LUMBER CODE NOT AFFECTED BY NEW AIMS

by the new NRA policy on abandonment of price fixing.

PORTLAND, June 8, (AP)—The current lumber code authority prices will remain in effect in the Western Pine area, it was said by the Western Pine association here today upon receipt of word from the code authority in Washington, D. C., that despite general abandonment by the NRA of price fixing, the minimum lumber price control will continue.

Messages to the association from the lumber code authority indicated that negotiations now pending may substantially strengthen the minimum price structure. Meanwhile, present lumber code prices will remain effective.

Emergency Considered

The supporting action probably will take the form of an emergency provision to be announced by the NRA, messages said.

It was explained by the Western Pine association regional core administrator that many operators foresaw in abandonment of minimum prices, possible shutdowns and unemployment for crews. Cost protection was described as particularly necessary because of minimum wage restrictions provided in the lumber code. Without a price guarantee, it was explained, a downward market movement would in some cases make operations impossible should present wage levels be maintained.

George T. Gerlinger, lumber operator here and chairman of the labor committee of the West Coast Lumbermen's association, the administrative agency for soft wood mills other than those cutting pine, said there will be some modification in cost protection, making it less restrictive.

Disadvantages Pointed Out

"It is my opinion," Gerlinger said, "that we will be able to retain cost protection on a modified scale. We can show that an emergency exists. It is the need for protection of our wage scale, which is now generally higher than the minimum code rate."

Gerlinger explained that abandonment of the minimum price structure would "put a good many uneconomic units in a disadvantageous position."

FORESTRY MEN MEET.

PORTLAND, June 8. (AP)—Nine forest supervisors of the Douglas fir territory were gathered here today to discuss ways and means of preventing the disastrous forest fires which each year destroy hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of Oregon's finest timber.

Female mosquitoes require human blood to enable them to produce their eggs. To draw the blood they must first thin it by injecting a poison. This causes the swelling in a mosquito "bite." But far worse, this spreads the germs of disease and endangers thousands of human lives.

trict attorney and prosecuting witness."

Van Vactor said that Klatt is also accused of making away with a radio from a local shop, of bilking Mrs. Murray of Malin out of her sewing machine, and of bilking Dr. E. Dietsche.

Long Career Described

"His whole career shows he has habitually practiced beating other people," said the prosecutor. "For the protection of the general public, it is time to put a stop to his activities."

The prosecutor then cited Klatt's alleged record as follows:

1914—Portland Ore. Held for petty larceny, released.

1917—St. Helen's Ore., as Ernest C. Klatt. Thirty days in jail for drunkenness.

1925—Buena Vista, Colo. Burglary. Paroled.

1927—Oregon State penitentiary as Ernest C. Deane. From Douglas county for larceny. Discharged.

1928—State prison, Lincoln, Nebraska, as Ray Charles Webb, from Cheyenne county for larceny. Four-year sentence.

1930—Omaha, Nebr., pleaded guilty to violating motor vehicle act. One year state prison sentence.

1931—Aberdeen, S. D.—Violating of Dyer act, one year state prison.

1932—State prison, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, burglary. One year; Portland, vagrancy. Suspended sentence, 90 days.

1933—Jackson county, obtaining money under false pretenses.

Judge Duncan remarked that Van Vactor had not prepared charges which would make possible sentencing Klatt to a life term under the habitual criminal act.

Record Denied

When told to stand up for sentence, Klatt stated that he was not responsible for the Murray incident at Malin, nor the Dietsche case. He said nothing about the record read by Van Vactor.

The judge then pronounced the 10-year sentence.

Klatt has told officers he is only 26 years of age, and that checks with his age given at the state penitentiary. It was noted, however, that if he is only 26 years of age, the record read by Van Vactor would indicate he was jailed for petty larceny when 5 or 6 years old and served 30 days for drunkenness when 8 or 9 years old.

Asked about this, the officers said they believed Klatt older than he says he is. They said the record on him came from Warden Lewis of the state penitentiary.

Klatt was arrested for Klamath county officers by the sheriff of Los Angeles county, California, and brought here recently by Deputy Sheriff Rex McMillan. He pleaded guilty to the larceny charge.

McMillan said while he was at Los Angeles word came from Berkeley, saying Klatt was wanted there on a charge of stealing a woman's bank book and purse.

Identification Made

Mrs. Murray of Malin was taken to the county jail Thursday and identified Klatt as a man who, in February, took her sewing machine away for repairs and never returned with it.

Deputy Sheriff Davis is expected to take Klatt to Salem, in company with Carl R. Houk, who was given one year for forgery, and Jesus Jara, who will serve 18 months for sale of marijuana.

Dr. Boyd received word that his daughter was to be picked up by airplane and taken on to Seattle.

The Klamath dentist said Miss Boyd expected to arrive in Portland Saturday, there to meet Mrs. Boyd, who has been visiting in Portland with Mrs. Lee Harding. Dr. Boyd expected to drive to Portland in a few days and bring his wife and daughter to Klamath Falls.

Miss Boyd was one of nine passengers on the United Airlines ship that crashed in fog and foul weather.

human use of our national resources of land and water over a long period of years."

It involves abandoning millions of acres for agricultural use and replacing them with better land.

The president disclosed he has begun actual studies looking to a unified system of social insurance, including unemployment and old age.

"I believe," he said, "there should be a maximum of cooperation between states and the federal government. I believe that the funds necessary to provide this insurance should be raised by contribution rather than by an increase in general taxation."

States to Help

The states, he said, "should meet at least a large part of the management cost," leaving the federal government the task of investing and safeguarding the reserves.

The president struck at the critics who say the government should devote itself to recovery first and reform later.

"It is childish," he said, "to speak of recovery first and reconstruction afterward. In the very nature of the processes of recovery we must avoid the destructive influences of the past."

The remarks about homes were interpreted as a declaration for enactment of the housing bill at this session. This bill is intended to encourage repair and building of homes by a partial government guarantee of loans.

About the new deal in general, the president said:

"We have sought to put forward the rule of fair play in finance and industry.

"It is true that there are a few among us who would still go back. These few offer no substitute for the gains already made, nor any hope for making future gains for human happiness.

"They loudly assert that individual liberty is being restricted by government, but when they are asked what individual liberties they have lost, they are put to it to answer."

Staff Will Stay in Local Office

From reliable sources it has been learned that the state board of the Home Owners Loan Corporation is considering retaining the staff of the district offices here without appointing a manager.

Edward B. Ashurst, former district manager, resigned his post early this week, and Sam Mothershead, of the office staff, has been temporarily appointed to fill the vacancy left by Ashurst's resignation.

instructors who have appeared here.

The last day's session was devoted principally to recipes important to the complete meal, meat courses being especially featured and inexpensive cuts of meat being given prominence.

As an example, a fruited pork roast, deliciously made from a shoulder cut, was roasted in an open pan, a method long advocated by the Homemakers' Bureau to avoid the necessity of basting, except that in this instance basting was done with pineapple juice to add a tasty zest new to everyone.

Surface cookery of meats was capably demonstrated with a Porto Rican pot roast from an inexpensive cut of rump beef, with potato pancakes suggested and demonstrated as a worthy companion for this unusual dish.

Two distinct innovations in breakfast dishes were eagerly welcomed by an audience familiar with the repetition so commonplace in modern breakfasts. One recipe provided a fluffy French toast, fried in deep fat, and the other, appropriately termed Baked Humpty Dumpties, produced baked eggs served with bacon in novel style.

Perhaps you don't know what Harlequin Velvet is. If you don't, it's because you weren't present to discover that it's dessert, a frozen dessert, quite the most surprising frozen dessert local women have seen demonstrated in a good, long time, for it is made from a mixture of coffee, maple and prunes, with the aid of whipped evaporated milk. In this connection, it was a revelation to most of those present to learn that evaporated milk can be whipped, often more satisfactorily and always at less expense than whipping cream, simply by chilling it and adding two tablespoonsful of lemon juice to each cup.

Another joyous discovery to many was the introduction of Souffled Crackers, magically but simply made by soaking ordinary crackers in ice water and baking in a hot oven for 45 minutes, while sandwiches were called to the fore in the shape of Broiled Bean Snacks made with canned baked beans and cheese. And speaking of cheese, it was very much among those recipes present, for it appeared prominently, playing the leading role in Cheese Nuggets, made with cream cheese, lettuce and French dressing, and in Pinwheels of bacon and cream cheese.

So complete was the program, in fact, that even the lowly codfish was elevated to a place of honor, and given a tempting new dress which is said to do wonders for his flavor, just as his economy and year-round availability do wonders for the purse and patience.

MAHONEY SILENT ON FALL CAMPAIGN

Mayor W. E. Mahoney stated Friday that he had received a copy of a resolution adopted by the Oregon Democratic league, meeting at Multnomah, Ore., seeking to draft him as a candidate for governor. The mayor said the resolution did not stipulate whether the intention was that he should run independently. The meeting was held June 5. The league is to have 5000 members.

The mayor Friday declined to comment on his plans. In response to an Associated Press query as to whether he intends to run independently for congress — the prevailing rumor about him—he stated he was "too busy with local affairs to discuss politics."

A local matter receiving the mayor's attention at this time is the status of the city planning commission. He said that it appears additional legislation is necessary in this connection, and that matters are coming up which will need the attention of such a group as the planning commission.

NEWBERG, Ore., June 8 (AP)—Due to inability to get sulphur for bleaching, and absence of facilities for shipping the product, the Spaulding Pulp & Paper mill here has closed indefinitely because of the coast longshoremen's strike.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP)—Negotiations for an agreement to prevent the threatened steel strike were postponed today until tomorrow afternoon, with every indication that government efforts for settlement were proceeding satisfactorily.

Mike F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, the union which has been threatening the strike, came from Hugh S. Johnson's office with this statement:

"We will meet here again at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. No agreement has been reached yet. We are optimistic, but then we are always optimistic.

"We are going now to give a report on the general proposal to the rest of our groups."

Klamath Woman Escapes Death in Air Mishap of nine took off from Felts Field, Spokane, yesterday afternoon, and was last reported near Summit, in the Cascades.

Then it crashed as the night began. Hansen said he was thrown from the pilot's cockpit. With a possible nasal fracture, teeth knocked out, severe shock and cuts, he wrenched the compass from the dashboard. One of the women started with him, but could not keep up. With a strip torn from her dress, Hansen left a trail of little pieces of cloth to guide rescuers on the backward trail as he beat his way through the timber, sometimes dropping the compass and clawing frantically about the dark ground to find it.

Reaching Selleck, the lumber railroad, he found a telephone and started rescue parties to the scene on foot. Today the speeder began clanking over the battered rails of the virtually abandoned logging railroad, from the east side of Taylor creek. Hansen, who had stumbled through a roaring creek in water to his knees during the latter part of his trip, was taken to Virginia Mason hospital at Seattle, where physicians today said he was doing well.

Miss Mooney was thought to be the girl who gave part of her dress to Hansen when he started out.

Beezley said on his arrival here today that Stewardess Bennett attended the pilot, Redfield, whose arm was broken, and the two injured passengers all night, and that a lean-to was made to protect Redfield from the elements.

Beezley said Redfield's quick action probably saved the lives of all in the plane when it crashed. Hansen was peering into the swirling fog, when trees suddenly loomed ahead.

"Redfield saw he was going to crash," said Beezley, "and gave her the gun. The ship nosed up and she mushed into the hill. If we had hit nose-on at high speed, I'm sure all of us would have been killed."

As it was, he said, the wings were torn off, but the cabin of the sturdy plane withstood the shock.

Beezley said that when Miss Mooney left the plane, she never returned to it.

judge instructed them this was not possible and they returned to their deliberations.

These continued until 2 a. m., when the jury went to bed. Resumption of deliberations Friday failed to bring a verdict.

Miss Short is the daughter of County Clerk Mae K. Short. The accident on which the suit is based occurred last summer on South Sixth street.

Medical Testimony Used

Medical evidence regarding Miss Short's injuries played an important part in both plaintiff's and defense testimony.

The car is which she was riding at the time of the accident was driven by Walter Hannon. The other machine was a Lost River dairy truck.

D. R. Vandenberg handled the case for the plaintiff, and Henry E. Perkins represented the defense. Re-trial of the case appeared likely.

Miss Short asked for $25,000 general damages and several hundred dollars special damages.
