Editorials On the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

AGAIN, as these words are written, not much big news in the papers—except Dillinger, who is getting monotonous.

But plenty of little news—as always.

It's the little news that makes up the real fabric of life.

THE National Student League calls anti-war meetings on campuses in various parts of the country, and a fair number of these meetings, including the one at Harvard, breaks up in riots.

Well, peace should certainly be worth fighting for, shouldn't it?

ODDLY enough, about all the peace we've ever enjoyed in this world we've had to fight for. For that matter, we have to fight for about ALL the good things we get.

MARJORIE WHITEIS, movie actress, sues Harry Joe Brown, movie producer, for $100,000 damages to her affections alleged to have been suffered when Harry Joe failed to marry her after being her boy friend for four years.

The jury gives her $5,000, and she issues a statement to the public through her lawyer expressing satisfaction with the verdict.

AFFECTIONS, like a lot of other commodities in the market, seem to be subject to heavy discounts for cash.

TWO pistols, with fully loaded clips and a spare box of cartridges, were found inside the California penitentiary at Folsom the other day. They were wrapped up in women's stockings.

Plenty of potential trouble there.

THE cynics will point out that a LOT of trouble, potential and otherwise, has been wrapped up in women's stockings.

MAE WEST, we read, has ordered a $7,000 armored automobile, designed to protect her life and looks from marauders of various kinds.

The announcement is made by her studio officials—aided and abetted, of course, by her press agent.

Press agents never overlook things like that.

THIS armored car, it appears, was ordered by Miss West following receipt of numerous threats on her life and a note threatening to throw acid in her face.

Well, Mae was so indiscreet a while back—she made a name for herself, you know, by getting a reputation for indiscretion—as to go into court and secure the conviction of a bandit who robbed her of $13,000 in jewels and $3,400 in cash.

In the best bandit circles, that is regarded as exceedingly bad form.

WHILE we're on the more or less diverting subject of screen actresses, Raquel Torres announces her engagement to Stephen Ames, New York broker.

Stephen, apparently, isn't as broke as a lot of these brokers, for Raquel lets it be known that he gave her a $22,000 imported car as an engagement present.

Some gals have all the luck, don't they?

THAT ought to be about enough of this kind of stuff for one day, and besides this is the end of the sheet of paper.

Manning Trial Opens Monday Morning

FORTY MORE NAMES ADDED TO JURY LIST

State and Defense Lawyers Confer With Judge Wilson.

TRIAL MAY MOVE TO LARGER ROOM

Accommodations Suggested For Public At Murder Case.

A special venire of 40 names was drawn from the June jury list Saturday as final preparations were made for the opening on Monday morning of the trial of Horace M. Manning, charged with the first degree murder of State Legislator Ralph W. Horan.

Drawing of the venire took place at a conference between attorneys for Manning and the state, in the presence of Circuit Judge Fred W. Wilson of The Dalles. The judge, one of Oregon's best known circuit court magistrates, arrived Friday night.

Seventy Jurors Available

The special venire makes approximately 70 prospective jurors available for the opening of the trial, which promises to be one of the most sensational court dramas in the history of Southern Oregon. There are 29 or 30 names on the regular trial panel, which must first be exhausted before venturers are called from the list drawn Saturday.

Judge Wilson reduced the number in the special venire from 75 to 40. He was presented with an unsigned order calling for 75, but expressed the belief that 40 should be sufficient to begin with. The judge was of the opinion that not so much difficulty as anticipated will be encountered in getting a jury for the Manning case.

Judge Studies Reports

"As soon as I was assigned to this case I made a study of the newspaper reports as they were read by the people of this county," said the judge. "I have found nothing in them that should prejudice public opinion, one way or the other. It seems to me that we should be able to get a jury without too much trouble. Of course, we can tell more about that after a day or two of trial, and if necessary I will call for another venire."

The judge has had under consideration the possibility of holding the trial in some larger room than the regular circuit court (Continued on Page Five)

BANDIT VANISHES FOLLOWING RAID

Elusive Dillinger Escapes After Looting Police.

CHICAGO, April 14. (AP)—John Dillinger, America's No. 1 vanishing outlaw, has vanished again.

The "here today and gone tomorrow" criminal left a cold trail in Indiana, where he replenished his arms at the expense of the Warsaw, Ind., police early Friday. Road blockades and scurrying squads of officers determined to shoot on sight failed to catch him.

While fortune smiled on Dillinger one of his girl friends, Miss Evelyn Fretchett—like some of the other acquaintances of the notorious public enemy—was not so fortunate. She was held in $50,000 bond for a hearing April 21 on the question whether she shall be extradited to St. Paul on a charge of helping Dillinger escape a machine gun trap in a St. Paul apartment house.

ANOTHER CHILD LEUKEMIA VICTIM

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 14. (AP)—Willie Mae Miller, four-year-old victim of leukemia, died at a hospital here today after a valiant, but hopeless fight for life.

Her illness had attracted the sympathy of thousands, and she received many letters from all parts of the country.

Physicians said from the first that there was no hope of cure for the disease in which the red corpuscles are routed from the bloodstream by an ever-increasing excess of white corpuscles. Too young to understand the seriousness of her predicament, she had laughed and played with her toys almost to the time of her death.

CITY CENTER OF INTEREST IN POLITICS

Three Governorship Candidates Drop Into Klamath Falls.

FIGHT FOR VOTES GROWING DAILY

Local Developments Over-shadow News Of Primaries.

By Malcolm Epley

Local politics were on their way to a back seat in the publicity wagon Saturday. The Manning trial unquestionably will overshadow the political show in public interest during the coming fortnight, but prospects are that the battle for votes will continue with increasing intensity, even though it may be pushed down in the headlines.

Klamath Falls continued as a center of interest and activity in the governorship race this week, despite the absence of the local gubernatorial candidate, Mayor Mahoney. Three other gubernatorial candidates—Frank Lonergan and Joe Dunne, republicans, and H. E. Wirth, independent—were in town.

Autumn Race Viewed

Confusing reports come in about the Mahoney candidacy, and the information out by the visiting gubernatorial candidates did not clear up all of the questions to be asked in that situation.

There is, however, a noticeable trend among politicians to the belief that Mahoney would be much easier to beat in the fall than Martin. If the democrats nominate the general, it is pretty well conceded that the democrats are going to make a powerful bid for the governorship.

Meier Again Considered

Flit as this theory is the report that if Mahoney and Rufus Holman should be nominated, Governor Julius Meier might come out after the primary as an independent.

There is a lot of speculation about a motive behind the shift of registration from republicans to democrats. One observer, who has been in every part of the state, declared emphatically to this writer that loyal republicans were re-registering to help Mahoney in the hope that he would be nominated and in the belief that a republican nominee could knock over the mayor easier than the general next November.

Another report is that republicans are strongly for Martin, and are re-registering to help the democrats nominate him instead of Mahoney.

Klamath Mayor Preferred

Frank Lonergan, republican candidate who was here on a visit as an Elks officer, intimated he would much rather have Mahoney to fight than Martin, in the fall. Lonergan is recognized as a strong candidate. He is widely known, and has seen much legislative service. He is coming back later on in the campaign.

ACCUSED BANKERS PLEAD NOT GUILTY

3 Arraigned On Charge Of Making False Reports.

CLEVELAND, April 14. (AP)—O. P. Van Sweringen, the railroad magnate, and two Cleveland bankers, were arraigned in Common Pleas court today and pleaded not guilty to indictments for making false reports about the condition of the closed Union Trust company of Cleveland.

Those who appeared with him were Joseph R. Nutt, former chairman of the bank's board and former treasurer of the national republican party, and W. M. Baldwin, former president of the banking institution. All three were indicted yesterday by a Cuyahoga county grand jury for a window-dressing operation of the bank in 1931.

Represented by William H. Boyd and other attorneys, the three men asked for trials early in May, in fact, "at the earliest possible date," and Prosecutor Frank Cullinan agreed to a speedy hearing. It was not decided whether the case would be heard by judges en banc or by a jury.

Bond for Van Sweringen and Nutt was set at $7,500 each and they were released with Baldwin, whose bond was set at $1,000. He is already under $7,500 bond in connection with a previous indictment.

The charge is that the bankers made a false entry in the books and gave a false report to the state banking superintendent. Van Sweringen is accused of abetting them. They faced arraignment in Common Pleas court today.
