Curve Removal to Be Studied

On April 15, the state highway commission will consider the proposal for eliminating the S curve on the Dallas-California highway at Oregon avenue, Prospect and Upham streets.

City Engineer E. A. Thomas has been notified to that effect by the highway commission's secretary.

Scene of many accidents, the curve has been studied by engineers and a plan devised for cutting through a piece of private property and straightening the road out at that point.

That mistake makes it a bit hard to determine if, through all this European hubbub and general criticism, Hitler is keeping a stiff upper lip.
