

REPUBLICANS HELD SESSION FRIDAY NIGHT

Republicans from all parts of the county held an enthusiastic dinner meeting at the Town club Friday night.

The meeting was featured by candidates' speeches, reports of committees in the outside communities, and a rousing talk by Circuit Judge Arthur D. Hay of Lake county.

It brought forth one candidate's announcement. William Wales disclosed that he will seek the republican nomination for county surveyor.

Hay Outlines Party Principles
Judge Hay dwelt on the principles of the republican party, and emphasized the importance of bringing them to the attention of younger people. Henry S. Benson, Portland attorney, in a brief talk, told the group that Judge Hay had won recognition as an outstanding jurist in his frequent calls to the bench at Portland. Benson talked at some length on the New Order of Cincinnati.

Candidates introduced included T. J. Prather, candidate for justice of the peace at Kenos; Mr. Boardley, candidate for justice at Mallin; I. A. Towey, candidate for coroner; Earl DeLap and Lloyd Low, sheriff candidates; C. W. Simonson and A. C. Listoe, commissioner candidates; George Taylor, aspirant for re-election as treasurer, Bait Dunlea, James Ewell, Elda Beal and Bess Zbinden, candidates for county clerk; Gary Cozad, candidate for Linkville constable, and Wales. U. S. Baintine, President of the republican club and candidate for the state senate, presided at the meeting.

Voted for Grant
Arthur Schupp, candidate for delegate to the national convention, made a short talk. Bob Emmitt, old-time republican, reported that he voted for Grant in 1872 and has been voting for republicans ever since. L. Alva Lewis, master of the Pomona grange, said that subordinate granges will hold candidates' meetings through the coming two months.

Those who made brief reports from county communities included E. H. Anderson, Merrill; Dr. Gurnsey, Chilcote; Frank Schmitz, Beatty; T. J. Prather of Kenos; Gus Keller, Bonanza; John Reber, Mallin; Beardsley of Mallin; Simonson of Chemult, and Mrs. Taylor.

Weather

The Cyclo-Stormograph at Underwood's pharmacy shows that barometric pressure low but there are no indications, otherwise, of any change in weather conditions. The outlook is for clear weather for Sunday with temperatures a bit more pleasant. The Tycoos recording thermometer registered maximum and minimum temperatures Saturday as follows:
High 44
Low 30
Forecast for next 24 hours: Generally fair, warmer.

Altamont School Trees Planted

C. E. Sunderman, landscape engineer for the Rogue River national forest, is here this week-end assisting with the planting of trees on the Altamont school ground. The tree planting program is one of the projects of the Altamont Four-H forestry club. C. Pennick, of the local Rogue River office is an advisor of the Altamont club.

STREET FIGHT
Otto Anderson was in the Klamath Valley hospital with possibly serious head injuries last night as result of a fight in front of a Main street beer garden. Anderson fell, striking his head on the pavement. His opponent, Tim Murphy, was jailed on a disorderly charge.

Silverware Not Stolen; Merely Goes for Ride

The Catholic Altar society's silverware wasn't stolen, after all.

It just went on an auto trip. The silverware, consisting of some 12 dozen knives and forks and 9 dozen spoons, was lent to the Town club for use at the republican rally Friday night. It disappeared, and their report was made to police, who in turn gave it to The Herald. And that helped bring about the early recovery of the silverware.

It turns out that the silverware was set on the running board of a car while other packages were carried into the Town club. The owner of the car came along and found the silverware. He was in a rush to get to work, and gave it to somebody else to turn over to the owners.

This individual put the silverware in his car, but forgot about it until he saw the theft report in the paper. He notified Carl Cook, city juvenile officer, and the elusive knives, forks and spoons were returned to their rightful owners.

Soviet 'Men in White' on Guard

Not Ku Kluxers on the prowl, nor little White Riding Hoods and the bad wolf, but burly Soviet border guards and their service dog are pictured above, as sharp human and canine eyes carefully scan the horizon for signs of the enemy. In frigid border zones of Soviet Russia, army scouts prefer these hooded white gowns, which render them virtually invisible in the snow.

Luis of Tulelake, Cal., one son Charles Lutz of Los Angeles, Cal., and one step-son, C. W. Hundley of Tulelake, Cal., also three daughters, Mrs. Edna Mae Heiner of Hamlet, Nebraska, Mrs. Kitty Fern of Beatrice, Nebraska and Mrs. Florence Horton of Los Angeles, Cal. The remains rest in the Earl Whitlock Funeral Home, Pine street at Sixth, where friends may call. Notice of funeral to be announced in the next issue of this paper.

Fort Klamath Dogs Fast Racing Team

prelimen imbued Castel with the desire to have a dog team of his own, and to this end he mated Scotty with a female of the Siberian Saunoyd breed of northern dog, procured from Ray Telford of Rocky Point, Ore. As a result of this union, Scotty's mate presented him with a litter of nine puppies in August, 1934. Scotty displayed great pride in his offspring, and could be seen every day carrying bones to the kennel. Two of the young puppies were subsequently sold, Castel keeping the remaining seven, later giving one to Alfred Orhn, who left it with the other puppies. This fall, Castel had the misfortune to lose Queenie, most intelligent of the dogs, and closely resembling her sire, Scotty. The dogs escaped from their kennel and raced up the highway, Queenie being run over by a car and fatally injured.

A familiar figure about the vicinity of Castel and Utter's meat market and grocery store, and an object of great interest to tourists stopping here, Scotty, father of the puppies, ultimately came to a sad end. He was shipped to San Francisco in the fall of 1934, to be used for a short time by Scotty Allan for exhibition purposes, and then to be returned to Fort Klamath. Shortly after arriving in the bay city, Scotty got into a fight with the other dogs belonging to Allan and was hurt so badly he had to be chloroformed to end his misery—truly a pitiful end for such a noble animal.

Training Starts Early
When barely six months old, the puppies were harnessed up to an Alaskan sled sent Castel by Paul Hosmer of Bend, Ore. They were taken to Wingsong CCC camp in Crater Lake park by Alfred Orhn, who was winter caretaker of the camp at that time. Daily trips about the surrounding country were made with the dogs and sled, the animals showing a natural aptitude for pulling the sled, the instinct inherited from their northern forbearers. They needed no urging, but pulled like veterans from the start.

Later they were brought back to Fort Klamath, several trips being made to Government camp and over Wood River valley. In addition, Castel and son, Junior, and Alfred Orhn made several trips to Wingsong camp with the sled loaded with supplies of groceries, etc., for winter use. During the summer months, the dogs were fed, exercised and cared for by Junior Castel, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Castel, who has a great affection for the individual member of the team, his special pet being Wolf, the largest and most handsome of the canines.

Early this fall, Mr. and Mrs. Castel made a trip to Seattle and returned with an Alaskan sled and special harness equipment for the dog team. Since the beginning of winter, Castel and Orhn have had the dogs out for a conditioning run nearly every day. Several trips have been made to Government camp with the dogs, and I personally had the thrill of a lifetime on one of these trips recently. In company with Mr. and Mrs. Castel and my son James, when the dog team brought us down from Government camp to Annie Springs in record time, the only drawback being the extremely cold weather prevailing that Sunday, the sharp north wind cutting like a knife behind the rapidly speeding dogs.

EXPERTS TO ADDRESS LEAGUE!

Experts in municipal government, education and other fields will be among the speakers for the annual League of Oregon Cities meeting to be held at the University of Oregon March 19, 20 and 21. Pictured above are: top row—Governor Charles H. Martin, who will deliver the address at the luncheon on Thursday noon; Major John E. Carroll, councilman, Seattle; E. J. Griffith, administrator, Works Progress Administration, for Oregon; Bottom row: Russell Barthall, executive secretary, Association of Washington Cities; Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, chancellor of higher education, who will address the League banquet Thursday evening; and Jean L. Vincons, commissioner of public works, Fresno, California.

In spite of the cold, it is a trip I will always remember as priceless, the picture of the dogs racing along ahead of the sled between walls of snow over ten feet high being one that I will never forget. "The thrill of a lifetime" aptly describes it.

The racing dogs are now 1 1/2 years old, and present a very handsome appearance. Castel has the distinction of owning the only team of racing dogs in Klamath county. In all probability the dog team will be featured on exhibition at the winter sports tournament to be held at the playground at Crater lake April 29.

Trial May Set Length Record

The Patterson versus Horsely irrigation district gave promise Saturday of establishing a modern record for length of civil cases here.

As the fourth day of the trial ended, plaintiffs were still presenting their case. Dr. J. G. Patterson was on the stand nearly all Friday with the exception of a brief intermission when defendant's attorney took testimony from a witness who wanted to go home.

Dr. Patterson testified as to alleged damage to his ranch property from flooding and explained why he felt the irrigation district to blame. The Pattersons are asking around $15,000.

JURY STILL OUT IN LAMSON CASE

SAN JOSE, Calif., March 21. (AP)—The jury deliberating the fate of David A. Lamson, charged with slaying his young wife, asked for more exhibits of the trial today.

Drawings of the bathroom in which Mrs. Allene Thorpe Lamson's body was found on May 30, 1933, sketches of her fatal head injuries, and testimony of Dr. Milton Saker, autopsy surgeon, were given to the jury.

The jurors resumed their deliberations at 9:20 a. m.

Superior Judge J. J. Trabucco expressed hope a verdict would be reached and announced he will keep the jury out over the week-end if none is forthcoming. Crowds remained in the courtroom while the jury deliberated.

Tenth Victim of Iowa Recovered

ASTORIA, Ore., March 21, (AP)—A gold watch of unique design resulted in the identification of a body found on the southwest Washington beach as that of Phillip J. Noel, seaman of the freighter Iowa, which sank with her crew of 34 January 12. Corporal Hollis Ransom said a family with whom Noel lived in Portland, and others concurred in the identification. He was the tenth body recovered. One remained unidentified.

QUESTIONS THAT ARE ASKED ABOUT BANKING

"What do bankers consider a good Bank loan?"

MOST bankers consider a loan good if it possesses the following qualifications:

1. A borrower who has a good business reputation and credit standing.
2. A sound purpose for which the loan is to be used other than a fixed investment in a business, for this type of loan is not a proper field for a commercial bank.
3. A reasonably short term until repayment for commercial loans; adequate security in the case of collateral or real estate loans.
4. Reasonable proof of dependable income for repaying the loan when due, or a definite schedule for repayment.

This bank has many good loans on its books. We are making new ones constantly. In every loan our first consideration is to safeguard the deposits entrusted to our care.
