WASHINGTON
News Behind the News
The Inside Story From The Capital

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Personal relations between the White House and a number of democratic congressmen are in need of mending.
No one says much about it, but it explains a lot of the inside troubles the administration has been having with its legislative program during the closing days.
There was something of that element in the difficulties experienced with Chairman Smith, of the senate agriculture committee, and Chairman Steagall, of the house banking committee, over the Turwell nomination and the housing bill.
Ordinarily, the chairman of the senate agriculture committee is a fairly big shot as regards agricultural policies. That has not been so since Smith became chairman. The original AAA bills were introduced and championed by Floor Leader Robinson and others last year.
Then, in this session, along came the cotton bill. If there is one thing Senator Smith is more interested in than patronage, it is cotton. His nickname is "Cotton Ed." But, when the latest AAA cotton bill was proposed, it was not Smith, but Senator Bankhead who undertook the leadership for the administration.
Mr. Steagall has had almost the same experience as chairman of the house banking committee. Speaker Rainey went out of his way to keep several administration bills from falling into Mr. Steagall's hands early in the session.

SIDE GLANCES—by George Clark

"Oh, don't pay any attention to him; he's always like that about his food."

Roosevelt did not have enough good soldiers to save the bill.
MORAL
The moral of this situation is that bread cast upon political waters returns more swiftly than upon ordinary seas. The secret of good politics is to have all friends and no enemies.
A snubbed politician never forgets.
NRA BIRTHDAY
There is no need to tell how good or bad the NRA is today on its first birthday. General Johnson and Clarence Darrow will attend to that. What they will not tell is how big it is. No figures have ever been given out, but you can get them from the right parties.
These show that NRA population has jumped to 3,000. It has its own post office, telegraph office, railroad ticket office, and publishes its own daily newspaper. Last month its wage bill was over half a million dollars. It has two huge floors of the commerce building and overflows in to eight other office buildings. Its telephone directory lists 2,500 extensions, and it has two private wires to New York. Every day it gets 4,000 letters and mails 6,000. The daily paper is a digest of what the country's leading newspapers are saying about this most publicized of new deal agencies.
Almost everything NRA says or does has to be broadcast in black and white, so it has a mimeograph plant consisting of fifteen mimeograph presses and sixteen multigraph presses. On an average day, 325,000 sheets pass through these presses. That comes to about three tons of paper a week just for mimeographing.

would be today. He expected to have a staff of 200.

It is true, as charged, that an official of General Motors Acceptance Corporation helped frame the housing bill. He is reputed to be the best expert in the country on consumer credit.

There is a lot of talk about making Mr. Farley's man, Emil Hurja, new champion of the democratic national committee. If it is not Hurja, it will be a similar trusted lieutenant of Farley.

Considerable inside political pressure is being brought to prevent the appointment of Federal Trade Commissioner Matthews to the new securities control board. The conservatives do not like him because he is a Wisconsin progressive. Matthews gave up a high salaried job as adviser to the Insull receivers, at Mr. Roosevelt's insistence, to take his federal trade commission job.

Telling the Editor

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor): The black widow spider is going to become a menace here as long as people are going to be frightened over the situation and refuse to know anything about her. To face things fair and square, one should know what she looks like, and enough other information to do a share of prevention.
Other localities have their pestilences, from tornadoes and floods clear down to mosquitoes. But that does not frighten the world away—they do things to prevent these troubles and ills. Those who are flying from all the pestilences of this earth are better off bitten and dead. They will never find peace any other way. And they are no help to overcome any difficulty.
Dr. A. A. Soule, city health officer, has written a leaflet describing the black widow, giving a method of control, and informing the reader in a clear and sensible way what to do and what not to do. We understand the pamphlet has been withheld from distribution because of the fears of some individuals. It was not intended to and does not frighten any person who reads it for information. If the one who reads it is looking for something frightening, he will be disappointed unless he is imaginative enough to be frightened over any information and promotion of intelligence, and if so, he had better, at least keep his ignorance to himself.
Why keep everything so quiet? Is that going to help the situation, frighten the spider away

Hint for Oregonians

"WHILE we have never been open so early in the past as this year, the three weeks that we have been open is better than any three weeks we have ever had . . . About 90 per cent of our travel is coming from California."
So wrote Richard Price of Crater Lake National Park Co. to the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce.
"Ninety per cent of our travel is coming from California."
That indicates the extent to which its proximity to California is beneficial to Southern Oregon.
Southern Oregon is part of Oregon. There are thousands of Oregonians who have never seen the Klamath country. There are thousands of them who have never seen Crater Lake. There are thousands of them who have never been to Lakeview, nor to Hart mountain. There are thousands of them who have never driven through the vast, fertile lands of Tule lake to the Modoc lava beds, rich in historical and geological interest.
Go into the Willamette valley and mention the Klamath country.
"Why, that's an awful country. Klamath Falls, we understand, is a lumber camp. There's nothing of interest over there. That's a place to stay away from."
That's the line of chatter about the Klamath country you hear in the Willamette valley.
Klamath basin produces a great potato crop—potatoes that are rising in prominence on the California markets.
Portland papers pay little or no attention to the Klamath potato crop. If they use a story about the potato situation in the Klamath country, they bury it. Apparently Portlanders think potatoes are grown down here in family garden plots for home consumption only.
Of course, we are glad that Southern Oregon is the vacation land of vast numbers of Californians, as Dick Price's letter indicates. We hope that California vacation migration continues and increases. But we'd like to see more Oregonians take Claude Ingalls' advice and see the Klamath country. We'd like to see Oregonians up there in the northern part of the state wake up to the fact that in Southern Oregon—and especially east of the mountains in South Central Oregon—there is a great empire of agricultural and vacation land that is an asset to the state and well worth recognizing and visiting. We'd like to have them know that the Klamath country links Oregon with a great area of north-eastern California that is rich in agriculture and has some immensely interesting natural and historical features.

Those folks up there are either far-sighted or near-sighted. If they do have the inspiration to look beyond their own little horizons, they look too far.

Press dispatches from Sacramento carry the good news that Governor Merriam will retain Earl Lee Kelly as director of public works for California. Mr. Kelly was one of California's most competent public servants under the Rolph administration. His retention in the important office of director of public works is good news to Californians, and it is good news to people of the Klamath country because Mr. Kelly has been consistently a good friend of the Weed road.

Max Baer, reputedly untrained, walloped Italy's prize-fighting monster in New York Thursday night. Apparently, Mr. Baer is due for a long tenure as champion, provided he remains untrained.

The Elks flag day ceremony Thursday night was one of the finest things of the kind this writer has seen. The outpouring of townspeople to this patriotic demonstration was gratifying, indeed.

In California, you can't sell a glass of beer without selling a meal along with it. Those California meals can be seen through a microscope.

Mary Pickford has announced she will not be a candidate for congress. America's sweetheart to the last.

The regular meeting of St. Barnabas guild was held Thursday in the parish hall. The afternoon was spent completing articles to be sent in the annual mission box to an Indian mission in Alaska.
Will Campbell has returned here from the Hildebrand hospital where he underwent a major operation.

To Water Users on the Klamath Irrigation District

Despite the fact that the charges on the Klamath Irrigation District are lower than those in other government divisions in this county, in fact lower than any federal project west of the Mississippi river, a smaller proportion of water taxes have been paid by land owners than in the other districts. It seems that the water users are expecting too much.
The board has found it necessary to order foreclosure on the 1931 taxes and also on those of 1930 where three installments under the state moratorium act have not been paid. This foreclosure suit will be commenced as soon as the sheriff completes writing up the certificates of delinquency, which will probably be the latter part of this month.
Unless the land owners pay up their water taxes by July 1st there will not be sufficient money on hand to pay the United States the operation and maintenance installment due then. Under the law there is a possibility that water will not be furnished after that date. It is probable that the Klamath Irrigation District will be compelled to require payment of operation and maintenance charges before delivery of water in future.
Urgent request is made that every water user pay something on his account before July 1st.
The Board of Directors is doing everything that is humanly possible to reduce and keep water charges down and if the water users want to enjoy the present low charges everyone will have to see that they pay up, otherwise we will have to go back to the old assessments. These charges have to be met by everyone in the end so why not pay promptly on the low charge and avoid the possibility of a raise in rates up to the old level, that would be necessitated by carrying delinquencies.
By Order of Board of Directors
KLAMATH IRRIGATION DISTRICT,
A. L. Crawford, Secretary.

from the country, prevent her increase, her bites, make her and her daughter cease to exist! There is a method of control we can, and had better know about. If no one is going to do anything about it, and merely let this spider have her way, and be bitten and driven out by her otherwise increasing numbers, then may the apparatuses few who want it that way have their rightful share of the eventual troubles. There are too many other examples of what ignorance can do—it is the most common and prevalent ailment and pestilence of the world at all times. Let those who are frightened of pestilences run from that, too.

Women's Welfare Project Active

The SERA welfare project for unemployed women and girls conducted at 133 North Fourth street, in conjunction with a sewing project, is active in supplying domestic help to employers in the city and surrounding district.
Since having had started the project headquarters has received a demand for competent help that is difficult to fill, it was reported. Two women are employed sewing for the city and county institutions and for the Red Cross. One more woman can be given work, it was said, if those who have material for quilt pieces—either cotton or woolen—will bring it to the welfare rooms or leave word at 339J.
There are more women who need work of this kind if material enough can be found to keep them busy, it was stated.
