no one pays any attention.

DUFFS KIWANIS GUESTS THURSDAY

Three weeks ago Walter Duff, Jr., and his sister, Miss Evangelina, opened services in the First Presbyterian church. From the very beginning their unusual methods, Christian personalities, and live, practical messages attracted young and old. The interest in the Duff evangelistic meetings, now being held in the First Methodist church, Tenth and High streets, continues. This was shown by the largest Tuesday evening crowd thus far, an audience that comfortably filled the main auditorium.

The sermon Tuesday was based on the origin of the Jewish Passover, when the lamb was slain and the blood sprinkled on the door posts and lintels, protecting the first-born from the angel of death.

This, the evangelist stated, beautifully set the stage for the great saving work of Jesus Christ in dying as the Lamb of God on Calvary to take away the sin of the world. "All that I shall say centers in three words, condemnation, substitution and appropriation. All men are under condemnation. God provides a substitute. All men need to do to be saved is to accept or appropriate the Saviour provided," he declared.

Mr. Duff and his sister are to appear on the program of the Kiwanis club Thursday. The Klamath high school is seeking to secure them again for an assembly period. Some two weeks ago they appeared on their assembly program and took the students by storm. So many demands are being made on the time of the evangelists that they are compelled, in the interests of their own services, to decline many.

These evangelistic services are to close on Easter. Many young people remain after the evening services for counsel and guidance. Tuesday night an adult group also remained, meeting with the pastors of the two churches. Rev. John B. Coan was in charge.

CHAPEAU IN THE RING
 (Medford Mail-Tribune)

The mayor of Klamath Falls announces he will cast his chapeau into the ring, and run for governor. He is a picturesque figure, and will fit well with the picturesque scenery of Oregon. His picturesqueness ought to make him a dandy governor. He announces he will take a "firm stand on the power issue." That is fine. The "power barons" fear about the only thing left in the state that makes a conscientious effort to pay their taxes on time, and maintain payrolls. Just how long the people will stand such capitalist impudence is a matter of conjecture.

He will run on the democratic ticket, which according to the sagebrush magistrate is also mismanaged. He is a natural-born fighter, and if there is nothing else to fight, will fight himself. He is opposed to the Knox bill, which regulates liquor. He wants the old-fashioned saloon to fight the service stations for the corner lot.

All the evidence shows that the mayor started himself toward Salem, and he is a shining example of the glories of the Oregon primary system. It requires no qualification of a candidate, save the filing fee and the gall to try it. It sure has given Oregon in general, and Jackson county in particular, some stem-winding officials in the past.

SEEKS RETURN OF SALOON
 (Salem Capital Journal)

In announcing his candidacy for the democratic nomination for governor W. E. Mahoney, carter, attacks the Knox state liquor control law as "the most vicious piece of legislation ever placed on the statute books of any state." He continues: "It has deprived legitimate business of revenue that is rightfully theirs; it has robbed the cities and towns of Oregon of revenues badly needed; I stand pledged to drive the state out of the liquor business."

In their words Mr. Mahoney is the candidate of would-be liquor dealers and saloon interests. He would put back private profit in booze and restore conditions such as brought about prohibition. He sighs again for the good old days of liquor domination and graft, of corruption of politics and government.

Mr. Mahoney is a recent arrival in Oregon, having been in Klamath only time enough to qualify when elected mayor, and had never been previously identified with the state. He owed his election to "free power for nothing" hysteria that swept the state and made his campaign for mayor on attacking the power trust—like some of our other politicians seeking to save the people by a place at the pie-counter. He seems to be in the Huey Long class of statesmen.

FISHER ADDRESSES WOMEN'S LEAGUE

A study of the "Crisis in Education" was presented before members and friends of the League of Women Voters Tuesday morning by Don C. Fisher of the teaching staff of Klamath Union high school. The audience numbered between 35 and 60.

Mrs. W. R. Boyd, who spent many years in Central American countries, gave an interesting talk on "Cuba and Our Latin American Relations."

Both of the topics discussed Tuesday are included on the national study program for the League of Women Voters.

The next meeting of the organization will be held on Tuesday morning, April 3.
