BOXING BASKETBALL HUNTING GOLF FOOTBALL FISHING WRESTLING

Football Foundations Built.

Leslie Avrit Calls Out 70 New Candidates for Training. Coach Does Double Duty on Modoc Field. Spring Work Uncovers Possible Regulars for 1934 Team. Only Five Lettermen Will Return.

The Pelicans of next autumn's football campaign will look back to the spring of the year and consider its profits.

It's not often spring in the Klamath Basin is free from bad weather. These 1934 days, however, are the exceptions to the general rule. They are not wasted.

Nearly 70 young men, all eager for regular positions of the Pelican team next season, have been working with Leslie Avrit, head coach, for three weeks. The training program will continue indefinitely, and by the time examination week rolls around, several score of prospective athletes will know something about football.

• • •

Avrit this spring is doing double duty. He has been assigned to the track team while Dwight French, coach of the runner-up basketball team, takes a hand at baseball. It's the first time in three years, at least, the Pelicans have placed a squad on the diamond. The absence of baseball for the high school program hasn't been one of choice. Weather conditions have been too uncertain in the past to permit any sort of training.

• • •

Avrit, going into his fourth season at Klamath high school, faces the most difficult job since his first Pelican team.

The 20 young men who received football letters at the close of the 1933 schedule, have dwindled to five. Those five men will have to form the foundations for a new team, and not more than two of them were regulars last season.

The two boys who played through the season in the first lineup were Nello Giovanini and Johnny Pastega. Pastega went out of the closing game—Bend—with a broken arm, but this will be no handicap for him next autumn. He played through the basketball schedule without trouble.

The other three lettermen will be Carl Egelhoff, Bob Leslie and Don Smith. Leslie and Egelhoff can almost be considered as veterans for they contributed greatly to Klamath's success on the gridiron. Smith broke into the first squad after his sensational playing at Grants Pass.

• • •

These 70 enthusiastic youngsters working on Modoc field are novices in the game of football. Avrit has not yet called out the members of the 1933 squad nor has he asked the Wildcat players to report.

The daily afternoon sessions are spent in fundamental work. There the boys learn how to block and tackle, pick up fumbles, run and a dozen or so other football details that often turnout to be deciding factors in a regular contest.

Soon they will be given a few plays and taught how to catch, pass and punt.

At the end of the period, the long grind will be brought to a close with a game between the regulars and a picked team of newcomers.

• • •

Despite the loss of so many regulars, Avrit is enthusiastic. The new candidates have shown surprising interest, and there is a possibility some outstanding material will be uncovered.

Chamber Assists Tule Lake Farmers

The chamber of commerce forwarded a recommendation to the department of interior Friday asking that homesteaders of the Tule Lake region unable to pay water charges be treated in the same manner as last year.

Farmers unable to pay cash for their water last year were permitted to sign notes without bearing interest to November and bearing 6 per cent if not paid by then.

The recommendation was sent on request of a delegation from Tule Lake asking that assistance be given.

German Prison Guard Sentenced

STETTIN, Germany, April 7. (UP)—Karl Hoffman, a prison guard, was sentenced to 18 years imprisonment and other defendants given terms ranging from 10 down to two years, for mistreating prisoners.

The official Prussian press service announced that their trial was ordered by Prussian Premier Herman Wilhelm Goering to demonstrate that mistreatment will not be tolerated, and added that the sentences "disprove the atrocity stories abroad regarding German concentration camps and prisons."

Deadline Set For State Truck Owners

PORTLAND, April 7, (U.P.)—April 30 is deadline for Oregon truck owners to register under their NRA code, according to word received here today from Charles L. Dearing, assistant deputy administrator of the NRA transportation section. Local announcement was made by C. Thomas Givven, president of the Association of Commercial Truck Owners.

SPRING SPORTS DRAW PELICANS

Klamath Will Put Baseball Team in Field; Avrit Takes Track.

Modoc field, the athletic headquarters of Klamath high school, has been filled with activity these spring days with preparations in baseball, football and track.

The Pelicans, alert to warm weather, have turned to the diamond sport for the first time in three years and expect to place a strong team in the county field. Dwight French, director of athletics, will coach the squad.

First Workout Held

The first turnout was held last week. All county teams will be included on the schedule and it is possible several games will be played with valley schools.

A major shift in the coaching personnel was announced this week. Lee Avrit, head football coach, has taken over the track post heretofore held by French. French is devoting all his time to the baseball squad.

Football Men Out

Avrit is working the track men in conjunction with his rugged program of spring football work.

Al Sinclair, assistant baseball coach, is directing the practice of the tennis team.

Schedules in all these spring events will be released next week.

Joe Knudson, one of the directors of the 20-30 club's track committee, announced Saturday morning that preparations were going ahead rapidly for the third annual Southern Oregon-Northern Track and Field meet here May 12.

No Conflict Expected

Although the date, May 12, is not definite, there appears little conflict to force a change.

The track officials of the service club have contacted Grants Pass and arrangements have been made to hold the district meet one week before the Modoc event. Letters are now out to central Oregon high schools, and no conflict is looked for in that district.

Invitations to more than 25 high schools in both Oregon and California will be sent out next week.

As usual, Klamath Falls, Grants Pass and Bend are expected to present the strongest lineups for the championship. The Pelicans probably will be stronger in the track events than in the field, but are almost assured of a strong running for their third successive title.

Grove Will Pitch For Boston Today

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 7. (AP)—Lefty Grove—he of the much talked of arm—will do the Red Sox pitching today against the Barons.

It will be his first appearance for his new club and the probability is that he will only attempt two or three innings. Bucky Harris is quite happy over Lefty's decision to start the game.

F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., in Scuffle With Cameraman at Mat Bout

PHILADELPHIA, April 7. (AP)—A youth identified by the Public Ledger as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., smashed a photographer's camera, but his picture appears in the newspaper anyhow.

The plate for the picture, snapped at a wrestling match last night, was in the photographer's pocket and was not damaged when he was pursued to the lobby of the hall and tripped to the floor. Donald Corvelli, the camera man, suffered bruises and torn trousers.

Quoting Coorvelli, the Ledger says the 19-year-old son of the president jumped several times on the camera.

"This man was taking a picture of me and I don't like to have my picture taken," was the explanation which police said they received. Told by H. Vaughan Morgan, Jr., that "this man is the president's son," the officers escorted the youth to Morgan's automobile and the party left.

Young Roosevelt is a week-end guest at the Morgan home in Bryn Mawer.

The clash between the photographer and his subject occurred during a match between Gus Sonnenberg, Boston, and Ray Steele, California grappler. The Bostonian won.

"Roosevelt kept right on coming up the aisle," Corvelli said afterward. "There was nothing to do except try to get out of his way. But he brushed right past me and the first thing I knew I was on the floor and my camera was broken.

Newspaper men were told that young Roosevelt flew here from Harvard university, where he is a student, to spend the week-end with his roommate. Tickets for the wrestling program were reserved in the name of Roosevelt and during the intermission the youth was invited to meet local luminaries in the arena office.

"Don't go in for wrestling," advised Jim Londos, recognized in Pennsylvania as the champion.

The guest replied that he had no intention of so doing, but added that he was stroke on the freshman crew and might go out for football next fall.

"Don't do that," cautioned Londos. "It's a rough game and you are likely to get seriously hurt. Wrestling may look rough but it is a lot safer when you know how to take it."

Cobb's Lava Bear Story Supported By Miniature Creature Displayed Here

The veracity of Irvin S. Cobb, humorist, today receives the favorable testimony of Ray Yager, the possessor of an adult lava bear from the desert country in the north end of Klamath county.

Yager on Friday brought to Klamath Falls one of the rare little animals, which, when all other description is exhausted, fits into a living picture of a miniature grizzly.

Many years ago Cobb visited the lava country of Deschutes and Klamath counties and then went east to pen a tale of the strange creatures of central Oregon. Even the least skeptical had difficulty in believing the humorist's story of the lava bear.

Each year brought some yarn of the existence of the tiny bear, but definite proof always was lacking. But now Yager, exhibiting his animal at the Altamont Auto camp, has living witness to the heretofore more or less uncertain bear.

Captive Believed Valuable

Yager trapped the bear, a female, last January 9, and the state press carried the traditionally dubious comments. The bear now is carefully cared and on his way to an exhibition tour in California.

Recently Yager wrote to Cobb, and received the following reply from the famed writer:

"I have no scientific knowledge of bears, but from what I've heard I'm sure, for one, there is a dwarfed form—the so-called lava bear or sand-lapper. I would suggest that if your prisoner doesn't grow any larger he'll probably provide the best proof that there is, indeed, a sub-species of the common variety in Oregon. I trust he won't bite your leg off."

Age Undetermined

Yager has also received an inquiry from Dr. C. Hunt [illegible]rriam of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C. Merriam, not knowing the animal was alive, offered a considerable sum for the pelt and bones as a specimen.

The age of the bear has not been definitely placed. Several trappers, however, have volunteered that it is from 4 to 12 years. It weighs but 25 pounds and has all the features of an adult animal. Yager offers the fact that it has not grown since it was captured last winter as indication it is completely past the cub stage.

It is temperamental and may, without provocation, make a meal off a finger. It lives well and is apparently healthy in captivity.

British Engineer Relates Story of Buried Treasure

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7. (UP) — Hamilton Snowball, a young mining engineer of Oxfordshire, Eng., arrived here today from the South seas bearing a tale of pirate's gold and Inca jewels awaiting recovery at the bottom of a shark infested lagoon.

Snowball said he was en route to London to procure machinery with which to speed his effort to recover 14 tons of Spanish gold and a fortune in jewels wrested from the Inca temples of Peru by Spanish conquistadores.

He said that in 1849 a ship left Peru for Spain bearing gold bullion now estimated to be worth $35,000,000 and a collection of invaluable Inca jewelry. Pirates captured the vessel off the South American coast and sailed across the Pacific to the island of Nukutavake, in the Tuamota group, 300 miles from Tahiti, he related.

The pirates buried the treasure, sank the vessel and disappeared, Snowball said. As early as 1900 the French government, owners of the island, learned of the treasure's existence but could not locate it.

Out of State Car Entries in State Is High

SALEM, April 7, (UP)—Happy times are returning to Oregon, if automobile figures compiled by the secretary of state's office today are any criterion.

An increase of tourist trade this summer was presaged when figures on out-of-state vehicle registration showed an increase of 500 for March over the same month last year. A total of 3,969 cars were registered.

More passenger cars have been licensed thus far this year than last, also, it was learned. Private cars licensed between January 1 and March 31 numbered 215,098, a gain over the 202,844 licensed in the comparable period of 1933, July to September 30.

Receipts this year total $1,075,490 compared to $1,011,720 for the 1933 period. Receipts from all sources in the registration division totaled $1,657,257 on March 31, compared to $1,747,040 on last September 30.

It is regarded as the greatest Douglas fir and spruce stand on the continent.

DUCKS CAPTURE FIRST VICTORY

Portland Team Defeats Los Angeles, 3 to 2, in Tight Game.

(By the Associated Press)

Tight pitching, a conspicuous feature in all of Friday's games, was largely responsible for placing Hollywood in a tie with Los Angeles today for first place in the Pacific Coast League.

Frank Raglan, hurling the Portland Beavers to their first victory over Los Angeles, 3 to 2, allowed only six scattered hits and won his own game by bringing in all three of the Beaver runs with his two-base hit in the seventh inning. Jack Wilson, replacing him in the last of the ninth, gave the Angels one more bingle. The Beavers collected nine. The Angels scored both their runs in the eighth inning.

Stars Down Oaks.

While Hollywood, defeating Oakland 10 to 2, collected 15 hits, Pitcher Tom Sheehan held the Oaks to nine scattered blows. Milt Steengrafe was nicked for 13 hits and 8 runs in the seven innings he pitched for the Oaks.

George Caster, youthful right-handed moundsman, held the San Francisco Seals to seven well distributed hits while the Seattle Indians collected 12 and won the contest, 4 to 1.

In his first coast league appearance Clarence Mitchell, San Francisco Missions hurler, gave Sacramento just six hits as he twirled his teammates to a 3 to 1 victory. Gabby Street, Missions manager, sent in Dutch Lieber in the ninth when Mitchell appeared to weaken and let in the lone Solon run on a walk.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Los Angeles	3	1	.750
Hollywood	3	1	.750
San Francisco	2	2	.500
Seattle	2	2	.500

WOLFE, HANSEN IN FAST DRAW

Cleanly Wrestled Match Ends In Rough House; Kruse Wins

Leslie Wolfe and Charlie Hansen left the Legion hall all-square after their main event wrestling match last night. The struggle, one of the best of the season, came to a close with each athlete holding one fall.

For exactly 46 minutes and 28 seconds the match was cleanly and swiftly wrestled. Wolfe, the lithe young man from Texas, managed to take the first fall with his persistently effective rolling hook-scissors.

Wolfe Wins First

Both wrestlers had spent the long grind in purely scientific work. The activity was concentrated on headlocks and head scissors with Wolfe directing his maneuvers toward his favorite hold. The two heavies were equally exhausted at the close of the fall.

Apparently without justifiable cause, Hansen, the Dane from Seattle, opened the second fall with a vigorously planted right to Wolfe's jaw. This was sufficient to turn a heretofore excellent match into a rough house. The spectators, calmly enjoying the previous exhibition, suddenly came to life in Wolfe's behalf.

Kruse Draws Helwig

Hansen pummelled Wolfe all over the ring and evened the match in seven minutes and 20 seconds with a body slam.

The remainder of the encounter, fast but rough, went by without a fall.

Bob Kruse of Oswego downed Ed Helwig of Oakland by taking the two last falls of the semi-mindup. Helwig won the first in slightly more than seven minutes with a body press. Kruse took the next two with hammerlocks. One came in six minutes and the other in three.

Billy Newman of Denver defeated Swede Anderson in the curtain-raiser. Newman won the match in nine minutes with a hammerlock.
