Editorials On the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS SAM INSULL, after trying for years to run out on his troubles, is finally headed back to the United States to face the music.

Poor Sam! He is learning, much against his will, the old lesson that it's easier in the long run to face your troubles than to try to run away from them.

A TRAIN at Miami—properly pronounced Mee-ah-mee—narrowly misses an automobile and trailer containing General Hugh S. Johnson and a lot of other big shots.

So the headlines flare all over the United States. If it had been you or I, no attention would have been paid to it. The bigger the people concerned the bigger the news.

WHY? NOT because the newspapers are engaged in a conspiracy to pay attention only to big people. That isn't it at all.

It is because more of us know about the big people than about the little ones; so news about big people interests more readers. The job of the newspapers is to interest the largest possible number of their readers.

WE HEAR from Washington again that the Chicago board of trade needs regulating. Possibly it does. As to that, this writer doesn't pose as an authority.

But this much is certain—as we know from experience during the past year: If the grain and produce exchanges are regulated to the point where they can no longer function the result will be serious derangement of the grain and produce markets.

THE stock market has certain gambling features. But it serves a useful purpose in the financing of industry.

The grain and produce markets have certain gambling features. But they too, serve a useful purpose in the marketing of the country's grain and produce. If we regulate the stock market and the grain and produce markets to the point where they can no longer function efficiently, WE shall be the principal sufferers.

WE HAVE regulated the railroads to the point where they can no longer run their OWN business. Before they can make a move, they have to ask some government agency for permission.

The result has been STEADILY INCREASING railroad rates. Regulation is all right up to a certain point, but BEYOND that point it ISN'T all right. Regulation isn't a cure for everything.

SANTA MONICA, April 13.—Editor The Evening Herald: We got the moving picture theatre owners out here on a big convention. They all report business much better all over. Now what better barometer can you get than that.

Their convention has informed the producers that as about everything in the way of sex had been produced, and that the audience didn't care to see it over again, they suggested that for a change they would like to see just an old-fashioned movie. And they also wanted to eliminate the sensational and pictorial advertising used for pictures. You can't make a picture as bad as the ads lead you to believe it is.

Yours, Will Rogers
