

MOVE WOULD CHANGE U. S. MONEY PLAN

legal tender and redeemable on demand in standard silver dollars and the secretary would be authorized to coin silver dollars for such redemption.

Penalties Requested. He would be further authorized, with the approval of the president, to investigate, regulate and prohibit, by license or otherwise, the acquisition, importation, exportation, or transportation of silver.

A violator of the regulations would be subject to a fine of $10,000 or 10 years imprisonment.

Under the nationalization clause, the president, when in his judgment action was deemed necessary to regulate the value of money, "may" by executive order require the delivery to U. S. mints of "any or all silver by whomsoever owned or possessed."

Such silver would be coined or otherwise added to the monetary stocks and paid for in standard silver dollars or their coin or currency at the monetary value of the silver less deductions for seigniorage, brassage, coinage, or other mint charges.

The price could not be less than the fair value at the time acquired, value to be determined by the market price over a reasonable period prior to acquisition.

Any silver withheld in violation of the executive order shall be forfeited and the violator subjected to a fine equal to twice the monetary value of the silver withheld.

On all transfers of any interest in silver bullion, whether by purchase or otherwise, if the price exceeded the total cost and allowed expenses, a tax of 50 per cent of the amount of such excess would be levied.

Violators of this provision would be subject to a fine of $1,000 or six months in prison. The secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the president, would be authorized to issue whatever regulations he saw fit to carry out the purposes of the proposed act.

The president's message was the outgrowth of a series of agricultural which reached its climax when Senator Thomas, demo, Oklahoma, offered mandatory silver legislation as an amendment to the Glass Industrial loan bill.

Senator Pittman, demo, Nev., introduced the bill in the senate and in a speech declared it represented the culmination of long years of effort to bring about legislation to give the white metal a more prominent place in the monetary picture.

White house conference followed and last Wednesday an agreement was announced on a bill which would make mandatory silver building up of a 25 per cent silver monetary reserve, but leave to the president's discretion the manner and time for acquiring this silver.

Likewise nationalization was left in the hands of Mr. Roosevelt. Treasury experts have said nationalization would probably not unless there should be a large silver movement out of the United States. The present floating supply in this country is estimated at 250,000,000 ounces, mostly in bullion form.

Probably the most important development since this agreement was reached was President Roosevelt's reference in his message to international discussions.

"I have begun to confer with some of our neighbors in regard to the use of both silver and gold, preferably on a coordinate basis, as a standard of monetary value," the president said.

Some experts interpreted the president's language to hold "symmetrism" as the ultimate objective for a world monetary standard, though they conceded the language was not absolutely clear on this point.

Symmetrism would create a combination gold and silver unit as the standard value. The present standard unit of value in the United States is the gold dollar of 15 5-21 grains, nine-tenths fine.

Dead Doctor Heals Stomach Ailments

A weird story told of well-known specialist reaching from the grave to cure stomach suffering. Years ago this doctor created a prescription for stomach ailments, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, indigestion, bloating, belching, and other symptoms which caused his death. But his name brought fame after death as one user told another of his wonderful recovery. In the past six years, 84,169 grateful persons have written letters telling of their recoveries.

This prescription is now known to hundreds of thousands as the Udo's Treatment. All stomach sufferers may have a free sample by writing to Udo's, 814 S. First Street, Bldg., St. Paul, Minn. The seven-day trial box of Udo's Tablets is sold under a money-back guarantee of satisfaction by troit, Grand Rapids and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., as well as at St. Joseph, Mo., Toledo, O., and Laporte, Ind., but on the whole the showers were not regarded by crop experts as sufficient to salvage substantial amounts of crops that have been burning for days beneath a relentless sun.

In Nebraska, one of the hardest hit of the rainless states, there were a few light showers that helped bring relief from the intensive heat, but which gave little help to the farmers.

Damage Reports Heard. Showers were predicted in parts of Illinois, Indiana, lower Michigan, Missouri and Kansas today, but no general downpour was in sight.

Meanwhile reports continued to pour in from many sections of irreparable damage from the long dry spell. H. C. Donovan, a Chicago crop expert, said wheat stands in western Kansas, eastern Colorado and Nebraska were virtually ruined.

Crops in other sections of the wheat belt, he added, may be saved if heavy rains fall within the next two weeks.

Fall Politics Draw Interest

J. R. Shaw, former police chief, is rumored as a possibility for the mayor race. Shaw, no longer a political friend of Mahoney, reported to be anxious to make a contest against Mahoney.

Ex-Mayor Fred Cofer is reported to be considering entering the lists again. Cofer was edged out by Mahoney in the unique election of 1932.

Clifton Richmond, police judge, has been persistently rumored as a mayoralty candidate.

J. E. Hoskins, city councilman, is believed to have given the matter some thought and would probably make a strong race.

Mahoney Returns Awaited. If Mahoney chooses to return to local politics, changes may be made in some of the plans that were forming before the primary election, when many believed Mahoney was through with running for local offices. The mayor, of course, has given no intimation of what his plans are. He is out of the city for the present, but is expected back this week.

Shrewd political observers think that Joe Dunne is going to make Martin even more uncomfortable than did Mahoney.

The republican nominee is a great campaigner. He is a sort of a cross between the conservative and progressive politician, and can draw strength from both camps.

He is expected to get a share of the Mahoney votes. The Meler-Hansen political group is expected to go for him. He can be expected to get much of the vote that went to Sam Brown in the primary.

Martin will have the advantage of being a democrat and his election will put the state in line with the federal administration. Martin was possibly the nearest to a silk-stocking in the primary governorship race. He did not come out of the primary with the overwhelming victory promised for him when he first announced months ago.

There seems to be little prospect of a walkaway for either side in the fall governorship contest. Some prophets see a Dunne victory.

William Ganong, runner-up candidate for circuit judge, in a letter to the editor of this newspaper, disposed of any belief that he might be considering a write-in or independent race for circuit judge.

Mentioned as possible independents in the district attorney race are Lamar Townsend, associate in the law business with Edward B. Ashurst, and Stanley Jones, former police chief here and local attorney.

OREGON ROAD POLICY MEETS NEW TROUBLES

gon's share to about $1,500,000 to be dispensed on a basis of $750,000 on primary highways, $325,000 on secondary highways and $325,000 on primary routes through cities.

"To reduce available funds in this extent would make it impossible for us to finance the program we have mapped out for the coming year," he said. "To distribute such an amount of money over the state equitably would mean the abandonment of practically all of the major projects we have planned and for which surveys and plans have been made in anticipation of putting them under way during the summer and fall."

Officials Notified. The highway commission would have to scrap the ratios by which it has been appropriating federal funds to the various districts of the state and concentrate the money in certain spots, or it would be compelled to disregard important unfinished projects such as the Fourth street extension out of Portland, relocation of the Columbia river highway at Bonneville, completion of straightening and widening operations on the Siskiyou grade south of Ashland and other big jobs, Baldoock stated.

Baldoock today dispatched a telegram to Rep. Charles H. Martin and Sen. Charles McNary picturing the seriousness of the threat of a reduced appropriation and asking full information as to the status of the Cartwright bill and its prospects of enactment. It has already been passed by the house.

He explained Mexican law requires that ministers of any church must be Mexican citizens. That the republic has provided all church property is state property and the government has limited the number of ministers in any community.

44 INJURED IN MIDWEST CITY BATTLE

the union and the hiring and dispatching halls.

PORTLAND QUIET. PORTLAND, May 22 (P)—A state of immobile siege continued along Portland's harbor line and the lower Columbia river today as the second week of the worst waterfront strike in a generation drew to a close.

A fleet of 26 vessels, 23 of them in the Portland harbor, remained inactive at their piers. During the two weeks several eyes were blackened, some heads bumped and some knuckles skinned, but that was about the extent of the casualties.

DORE TO ACT. SEATTLE, May 22 (P)—With a police guard for non-union workmen, Mayor John F. Dore announced today he will attempt to reopen this port tomorrow, closed since May 9 because of the longshoremen's strike.

"The police will ride all trucks, as guards, for anyone who really wants to carry cargo to or from the docks and ships," he said, "and the police will prevent any strike pickets from entering the docks or boarding the ships in process of being loaded or unloaded."

Complete Mastery Regarded In Power

the list of advisers which Howe, with the aid of newspaper men in Washington, New York, Chicago, and other eastern cities, selected after a month's survey. Howe made one trip through the east to obtain first-hand information.

Gerard's list was made up principally of bankers, financiers, and big industrialists. Howe found that these classes are not represented among Roosevelt's advisers.

"The closest approach to a financier," he said, "is Bernard Baruch. Then there is Jesse Jones, a spectacular real estate operator. Jones, who is a natural leader and tremendously ambitious, is reasonably close to Roosevelt, but the President keeps everyone at a respectful distance.

"Louis McHenry Howe is his intellectual valet; Jim Farley, his political strategist, whose advice is seldom taken except regarding party organization. Vice-President Garner doesn't speak or understand the language of most of those who surround the President, but is loyal.

"Hugh Johnson is a bogey man who over did it. He takes orders from the President. The thunder is his own, the lightning Roosevelt's.

"Rex Tugwell is a socialite, a brilliant conversationalist, a dull thinker. He has become publicity goat of the administration, and likes it. Salvoes hurried at him are intended for the President. He is headed out."

Howe said he found the "brain trust not very brainy" and Roosevelt's cabinet "mediocre."

"One or two of the cabinet members simply answer roll call," he said. "They don't know what it is all about. Cordell Hull, Henry Wallace, and Harold Ickes stand out in the cabinet. They have a deeper and more profound understanding of the economic status of this country than any three men in the inner circle.

"If Frances Perkins were a man she might be a president herself. Howe places her fourth on the list of advisers.

"Never in the history of the United States, not excepting the administrations of George Washington and Woodrow Wilson, has one individual so completely dominated this country as does Roosevelt," Howe continued.

"He stands next to Mussolini and Lenin, and above Stalin and Hitler in having complete mastery of the nation.

"Howe said to travel not to the left nor to the right, but straight to the hearts of the people. If he had been the war president, he likely would have out-Wilsoned Wilson.
