Brief Comment

MANY a Klamath eye will be cast longingly toward Eugene next week, as final preparations are made for the Oregon-Oregon State football game November 9. In coming years, a trip to Eugene will be much easier and quicker than it is now. The Willamette highway will link the Lane and Klamath county seats closely together. At present, the distance to Eugene by Greensprings is 263 miles, by Bend, 260. When the Willamette highway is finished, it will be 180 miles. And Salem, Portland and other Willamette valley points will be that much closer. It will go a long way toward bringing Klamath Falls more definitely into Oregon.

An Oregon newspaper arraigns those men who disagree with it by saying they are "opposed to progress." Of course, a lot depends on the definition of "progress."

A flood of general legislation bills has started at Salem, and it is going to be almost impossible to hold the special session down to the major work for which it was called. If all holders are off, the legislators would do well to repeal the "skill" game law they passed at the last session. It has led to trouble and grief throughout Oregon. In view of the constitutional provision against lotteries, it is strange that the law ever got through in the first place. There must have been some pretty fancy lobbying going on.

President Roosevelt's invitation to American preachers to give him some "counsel and advice" turned out to be a political faux pas. Not only did the government mailers bungle the job of sending out the inquiries, but the answers included sharp criticisms of the president and New Deal policies. Anybody who has tangled with ministers knows they are pretty competent at handing out lefts and rights when they feel that way. A lot of them apparently felt that way about the current administration, whose counselors, no doubt, expected to get from the inquiry a great tide of praise.

A story from The Dalles tells how a Klamath man who befriended a hitch-hiker was beaten up and robbed. That sort of thing has happened so often, occasionally with even more serious consequences, that motorists should be getting wise. Hitch-hikers are too often dangerous customers, and sometimes they resort to clever subterfuge to get a ride. A couple of Klamath motorists, driving near Midland Sunday, saw a man walking along the highway. As a car approached from his rear, he deftly removed a pair of crutches from his back, and leaned on them heavily as he signaled for a ride.

An AP dispatch lists a "Dr. Andrew Collier" of Klamath Falls as a national youth committeeman. An Oregon Journal story, giving the names of a Rogue river fishing party, lists a "Dr. M. E. Cornett" of Klamath Falls. Outsiders must think we're all a bunch of doctors down here. The Journal dispatch, no doubt referring to our good friend, Dr. Charley Rugh, mentions a "Dr. Rugh" of Klamath Falls in the fishing party. Dr. Collier and Dr. Cornett would hardly have a basis for a suit, but we aren't so sure about Dr. Rugh.

The Bend Bulletin says that the house committee on military affairs, touring the west to study locations of air bases, got an excellent demonstration of why the base should be established on this (east) side of the Cascades. Twice in 36 hours the congressional party was forced to turn back from its destinations because of fog on the route west of the mountains. In the meantime, the area on this side was fog-free, and airplanes were operating without handicap. And when the party got to Medford, fog held it up there, too.

It is good news that the bureau of public roads is starting a survey on the west side road along Upper Klamath lake. Once the survey is done, there will be a chance to get some actual construction work started out that way.

About the Bible

EARLY in the seventeenth century, with the Geneva Bible the favorite among the people, and the Bishop's Bible favored by the clergy, in England, King James proposed that the best scholars of the universities should make a version that would appeal to all. These men worked from 1607 to 1611, comparing all the former translations into English, making an exhaustive study of all. This book has done more to set the English language into the simple Anglo-Saxon than has any other print in that tongue. You will note that the words used here are still, with a very few changes, the common language of us all. It remains still, perhaps, the favorite among Bible-reading people and is the one most widely printed in the whole world.

OPERATOR FOUND DEAD

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 28. (AP)—The body of Frank E. Kenyon, about 50, a streetcar operator, was found on top of his car at a suburban station today. The trolley rope had broken and Kenyon apparently had climbed atop the car to make a repair. The coroner was to hold an autopsy to determine whether death was caused by a heart attack or by a charge of electricity.

You can sleep better if you rearrange your bedroom furniture, say scientists.

Christian Science Church

"Probation After Death" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Oct. 27. The Golden Text was, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him" (James 1:12).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore; as soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread. Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine" (John 21: 4, 9, 12). The Lesson-Sermon also included the following correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "This spiritual meeting with our Lord in the dawn of a new light is the morning meal which Christian Scientists commemorate . . . They celebrate the Lord's victory over death, its explication of human probation, and his spiritual and final ascension above matter or the flesh, when he rose out of material sight" (p. 35).

News Notes on Activities of the Local Veteran Groups

Veterans of Foreign Wars

Pelican Post 1383

Ralph Bentrin, Commander

Buddies, we certainly had a good meeting again last Wednesday night, it's too bad that there was not a full attendance.

The following members were elected to be the officers for the year and will be installed November 13:

Commander, Vern Schortgen; senior vice commander, Robert Book; junior vice commander, Gaylard Culver; chaplain, Clyde Brown; quartermaster, Herb McDaniels.

The Veterans' Allied Council, through the Armistice day program is being sponsored by the Disabled American Veterans, the Spanish-American Veterans, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion.

The committee is selected from among this delegation to the council to act to the best of their ability and it is expected of every patriotic American citizen to co-operate with us in this great day of celebrating peace.

Every one who reads this should remember that this is our day to celebrate and we invite all the general public to join us in doing it. This is one day that the general public expect us to put on a good program and enjoy ourselves with our wives, relatives and friends and our friends of the public and believe us everyone, we intend to do it in a big way in our new armory.

This will be the first grand ball of its kind in the history of Klamath Falls and we members of the Veterans' organizations want you to be with us and help us celebrate this great day of joy which happened to us November 11 at 11 a. m. 1918. Yours in comradeship, Joseph A. Paquette, V. F. W. Adjutant.

American Legion

Klamath Post No. 8

The special meeting for Weyerhaeuser camp which was to be held Tuesday, Oct. 29, has been postponed.

Comrade Bob Thompson has his plans complete for the kids' parade which will be held Thursday evening, Oct. 31.

Next meeting night, Tuesday, Nov. 5, will be known as Drum Corps night and the local corps will entertain.

They have promised the Gay Nineties orchestra as part of the program and all members are urged to attend, as it will be one of the best meetings of the year.

Navy Day, Monday, Oct. 28, was to be observed by the post by sponsoring a radio broadcast at 7:20 p. m. Comrade S. P. Miller will be the speaker. He will also deliver a talk before the Lions luncheon Tuesday noon, Oct. 29.

The Forest and Conservation committee under the chairmanship of Comrade Ogle appeared before the county court Monday to try and secure an appropriation for coyote control in conjunction with other livestock organizations.

Plans for Armistice Day celebration are taking definite form and at the next regular meeting committee assignments will be named.

Adolph's Observations

LIFE INSURANCE is the greatest business on earth and a good policy is perhaps the best investment for the average man. The loan value on our insurance helped so many of us over the rocky places during the last few years that we have acquired a respect for life insurance that cannot be shaken.

Statistics show that insurance did more than any other one thing to develop the savings habit among the American people. The Postal Savings Department and the Industrial Insurance companies grew up side by side with the insurance people furnishing the promotion personnel.

This business like everything else has its funny side. I was in an office today when a young Scandinavian woman came in and protested because they were persistently sending her statements. She said, "My husband died last summer and by golly I can't pay the premium on his insurance any more."

WASHINGTON

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

The Inside Story From The Capital

By PAUL MALLON

Copyright 1935, by Paul Mallon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The latest subterranean line on Herbert Hoover's intentions has been obtained lately by top Republican personnel. Their information is that he is bent on building up a balance of power at the next convention for two purposes:

(a) to insist that certain principles be included in the platform, and (b) to see that someone like Senator Borah does not get the nomination.

The big boys seem to feel certain that this is the situation because it fits in with what they know.

For instance, they have checked around the country on Mr. Hoover's possibilities for their own information. They are convinced that, if he goes into the market for southern delegates (who come high these days), his maximum possible strength at the convention would be 200 delegates. If he does not enter that expensive market, he will be far weaker.

In either event, he can be a factor but not a nominee.

PREPARATION

Some of the delegates to the convention are already as good as pledged, although the convention is eight months away. You may mark off New York for Snell, Illinois, preponderantly for Knox, Kansas for Landon, and (mark you well) Michigan uninstructed.

This does not mean Senator Vandenberg of Michigan has been eliminated. On the contrary private bidders for his stock have been bullish lately. They figure that, if the convention devolves into a scrap between Senator Borah and the rest of the republican world at large, Mr. Vandenberg will have made no enemies, particularly not in Senator Borah's camp.

4½ PER CENT

New Dealers are toying backstage with a sharp new housing idea. It was put forward in one of those little blue books (third volume) recently prepared by Prof. Moley's friend, Algie Freed.

He appears to be backed in this instance by American Rolling Mills, Firestone Tire, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Westinghouse and several others equally important.

This third blue book volume has been submitted confidentially to leading officials, "counseling" government backing for a privately built, low cost ($3,000) housing program, based on 4½ per cent mortgages, 10 per cent down, with a 90 per cent government guarantee for which only one-quarter of one per cent would be charged.

It may give the 6 per cent mortgage bankers theitters to contemplate such a reduction in interest and down payments, but at least two big New Dealers are already behind the project.

You may hear much more of this shortly.

FALSE ALARM

Miscellaneous tax receipts have been sliding for sixty days in the treasury daily statements. As a result, stories have gained wide circulation that business is easing up. A couple of congressmen have hinted as much publicly. The truth seems to be almost exactly opposite.

If you dig into it, you will find that nearly every item of excise taxation has increased. The decrease in the total is due to two factors, a sharp decrease in capital stocks tax receipts and the repeal of the bank check tax.

The decrease in capital stocks taxes is due to a new regulation permitting delay in payments. In the end, they will probably amount to more than last year.

The only business taxes showing any significant decrease during September and October are those on autos and accessories. That is due to the pre-season bulk. If the number of cars now being sold around here is any indication, government revenues from this source will be far more than estimated before the end of the year. One local dealer has sold 50 per cent as many cars during the last three weeks as during the whole of last year.

The rest of the excise taxes are running generally about 10 to 15 per cent above last year, which is exactly how business is running.

IMPROVEMENT

President Roosevelt looked much better after his vacation. He was not only bronzed, but it appeared that he had been required to let his belt out a notch or two. More obvious was the improvement in his disposition. He had been rather sharp and sarcastic on occasions before he began his vacation.

Note—The president got all the fish-catching publicity during his trip by sending his 144-pound sailfish to the museum. Unheralded and unnoticed was the fact that his bodyguard, Gus Gennereich, caught one 16 pounds heavier, which will not be mounted in a museum.

New Deal politicians will concess off the record that they are very fidgety about Georgia. That is what is behind arrangements now being made for Mr. Roosevelt to deliver an address there around Thanksgiving. The site in mind is Tech stadium, at Atlanta, which is under Governor Talmadge's nose.

Their apprehensions have been lessened by private word from a most influential Georgia leader that he can "take" (his word) Talmadge any time the New Deal wants him.

P.T.A. Notes

A large crowd attended the first meeting of the Fairhaven P. T. A. study club meeting, which was held Friday, October 11, in the school auditorium.

Henry Perkins gave a most interesting and educational talk on Ethiopia, dealing with the people, country and conditions.

The Gay Nineties orchestra gave a fine entertainment.

Pictorial Highlights

Cast for Major Vote Drive Role

Claude G. Howers, above, famed biographer and orator, is expected to play a leading role in the 1936 presidential campaign, taking a furlough from his duties as U. S. ambassador to Spain. An authority on the life and writings of Thomas Jefferson, he will uphold the Democrats' contention that they are following Jeffersonian doctrine in the New Deal.

Passes Help Cougars

Ted Christoffersen, WSC, leaps high in air to snag a pass from a teammate during the thrilling packed Washington State-Oregon State game at Portland which the Cougars won 29-13. Woody Jamlin (17) and Frank Ramsey (69) just missed on the play. WSC players in the picture are Ed Goddard (28) Riley (2) and Stan Smith (72).

Ucla Swamps Oregon

A team admittedly among the best defensively turned on a great show of power offensively when UCLA defeated University of Oregon 33-6. Among the Wolfpackers, however, Ray Lopez, Oregon back, was a standout. He is shown here getting away from three Bruins on a 48 yard run that resulted in Oregon's lone score. Coming in for the Bruins are Fred Funk (11) Ted Key (3) and Chevoor.

Trojans Humbled By California 21-7

The glory that was Troy's in Pacific coast football circles is lost this year and Saturday they took their third beating of the season when University of California handed them a decisive 21-7 thrashing. Perry Schwartz, California fullback, packs the ball on a 29-yard gain in the second quarter. Coming in to end his run is Davis Davis (USC 27) and just too far back is Charles Williams (33) USC, end. USC scored in the final second of play on a blocked kick that rolled over the goal line.

Stanford Upsets Dope

By a margin of two field goals Stanford university's football machine, led by the mighty Danny Grayson, upset the dope in defeating Washington's great team 6-0 at Seattle. Grayson, who was in on every play is pictured here in one of his sensational line drives, blocking for Bill Paulman (16) with the ball. Dale Beedle (8) Stanford tackle, drive in at the right and coming in to stop Grayson is Bud Braggman (56) Washington tackle.

Linkman Linked

Ky Laffoon, member of this year's U. S. Ryder Cup team, is the latest entrant in the great Matrimonial Open. Pretty Irene Kersten became the bride of the young Indian professional at her home at Wheaton, Ill., where the happy couple posed for the cameraman. Laffoon, a product of Denver, is attached to the Northern Country Club of Chicago.
