A Mystery Is Solved

THE strange disappearance of Audrea Mardelle and Doris Sparks has been solved. An automobile accident, such as threatens the safety of every driver on mountain roads, lay back of the tragic case that remained a mystery for five months. In the depths of Sand Creek canyon was found a grim warning to every person who drives an automobile.

Discovery of the bodies of the two young women ends the tragic uncertainty of their families and friends, and lifts a long-felt and heavy responsibility from the shoulders of Klamath county and Crater lake park authorities.

It was a responsibility they accepted and discharged with credit. From the day the trail of the missing women was traced to the borders of Klamath county, Sheriff Lloyd Low and Sergeant Marion Barnes and their men maintained a determined search for clues as to their whereabouts. A great deal of time and not a little expense was required. Crater Lake park authorities likewise devoted their efforts to the search, and it was three of the park rangers who finally solved the mystery.

After the gruesome discovery, the Klamath authorities accepted the final responsibility, unpleasant and difficult as it was.

Unhappily, there are in every year a number of tragedies of violence and accident in the Klamath country. The men who must assume the responsibility of handling these unpleasant situations, while the rest of us continue our lives in happier scenes, deserve a good word now and then.

How to Promote Sincerity

SOME of our gubernatorial candidates seem to have the idea that the way to get into office is to make a spectacular campaign.

They may be right, but it is highly doubtful whether Oregon is actually in need of a spectacular governorship.

What this state needs is a man who will go down to Salem and do an efficient job, keeping the machinery of the state government running smoothly and economically and exerting forceful—which doesn't necessarily mean noisy—leadership in the solution of the state's troublesome problems.

The state needs real, rather than professional, friends of the people.

Chances are, the men who do little talking about what they will do are just as likely to do a great deal as those who fill the atmosphere with their promises.

The man who has something for everybody might turn out to have little or nothing for anybody.

Campaign bunk is common in every election. Many recognize it for what it is but tolerate it as a necessary factor to a successful campaign.

Yet the only way to discourage bunk is to vote against it. If everybody would do that a few times, sincerity would have a more important place in political campaigns.

We leave it to the reader to judge the vote-appeal of the slogan of Charles Q. Beach, running for representative from Multnomah county. On the ballot with his name will be: "More than an inch of foam will be a misdemeanor."

Wirt not for Wirt, where would we be headed?

Lake Odell

LAKE ODELL, Ore.—Smiling spring days of the past week have melted the heavy snow which the weather man, in a playful mood, spread over the region about the lake in April Fools' day.

The mercury rises to around 70 degrees each day, the robins are hopping about, wild flowers are blooming and occasionally the song of a lone mosquito is heard as he wings his way about and looks with speculative eye for some tourist on whom to inflict his unwelcome attention. All of these things serve to assure us that Old Man Winter, who at this time last year kept the lake locked in an icy covering and the shore mantled several feet deep with snow, is giving us a new deal this year, a deal most acceptable to home owners in this vicinity.

Best of all, the fishing season opened with a bang, although ten days earlier than usual. Mr. Peterson, of the west end of the lake, reports good catches on the opening day, and A. C. Nagel landed several beauties, both rainbow and dolly varden, the largest weighing around four pounds.

Francis Olds, veteran fly fisherman from Klamath Falls, was plying his trusty fly in his favorite waters at the east end of the lake on the opening day of the season. He declares the trout displayed some interest, at least, and there's no doubt, if good weather continues, fly fishing will soon be at its best. It was stated, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Calloway spent the week at The Dalles.

A. W. Lawrence and son of Salem are spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Nagel.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McCollum have returned to their home from Crescent Lake, where McCollum and son have just completed the lodge for the Hughey resort.

Fisher Bros. are making splendid progress on the highway, and expect to have the Odell unit completed early in July.

NEW REPORTS GATHERED OF BUSINESS RISE

NEW YORK, April 13. (AP)—"Reports from every part of the country this week brought uniform proofs of a further deepening unwavering in business industry," said the Dun and Bradstreet weekly trade review today.

The review commented that "while full credit is accorded the emergency legislation enacted last year for the wholesome betterment provided by the strong foundation laid for business recovery as well as for the strengthening of the nation's banking structure, considerable stress is now being placed on the need for allowing the forward movement to proceed unimpeded by new and unnecessary restrictions."

Regarding the movement of retail trade, the review asserted that "almost without exception, the leading retailers of the country find that the tapering off in business, which usually is apparent after Easter, has not developed as volume last Saturday in some centers was the heaviest for any single day in three years, with the gain reaching 40 to 50 per cent over the comparable period last year, when Easter buying was at its peak."

"In the industrial divisions operating schedules are rising at a more rapid rate than they did in March, unaffected to any major degree by the labor difficulties still unsettled in some districts."

"The leading wholesale markets became unexpectedly active this week, as many buyers were forced to replenish spring goods which had been ordered too sparingly."

COURT DEFENDANT IN DAMAGE SUIT

Suit was filed in circuit court on Thursday against Klamath county, County Judge George Grizzle, Commissioners C. R. Williams and W. F. B. Chase and Boyd Yaden by Lee Hoesley, asking $10,000 for alleged personal damages received while working in the county machine shops February 7, 1933.

Hoesley alleged he lost the sight of one eye, the hearing in one ear, suffered brain and skull injuries and the control of one arm and leg as the result of alleged poor equipment on a tractor engine which he attempted to start.

PINE ASSOCIATION BUSINESS DROPS

PORTLAND, April 13. (AP)—New business amounting to 13,476,000 feet, approximately 3 per cent under the three-year weekly average for April, and 14 per cent under the previous week, was reported by the Western Pine association today for the week ending April 7. Production was 39,730,000 feet, a reduction of 415,000 feet, and shipments for the week totaled $2,307,000.

Current orders for the week were 43,126,000 feet, compared with 32,255,000 feet for the corresponding week a year ago.

AMUSEMENTS

Vox—Now playing, "Wheels of Destiny," with Ken Maynard.

Pelican—Now playing, "I Believed in You," with Rosemary Ames, Victor Jory and John Boles.

Pine Tree—Now playing, "Rangers Code," with Bob Steele.

Rainbow—Now playing, "Telegraph Trail," with John Wayne.

AT THE VOX

KEN MAYNARD and DOROTHY DIX in "WHEELS OF DESTINY" UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION

A really epic screenplay of the early West, said to be the finest of the year in its particular type, is now at the Vox theatre.

It is "Wheels of Destiny," a Universal Western starring the red-blooded Ken Maynard and his palomino mount, Tarzan, and deals with the trek of pioneers who cross western plains in covered wagons to California in search of gold.

Ken distinguishes himself by saving the life of his heroine, played by Dorothy Dix, on several occasions, by outwitting the Indians, and by inspiring the pioneers in the face of treachery, the elements, and man-made hazards. In the cast are Philo McCullough, Frank Rice, Jay Whitale, Ed Coxen, Fred Sale Jr., Fred McKaye and Jack Rockwell, to mention a few. In addition there are hundreds of Indians and scores of members of the wagon train.

AT THE PELICAN
 The American screen will present its newest star to the motion picture audience when Rosemary Ames makes her featured screen debut in "I Believed in You," the Fox production in which she shares featured honors with Victor Jory and John Boles. The film comes to the Pelican today.

The cast, in addition to Miss Ames, Jory and Boles, includes Gertrude Michael, George Meeker, Leslie Fenton, Joyzells, Jed Prouty, Morgan Wallace and Luis Alberni. The production was directed by Irving Cummings from the screen play by William Conselman.

AT THE PINE TREE

Riding across the screen once again in the eighth of his successful series of Monogram Westerns, Bob Steele, ace western star, scores another of his notable triumphs in "Rangers Code," intriguing tale of frontier days, which comes to the Pine Tree theatre, starting today.

Steele, who numbers among his successes such brilliant westerns as "The Fighting Champ," "Trailing North," "Breed of the Border," and "Galloping Romeo," is fast assuming a permanent place as one of the most popular of western stars.

AT THE RAINBOW

"Telegraph Trail," starring John Wayne, comes to the Rainbow theatre today to play its second Klamath Falls engagement. John Wayne has been a long-time favorite with those of Klamath Falls theatre-goers who like real action mixed with their movie entertainment. Packed with thrills and excitement, this story of the western adventure that is so long popular, is worthy of a second engagement where it was so well received at the time of its first showing.

NEGRO MINISTER SPEAKS SUNDAY

The First Methodist church of the city announces as the speaker for Sunday evening Rev. Senator H. La Ley, coast evangelist of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion church, who is in Klamath Falls looking into the possibility of an organization for the colored people of the community.

According to Rev. J. B. Coan, pastor of the church, this colored evangelist is a very interesting character, with an unusual background and training. He is a native of England and of French Senegalese negro stock, and not from the American negro lineage. He is a graduate of the John Wesley Institute at Yorkshire University, and is now a naturalized American citizen.

He has a daughter who will graduate this year from the Harvard school of law at the age of 19, and is expecting to receive appointment from the U. S. government with one of the South American legations.

Rev. La Ley is under the appointment of Bishop J. W. Martin of Los Angeles, the episcopal leader of his church in the West, and is said to be an exceptionally interesting speaker. Invitations are extended to all the colored folk of the community as well as white folk to enjoy this service.

MOTOR INDUSTRY OUTPUT CONTINUES

DETROIT, April 13. (AP)—While strikes and threatened strikes harass the giant automotive industry, its production plants continue to roar out a symphony of returning prosperity.

Although one of its major units was closed for one day because of a promptly settled parts plant strike, production for the current week will total more than 91,000 passenger cars and trucks, compared with 45,892 units in the corresponding week a year ago.

The figures bear out predictions that April output may aggregate 400,000 units. Significant is the fact that while the three leading low priced car producers show little change, increased production has been noted among many makers of cars in the medium priced field.

The industry is behind its orders, and indications are that, barring serious labor difficulties, the upward trend in production will continue for several weeks.

OPEN DISCUSSIONS PLANNED AT CHURCH

The Community Congregational church will begin on Sunday evening a series of open forum meetings for the discussion of topics of community and national interest. Some of these discussions will be prepared and participated in by high school students under the direction of Don Fisher of the high school faculty. Such topics as disarmament, peace and munitions; education and military training; movies and morals will be discussed. Speakers will introduce the subjects from various viewpoints after which the discussion will be open to the meeting.

On Sunday evening, Rev. T. Davis Preston will open the discussion on the subject, "Our Movie Made Children." These meetings begin at 7:30 and are open to all.

A Big Stick Policy the Entire Country Will Soon Endorse

Alive with love, drama and adventure, this story by Katherine Haviland-Taylor will remind you of the year's best seller—Anthony Adverse—though the setting is modern. A story of rare beauty.
