

HAUPTMANN'S LAWYERS OPEN FINAL FIGHT

"might" have information leading to some of the ransom money.

Prisoner Supplied Details

Lamb said Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, wrote Finnigan two days later, and asked that he supply additional details, so the matter could be investigated, but no reply was received.

The Chicago attorney had first reported the matter to the bureau of investigation of the department of justice in New York and Washington, Lamb said.

Finnigan got the information, he explained, from a prisoner in a Chicago jail, who said his conscience had been torturing him.

The prisoner asserted, Finnigan said, that he paid $2,000 toward purchasing ransom bills at 40 cents on the dollar, but he did not get the money because he could not raise the rest of the price before his own arrest on a worthless check charge.

Finnigan decided to come here after Governor Hoffman said he was interested. On arriving at the Camden, N. J., airport, the lawyer talked by telephone with C. Lloyd Fisher, chief of Hauptmann's counsel.

Anna Offers Prayers

Fisher said any new evidence was welcome, but he added: "I'd rather see the ransom money."

Hoffman, informed of the lawyer's arrival, said: "It's always been my understanding that all the money was recovered."

While lawyers drafted their last minute plans, Anna Hauptmann knelt in the Trinity Lutheran church here and, scarcely noticed, prayed that the life of her husband be spared.

"We will fight on," she said, "to the end of the road."

Governor Hoffman, who once visited Hauptmann in the death cell, and who has said he does not believe Hauptmann's execution will solve the Lindbergh case, was asked in New York yesterday if he intended to halt the execution, set for 8 p. m., Friday.

"I don't yet know what I am going to do about it," he said. He reiterated that there were "plenty of precedents" under the New Jersey 90-day reprieve.

Mahoney in Race Against McNary

for senator. If he should be beaten in that race, there is no way of telling now whether he would return again to seek his old office here. It's a cinch that if he does, there will be a lot of disappointment among mayoral hopefuls.

If Mahoney does not run, who will be the successor to the Mahoney support? There is some belief that it would be Clifton Richmond, present police judge. There has also been talk that Richmond might run for county clerk. The Mahoney departure from the local political scene might change his decision on that matter.

Republicans will meet Tuesday night at the courthouse to elect officers and to get things going in advance of the coming elections. Only members may Dispatches from Roseburg report more than two inches of rain in the past 24 hour period, and flood menace looms. Lowland residents are preparing to move from their homes if water in the Umpqua river and its tributaries rise any higher. Roads between Roseburg and the coast are blocked by slides.

PORTLAND, Jan. 13. (AP)—Rising flood waters held a menace to Willamette valley communities today.

Edward L. Wells, federal meteorologist here, said the Willamette river was rising at all points and that it will continue to rise from Salem north for the next two days.

Wells said the Salem crest probably will be 24 feet, highest since 1927. Already the muddy waters have disrupted highway traffic between Salem and Albany. Monroe was almost isolated. Low-lying pasture lands and country roads were endangered.

At Eugene the crest probably will be 14 feet, Wells said, and he predicted 27 feet at Albany, and from 14 to 15 feet at Portland. He added that that amount of water in Portland "won't hurt anyone."

These predictions of floods came in a day of calm that followed the passing of gale-driven downpours in western Oregon. The heavy storm dropped three inches of rain in Salem in 48 hours. Portland had 3.17 inches in three days.

The Long Tom river rose over the west-side Pacific highway at Monroe, causing all travel to be routed through Harrisburg. The old highway between Salem and Silverton was seven feet under water from the Abiqua river. The highway at Jefferson was threatened by the Santiam river.
