By William Braucher (NEA Writer) Sometimes a few inches in air is the difference between greatness and near-greatness.

"Bitty's" case, while replete with upsets that have gained him glory and renown, is pathetic.

Anyone with less intestinal fortitude than the great warrior would have folded up with such a situation facing him, especially since he had gone through the ordeal once before.

In some sports size doesn't play such an important part. Horse racing is one—and the brilliant Equipoise is an outstanding example of this.

Golf is another—Paul Runyan, the classy kid pro, is a mere stripling, yet he won his way through the ranks of bigger men to take his seat on the throne of the club swingers.

Baseball is one more—Little Joe, Sewell, Rabbit Maraville—

But tennis—it takes a big strong frame, a long sweeping set of arms and a pair of legs that can stretch out and cover all corners without tiring under the strain.

KLEIN LEADS CHICAGO TEAM

Shift From Phillies to Cubs Brings Luck for Outfielder.

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. (Associated Press Writer) The expensive experiment of shifting Chuck Klein from right field at Baker Bowl in Philadelphia to the left side of the Cubs' Wrigley field pasture at Chicago appears, after a couple of hasty glances, to be a success.

Nine games so far seem to have allayed any fears about his fielding and about the lesser doubt—that Chuck's hitting might suffer from the change of scene.

Warneke Pitches Well. With the Cubs trailing in the latter stages of the struggle between Carlisle and Lonnie Warneke, Chuck smacked a baseball, advanced to third on Babe Herman's single and scored while George Stainback was grounding out.
