A Happy Outcome

PASSENGER airplane crashes into mountains have almost invariably resulted in death to some or all of those aboard. In the past few years there have been a number of shocking disasters of this kind. In the light of their memory, there is cause for the greatest gratification at the outcome of the accident in Washington involving a plane in which a Klamath Falls young woman was a passenger.

Press dispatches indicate that the escape of those aboard the plane was not entirely due to luck. The skill of the pilot was warmly praised, and his quick work was largely responsible for the happy outcome of the accident. A passenger described the incident:

"We were cruising along through the fog and could see nothing outside. Suddenly a peak, or hill, loomed up in front of us. When Pilot Redfield saw the hill he gave her the gun and zoomed her up. The plane slid bottomwise into the hill. Had he hit nose-on at high speed we would all have been killed. As it was the wings and fuselage were wrecked. The cabin of the plane remained intact."

It should also be noted that the co-pilot, Hansen, walked and crawled three miles to a telephone, although he was suffering severe face and leg lacerations and possible skull fracture.

Thus, it would seem from the press dispatches that the pilots of that airplane discharged their responsibilities as brave and skillful men.

Ten Years in Prison

IN CIRCUIT court here Friday a young man was sentenced to ten years in the state penitentiary. The jolt was a heavy one, and would never have been dealt for the single incident that brought this prisoner before the court.

It was no doubt the man's record that influenced the court in imposing the severe penalty. That record was so bad that, had the authorities so desired, they could possibly have brought a life term under the habitual criminal act. This man had been in the custody of the authorities nine times and several charges were pending against him at distant points when he was brought here.

He is a young man, of good appearance. By the nature of his activities, it would seem that he must possess a winning personality that inspires confidence. It was an asset that might easily have made him successful in an honest way. His abuse made him a dismal failure.

His trip to Salem for ten years should not pass unnoticed as the reward of a persistent effort to defeat the law.

The junior chamber of commerce is hard at work on plans for the boat regatta here June 17. It needs the help of the people of the community in spreading information about the regatta and bringing a huge crowd to Klamath Falls for that event. The entry list indicates that a great show is in prospect, and those who boom the regatta can do so without damaging their consciences.

Klamath Union high school band was second in the contest at Medford Friday. Making it possible for the bandmen to attend the jubilee and compete in this event was well worth while, and all who helped are to be commended.

From San Francisco, 15 airplanes flew to the Medford jubilee Saturday. The flight was sponsored by the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce. More evidence of California's interest in Southern Oregon.

The Salem Statesman hasn't heard that any women have been bitten by the black widow, and remarks that it is the men who fall for widows in black and red trimmings.

A nudist slipped into the senate gallery the other day, clad only in loin cloth and sandals. Clerks and ushers pushed him out. That's being rude to the nude.

Malin Grangers Attack County Library Board

A charge that an attempt has been made to "return the Klamath county library to the status of a political plum and to lower its standard" is made in a resolution adopted June 8 by the Malin grange.

The grange resolution commended the grange master, A. E. Street, for his "attempt to maintain and continue the library standard."

Street is also a member of the library board. This week, following the appointment of Fred Fleet as a member of the board, Miss Mary McComb was selected librarian by a vote of 3 to 2.

Members of the grange explained that they believe a graduate librarian is necessary to maintain the high standards of the library.

The Malin resolution follows: "Whereas, the Klamath county library has of recent years been taken out of Klamath county politics, raised to a high standard and giving a service of which the people of Klamath county may well be proud; and

"Whereas, a successful attempt has just been made to return the Klamath county library to the status of a political plum and to lower its standard; and

"Whereas, the master of this grange in his capacity as member of the county library board consistently has opposed this unconstitutional change in library policy; Now, therefore, be it resolved, by Malin grange, in regular session assembled this sixth day of

News Behind the News

The Inside Story From The Capital
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The big point behind the steel strike menacing that has been going on is whether the union can afford to strike.

Employers assert the union is not strong enough. Their figures show only 10 per cent of the 400,000 steel workers are in the A. F. of L. union. Such figures are so low.

Just as far out of line with the truth is the union contention that the industry is 50 per cent organized.

A certain non-partisan official source has made a careful check and concluded that the real figure is somewhere between 30 and 40 per cent. Roughly, a third of the workers have signed up with amalgamated (A. F. of L.) Another third can be classed as company union men. The last third is unorganized.

CONCENTRATION
Off-hand, you would think these impartial figures prove that the amalgamated cannot conduct a first-class strike. There is, however, another phase.

The union is supposed to be strongest in the big mills, such as the plant of Carnegie steel along the Monongahela river, and several of the largest in West Virginia, Gary, East Chicago and Indiana harbor.

The effects of a strike, therefore, would certainly be concentrated in these areas.

It might embarrass steel production more than the number of union workers would indicate.

TALENT
An even more important union defect has been noticeable in the backstage maneuvering.

Union leaders have an enthusiasm which is not matched either by their brilliance or experience. Likewise, they could use more money and personal unity. These are inadequacies from which all union movements suffer more or less.

Employers can and do hire the best executive, legal and publicity talent. For instance, one of the large steel corporations recently employed a vice president at a salary supposed to be $75,000 a year for the main purpose of organizing the company unions.

Publicity directors function like a clock.

The union boys had so much trouble with their early leadership that their nominal leader (Mike Tische) pulled out and went back to Pittsburgh during the thick of the fight. The quarter which took over the fight is advised by a young newsman, whose salary is far from $75,000 a year.

This is a rightly important technical angle when you consider that the average outside citizen (who knows nothing of the merits of the steel strike case) does not understand why anyone would strike with nine million people out of work already.

POLITICS
The November census bill was a little too rough politically, even for many of the democrats.

It was such a poorly disguised effort to dole out $2-a-day jobs for census takers that forty-four democrats voted against the bill and fifty-one were absent, many purposely. (The democratic leaders persuaded 261 to stay and vote for it.)

What let the political polecat out of the bag is the fact that the census takers are not to get the jobs until after they vote in the congressional elections.

When you get forty-four democrats to oppose and fifty-one to remain away from a patronage bill of that kind, you know it must be a rather brazen piece of monkey business.

THIRD PARTY
There will be no third party movement. All the talk about it since Henry Fletcher's election as head of the R. N. C. is only wistful hope.

Most of the Republican progressives, like Senator Borah and Nye, are wise enough to keep Boring from within the republican party. They will unquestionably conduct an inner campaign to install liberals as county and state chairmen. Their aim will be to capture the republican organization and take control of the next Republican national convention away from the Hillies and Hoover clans.

This sort of a campaign has some chance of success. A third party movement has none.

JOB
Fletcher's job will be twofold (A) to get some money and (B) to keep peace in the republican family. He can get a better start than most people on the money end by going into his own pocket. As for the second, his entire career has been devoted to diplomacy.

Man's false claims are being made about his progressivism, based on his affiliation with Teddy Roosevelt. Those who were on the inside in those days say Fletcher was affiliated with Roosevelt because they were friends of rough rider days, and not because Mr. Fletcher was burning with zeal for the Roosevelt policies.

SPRY
Ex-Justice Holmes of the supreme court is as spry mentally as when he left the court. Leaving Washington recently for his Massachusetts country home, to spend his ninety-fourth summer, he sent birthday greetings to a friend who is seventy years old, saying: "My boy, preserve your youth. It is the only thing you have."

The two great claws of a lobbyist are made for different purposes: One for cutting and the other for crushing. When a claw is lost in an accident, the one that replaces it may be of the opposite type, however.

The gift presented to the high school by the seniors was a complete flag pole, with enough cash to build a seat around the base of the pole.

After the exercises the young people enjoyed a dance. This took the place of the annual picnic, the weather not being favorable to hold a picnic.

In reality, lasting prosperity never yet has been created without hard work, and probably never will be.

AMUSEMENTS AT THE PELICAN

Pelican—Now playing, "I've Got Your Number." Sunday, "Journal of Crime," with Ruth Chatterton and Adolphe Menjou. Pine Tree—Now playing, "Voices in the Night." Sunday, "East of Fifth Avenue," with Wallace Ford, Mary Carlisle and Dorothy Tree.

Rainbow—Now playing, "Ace of Aces." Sunday, "Good Dame," with Sylvia Sydney and Frederic March. Vox—Now playing, "Riptide." Sunday, "Men in White," with Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Elizabeth Allan.

AT THE PELICAN
Ruth Chatterton will be the stellar attraction at the Pelican theatre tomorrow, when she appears in her latest First National picture, "Journal of a Crime," which is said to afford her the greatest opportunity of her career to display her unusual dramatic talent.

Miss Chatterton has the role of the murderess who loves her husband, a part played by Adolphe Menjou, with such desperation she can't bear to give him up for another. Menjou, really in love with his wife, but so infatuated by the star of his musical show that he is ready to break up his home, eventually finds that love again through one of the most unusual incidents.

AT THE PINE TREE
Comedy, drama and tragedy are crowded into the confines of an East Side New York boarding house in "East of Fifth Avenue," which begins its run at the Pine Tree theatre Sunday. Heading the cast of this exceptionally interesting production are Wallace Ford, Mary Carlisle and Dorothy Tree, with Walter Connolly, Walter Byron, Luellen Littlefield and Maude Eburne in supporting roles. The direction is by Albert Rogell.

AT THE RAINBOW
Sylvia Sydney and Frederic March, who were last seen together in "Merrily We Go to Hell," returns once again Sunday co-starring in Paramount's "Good Dame," at the Rainbow theatre. And once again they demonstrate their superb ability to sustain appealing characterizations through a fine, entertaining picture. Though the two stars are in practically every scene in the picture, not for a tiny moment is one's interest permitted to lag.

AT THE VOX
"Men in White," which opens Sunday at the Vox Theatre, brings not only a romantic new emotional team to the screen, but also one of the most dramatic stories ever filmed. The picture is a faithful adaptation of this season's outstanding Broadway hit of the same name. The dramatic background of the story is a modern hospital, vivid and gripping in the gamut of unveiled emotions which only a hospital knows. Richard Boleslavsky directed. Clark Gable and Myrna Loy are co-starring and the featured players include Jean Harsholt, Elizabeth Allan, Otto Kruger, C. Henry Gordon, Russell Hardie, Wallace Ford, Henry B. Walthall and Russell Hopton.

SCHOOL TAX COUNT SHOWS BIG MARGIN

SALEM, June 9. (AP)—The general sales tax proposal for schools voted on June 18 was defeated by a majority of 81,905 votes, the most decisive result of any of the five measures listed on the primary election ballots, the official results released by the secretary of state's office today showed.

The canvass of the votes will not be made officially until Monday, but figures will be prepared on all candidates and measures prior to that time. The sales tax proposal attracted the largest vote on measures as well with a total of 221,859, of which 64,877 approved and 156,982 opposed. The total votes cast was slightly in excess of 50 per cent of the registration.

The constitutional amendment providing for a verdict in criminal cases not punishable by death by 10 of a jury of 12, and further providing optional jury trial in criminal cases was approved by 24,016 majority. The vote was 117,445 in favor and 83,430 against.

The only other measure carried by vote was the bill authorizing a state tuberculosis hospital in Multnomah county, by a small majority of 5,644. The vote was 104,457 for and 98,813 against.

The accompanying measure to the hospital bill which would have authorized an insane asylum to be constructed in Multnomah county, was defeated by a 16,245 majority. The vote was 92,565 for and 108,816 against.

The voters defeated the constitutional amendment which would provide a two-thirds vote for issuance of county and district bonds by a vote of 83,424 for and 96,629 against.
