DAIRYING MEETING SET FOR TULELAKE

TULELAKE, Calif.—Dairymen of the Klamath basin area are unanimously expressing their pleasure at the prospects of attending the dairymen's meeting to be held in Tulelake on Saturday, November 16, at which time they will have opportunity to hear speakers in all phases of the industry.

That a large attendance is to be on hand is seen in the many inquiries received regarding the meeting and to whom it will be open. The Tulelake Reporter in sponsoring the event, which is hoped will become larger each year, is issuing an invitation to anyone interested in the dairy industry. Creamerymen and stock raisers and handlers alike are invited. Many of the problems confronting both the creamerymen and the producer are to be taken up for discussion.

Of particular interest to the producer will be the advice of Dr. Jay veterinarian of the U. S. D. A., Corvallis, Ore., on diseases and ailments peculiar to dairy cattle. Dr. Jay will also answer questions during an informal period following his talk. Others listed for the program of the all-day meeting who will have messages of interest to all are Prof. T. Francis Hunt of the University of California, Berkeley, who will have as his subject, "Extension Service"; John Hays, county agent of Modoc county, who will review benefits derived by means of a dairy herd improvement association; accompanying Hays to Tulelake will also be one of the oldest creamery operators in northern California, H. C. Watson, of Alturas.

Arrangements have been made to have a special dinner dairy products which time an on-line forum for discussion will be held. This forum will be in the nature of a round table meeting at which time everyone present will be granted an opportunity to "get off his chest," anything he desires. In meetings of similar nature it has been found that such discussions have brought to light a particular problem, which when aired was solved in a satisfactory manner.

Dairying is an industry as old as man himself. To Tulelake it is one of the newer industries by which means the community is rapidly building for the future.

Proponents of dairying for Tulelake are of the unanimous opinion that when frost hits the grain and snow covers the potatoes, there will still be hay and feed for cattle. These same cattle will provide for the owner a steady income of a product that always has and undoubtedly always will be in demand.

Much has been done toward clearing herds of diseased stock in the last few years and as the work continues more and more persons will be producing a high quality of milk, together with a first run class of stock for breeding purposes, it has been pointed out.

Success of the day has been assured by the cooperation of those individuals most interested in the welfare of the community and with this meeting as the nucleus, it is hoped that next year's meeting will provide a number of fine specimens for exhibition purposes.

Sprague River
SPRAGUE RIVER, Ore.—Ruth Seright and Anova Seright honored with a birthday dinner Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sander. Those who enjoyed the dinner prepared by Mrs. Sander were Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Seright, Dwan and Forest Seright, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sander and the honor guests, Ruth Seright and Anova Seright.

Donna Marie is the name chosen by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Jones for their tiny daughter born November 6.

CHILOQUIN LIBRARY HAS RECORD MONTH

Chiloquin branch of the Klamath county library reports the largest number of books loaned in its history with a total of 2013 books loaned during the month. Of these, 1924 books were borrowed by adults and 994 by children.

This is the third largest month this year. January and March had larger circulation totals.

Chiloquin branch library has installed a catalogue showing the books which are in the library. These are listed by author. From now on, as new books are added to the library cards will be added, enabling patrons to ascertain at a glance whether certain books are available or whether they must be requested from the main library.

This library is now open on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons and on Saturday evening to accommodate the public. Formerly three afternoons sufficed.

Sixty books, new to the library, were placed on the shelves this week. These were all adult books. They include fiction and some of the newer non-fiction.

Klamath River Bridge Building Moves Rapidly

Construction on the new Klamath river bridge on the Weed-Klamath Falls highway is proceeding rapidly, according to Jack Almeter, manager of the local office of the federal re-employment bureau.

False work piling for the bridge is almost complete and deck forms for the first span are ready for concrete pouring. The pouring will proceed at once, according to Almeter, but there will probably be no more forms built or concrete poured until next spring. Contract for construction of the bridge was awarded to the Montag company.

Grading of the Weed-Klamath Falls highway is complete, and contracts for surfacing and oiling will be let in January. Specifications require that the bridge, overhead crossing, surfacing and oiling be completed by July 31, 1936.

Contracts for overhead crossings over the O. C. & E. railroad have not been let, Almeter stated.

Fifty men went to work Tuesday morning on three approved WPA projects, the Moore Park-Riverside school road, improvement and landscaping of the park and beautifying grounds of rural schools.

In the nation-wide campaign for greater safety on the highways, a free, scientific inspection and advisory service for the preparation of automobiles for the winter season is now offered to Klamath Falls motorists by the General Petroleum corporation as its contribution to the campaign. It is reported to be the first time this service has been offered on the Pacific coast.

"Winter-Proofing" as the new service is called, was outlined a few days ago to local General Petroleum service men by C. A. Hagoes of Portland, merchandising and training manager for the Oregon division, and T. M. Higgins, manager of this district. Included in the service are points which come under the main headings of "Safety," "Protection of Investment" and "Economy."

There will be no obligation to the General Petroleum stations on the part of motorists receiving this free inspection, it is stressed by L. A. Schmitt, Klamath Falls agent.

Chiloquin Airport Project Favored
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—The commerce department added 34 airport projects Tuesday to a list of those which it deems economically sound and suitable for inclusion in the federal works program.

Oregon projects approved included: Chiloquin, municipal airport, clearing, grading and surfacing one major runway, $5,100.

Listing of the airport projects on the approved list of the commerce department's bureau of air commerce does not mean that works money will be allotted to them. That is for other agencies to decide.

City Civil Service Exams to Be Graded
Civil service examination papers handed in by applicants for positions in the city police and fire departments were to be graded Wednesday evening by members of the commission, according to an announcement from Police Judge Richmond, secretary of the civil service commission.

Examinations were held November 7, with 15 applicants taking the police examination and 11 answering fire department questions.

ENROLLMENT TIME LIMITS EXPIRE

Special arrangements for the enrollment on CCC and veterans transient centers have expired in Washington, D. C., according to word received Wednesday by Jack Almeter, manager of the local re-employment bureau from the Portland headquarters.

No extension of time is to be authorized, and any other relief arrangements are only on the basis available to civilian population in Washington, the communication stated.

Washington offices are discouraging veterans from going there in the hope of obtaining jobs, as opportunities for employment and assistance are better at home.

Cooperation of service organizations, relief and employment agencies are being sought in making the Washington announcement effective, according to Almeter.

Many engines now submitted to the U. S. Department of Commerce for approval are designed for operation at high altitudes.

When approaching landing fields, the general rule is that the pilot make left turns unless otherwise directed.
