GOVERNOR OF NEVADA DIES ON WEDNESDAY

CARSON CITY, Nev., March 22, (U.R)—Governor Frederick Bennett Balzar, who quit railroading to become a politician and established an enviable record of never being defeated for office, died at his home here late Wednesday.

Death came after he had been in a coma for three days.
Lieut. Gov. Morley Griswold succeeds him.

Governor Balzar, 54, has been in ill health for months, suffer-ing complications arising from a cancerous condition of the lungs. He had not been active in a cancerous condition lungs. He had not been active in official life for more than six

Always a liberal, Governor Baizar heartily approved the law requiring only six weeks residence in Nevada to obtain divorces, and the Legalized Gambiling act, and signed both when passed by the legislature.

Ardent Sports Fan
Duting his career as governor, he became famous with Governor James Rolph of California, as the "flying governors". Both he and the California executive made extensive flights together. "Red", as he was known to every resident of the state, was an ardent sports fan. He numbered among his friends, Jack Dempsoy, former heavyweight boxing champion.

Governor Baizar was a native of Nevada. He was born June 15, 1880, at Virginia City, the site of the famous Comstock silver lode.

Martin Sends Statement On Columbia Dam

FORTLAND, March 22, (U.P.)— Major General Charles H. Martin Wednesday answered his critics when he set forth his views on development of the Columbia river, the Journai's Washington correspondent said.

Martin, candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, and present congressman, in a statement addressed to the people of Oregon, said: "I am for the maximum improvement of the Columbia river for navigation and power development,"
the article stated,
"I am for deep sea locks at Bonneville just as soon as we can get them," he continued, adding he thought it better to take what is available instead of "reaching for the moon and getting nothing."

The flery congressman told in detail the efforts expended by Sonator Charles McNary and himself in obtaining the Bonneville appropriation, and the savsage refusal of the rivers and wille appropriation, and the sav-age refusal of the rivers and harbors committee when he tried to have deep sea locks included at Bonneville.

Court Changes Division For Reynolds Money

RALEIGH, N. C., March 22, (U.P.)—The North Carolina superme court today upset a superior court decision dividing the millions left by the late Zachary Smith Reynolds, scion of a tobacco dynasty and husband of Libby Holman, torch singer.

The court had approved a settlement whereby $15,000,000 would have gone to establishment of a charitable foundation, $2,000,000 would have gone to establishment of a charitable foundation, $2,000,000 would have gone to establishment of a charitable foundation, $2,000,000 each upon two children and $500,000 each upon his first and second wives.

The high tribunal's opinion superceded that of Judge Wilson H. Warlick of Newton, who agreed to a settlement whereby Anne Cannon Reynolds, child of Reynolds by his first marriage to Anne Cannon, of Concord, would have received $1,500,000 in addition to a $500,000 trust fund established when her par-ents were divorced. Similarly, Zachary Smith Rey-nolds. Jr., child by Reynold's marriage to Libby Holman, former Broadway torch singer, would have received $2,000,000.
