

NEW DEALERS BLAMED FOR EXTRAVAGANCE

Inflation policies," he said, "the cost of living inevitably and inexorably rises. The average man and his housewife will find these policies in every package they buy. They will find them in decreased purchasing power of their insurance policy and their savings. Did it ever occur to American wage earners that the devaluation was a cut in wages?" Hoover challenged Mr. Roosevelt to outline "what steps he proposes to clean up his budget and money confusion." He termed the administration one of "dictatorship and confusion."

Balanced Budget Urged
Urging a balanced budget and a stable currency, which he said would "put more men to work than the whole WPA," Hoover called the republican party's action by returning to the forthcoming November election as follows: "In less than a year our country must make a decision no less fateful than that which confronted Abraham Lincoln."

"The issue is the attempt to fasten upon the American people some sort of a system of personal government for a government of laws; a political bureaucracy; a system of debt; a system of inflation; a system which would stifle the freedom and liberty of man."

Inflation Threat Seen
He characterized the new deal as confusion of dictatorship with democracy, confusion in economic life, confusion in fiscal and monetary policies; confusion in relief, confusion in recovery, confusion in administration, confusion of the constitution, "but not confusion in politics."

"The outstanding state of this union at this hour," he said, "is a state of confusion." "Unless this confusion can be quickly dissolved," he warned, "it will lead to one of the great tragedies of all humanity—inflation."

Silver Purchases Assailed
He assailed the administration's "managed credit under the political seizure of the federal reserve system," and "managed currency under political control of the value of the dollar."

He assailed the government's silver purchases "at double the price of 1933." "We are glad to say," he said, "we have now enough foreign silver to plate all the spoons in the world."

He charged that due to the administration's "confused policies" there were still 10,000,000 unemployed in the United States, and some 20,000,000 on relief. Hoover was guest of honor and keynote speaker at the dinner, which was attended by republican leaders from throughout the northwest.

Informality
Hoover stood in front of a bust of Lincoln flanked by two flags in the new green supper room of the Multnomah hotel, one of Portland's gayest night spots on other occasions. He read slowly from a prepared speech, omitting some portions in order to comply with radio time limit of a nation-wide network.

The ex-president and the assembled republican leaders wore business suits; informality of the entire affair was in contrast to the Liberty league's "silk hat" dinner at Washington in which Al Smith lashed the new deal.

Absent were Oregon's governor, Charles H. Martin, and Portland's mayor, Joseph K. Carson, leading democrats.

Stocks Up, Jobs Down
Hoover said it could be easily proved that "the explosive forces of inflation are already being generated."

"The average prices of industrial common stocks today are up to the level of 1926," he pointed out. "But in 1926 there were no unemployed; today there are 10,000,000 unemployed."

"In 1926 our foreign trade was flourishing; today it is demoralized."

"In 1926 our budget was balanced, our currency was stable; today the budget is the worst unbalanced in history; the currency has its foundation in the will of one man."

"Fountain of Fear"
"The average price of industrial stocks has been restored to 1926, but have the real incomes of farmers and labor been restored to 1926?"

The new deal, Hoover charged, has been a "veritable fountain of fear." "The stock boom today," he said, "is not from confidence in the future; it is partly from fear of inflation. The unemployment of millions has been largely due to employer's lack of faith in the effect of new deal currency policies." "It was the supreme court de-

When Borah Told Ohio He'd Run

Surrounded by Ohio Republican leaders, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho is shown here in Washington after his formal announcement that he would be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, entering the Ohio G. O. P. primary on May 12. Left to right, seated, are Roscoe C. McCulloch, ex-senator from Ohio; Senator Borah; and Daniel E. Morgan, ex-city manager of Cleveland. Standing, John S. Knight, Akron publisher; M. A. Myerovich, Youngstown; and C. Nelson Sparks, ex-mayor of Akron.

isions crashing through new deal tyrannies which brought a clear of confidence from the fears that had retarded recovery. "The guiding spirit of the alphabet has not been love. It has been fear."

KIWANIS HEARS MILITARY MAN

Experience has shown that preparedness is an important factor in maintaining a neutral policy for this country. Major Charles Pettee of Eugene told members of the Klamath Kiwanis club on Thursday in a national defense week speech.

Petee asserted that it was Germany's belief that the United States was impotent as a military power, due to United States unpreparedness, that encouraged the Germans to engage in the unrestricted submarine warfare that eventually dragged this country into war.

The speaker declared that in past years United States troops had spent protracted periods in ousting numerically inferior but trained forces. That was true, he said, particularly in the Revolutionary war and the war of 1812.

The American Legion, he declared, is not working against peace then it advocated adequate national defense. On the contrary, he said, it is working for peace.

This country, he pointed out, is rated as 17th in point of military power. Many smaller countries are stronger from a military standpoint. Portugal is No. 16.

Relief Committee Issues Ultimatum
The county relief committee Thursday adopted a resolution to the effect that able-bodied, unattached single men, who refuse assignments to work, will be cut off from any further aid by the relief organization.

Otherwise, the relief session was largely devoted to routine matters.

THREE NUSS HURT
MONTREAL, Feb. 12. (AP)—A fire destroyed the Ste. Cecile wing of the Marie convent early today, and caused injuries to three nuns of the congregation of Notre Dame, but students and others of the institution staff escaped the building safely.

Mother Ste. Alphonsine, awakened by a smell of smoke, turned in the alarm, and suffered severe burns about the face and wrist before leaving the institution. She was removed to a hospital in critical condition.

The two other nuns of the congregation who were hurt did not suffer serious injuries.

The fire started last night in the male servants' quarters.

Pekin Pickets Defy Sub-Zero Cold

With the temperature far below zero, these pickets patrolled the front of the American Distilling Company plant at Peoria, Ill., where a walkout of hundreds of workers spread into a general strike that halted all business in the city of 16,000 and brought a wave of violence. The city was in a state of siege as food trucks were turned back at the municipal limits. All stores were closed, and militia was held ready in Peoria, 10 miles away.

67.4 per cent of the national income, which is a larger share than ever before in history.

This can only mean that the machine has INCREASED labor's share of the total income.

THE opinion is widespread that the machine has REDUCED the number of jobs available, thus increasing the unemployment problem. The figures here quoted, which are taken from census returns, DON'T bear out that opinion.

AND here is something else: The pessimists are trying hard to make us believe that the country is steadily getting worse and worse.

These figures prove pretty definitely that instead it is getting BETTER AND BETTER.

WEST TULE LAKE ROAD SHAPE GOOD

The west side road along Tule lake is in good shape at this time, following considerable work there by boys from the Tulelake CCC camp, according to Don Fisher, ranger at the Lava Beds monument. Fisher, who was in town Thursday, said that travel through the monument is increasing, with improved weather and road conditions. Deer are not so plentiful here now as they were a while back: The snow line has retreated into the hills, and the deer have moved farther back.

MAHONEY RAPS RIVAL'S VIEW ON TOWNSEND

ing squarely on the Townsend platform.

"This is in line with my endorsement of the Townsend plan in August, 1934. It is in line with the state-wide radio talks I made endorsing the Townsend plan on October 19 and October 24, 1934. It is in line with the resolution I introduced, and which was unanimously passed by the city council of Klamath Falls, endorsing the Townsend plan 100 per cent, in March, 1935.

"The issue between us, therefore, is clear cut. You are called upon to either take your stand on this great humanitarian measure along with the American Liberty league, the Crusaders, William Randolph Hearst, and other reactionaries, or you must take your stand with the rank and file of the common people of Oregon. I take my stand with the latter.

"I therefore challenge you to make the Townsend plan the chief issue in the approaching senatorial campaign in Oregon. I ask no quarter—I give none."

"Respectfully,
"WILLIS MAHONEY."
