

Dean Combination Leads Card Victory March

Bill Terry's Costly Error

Loss of John Lewis, Washington infielder, chalked up at rate of $50,000.

William Harold Terry may search a long time before he stumbles across another such able replacement for the aging Travis Jackson as John Kelly Lewis, Jr.

The manager of the New York Giants now realizes this, which is why he delivers himself one swift kick in the trousers practically every time he looks at a Washington box score.

Bill Terry is charged with a $50,000 error in refusing John Kelly Lewis, Jr., 13-year-old star of the Senators, $1000 for signing a Giant contract in 1933.

Buddy Lewis, one of the few products of American Legion tournaments to appear in the major leagues which sponsor them, spent six weeks with the Giants in the fall of 1933. At the end of that time, Terry expressed the opinion that the 16-year-old stripling couldn't play ball.

Lewis needed financial assistance to enter Wake Forest college in his native North Carolina, and sought it from the Giants with the understanding that he would join them upon graduation. The help was not forthcoming, so as bright a prospect as Bill Terry ever again can hope to see left the Polo Grounds.

Lewis returned to Gastonia, where he caught the eye of Norman (Kid) Eberfield. The old infielder recommended the tall youth with the apple cheeks to his old friend Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga club and one-man scouting system of the Senators.

Lewis reported to the Lookouts in the fall of 1934 and really went to town last season, when he batted .307, making 179 hits, including 40 doubles, 11 triples, and nine home runs. He drove in 85 runs and scored 91 himself.

The Chicago Cubs offered $50,000 for Lewis last autumn, but he went to Washington and there he is today, among American league leading hitters with .365 and right up there with Charley Gehringer, Bill Dickey, and Lou Gehrig in total hits.

Bucky Harris staked his reputation as an assayer of ivory on Lewis this spring. Seldom has a big league director felt so positive about the success of a comparatively raw recruit.

"Lewis is one of the best-looking youngsters I've ever seen, as cold as ice, and with a lot more power than one would suspect was in his rather frail appearing frame," retorts Harris.

Lewis is a surprisingly well polished infielder for one so young in addition to being a natural left-handed hitter who smacks the ball on a line and for distance.

Lewis, now bracketed with Joe DiMaggio as the No. 1 recruit of the year, is just another of Clark Griffith's bargains.

Walter Johnson cost the Washington club $400. Joe Judge was tossed into a deal that brought Charley Jamieson.

Griffith took Sam Rice from the Petersburg, Va. club in settlement of a bad debt of $300.

Cecil Travis was plucked out of an Augusta baseball school for $200. The school was conducted by the same Kid Eberfield who put the finger on Lewis.

Bucky Harris cost Washington $2500, Ossie Bluege $3,000, Goose Goslin $5000, and Stanley Coveleskie, who helped the Nats to their 1925 pennant with 22 victories, was acquired as a free agent.

But the biggest bargain of all was Joe Cronin, whom Joe Engel bought in a Kansas City brewery for $7500. Griffith had Cronin throughout his seven best years, and then sold him to the Boston Red Sox for $250,000 and Lyn Lary.

Griffith has been lucky, of course, but there is no getting away from the fact that the Old Fox and his agents know a Buddy Lewis when they see one.

BROTHERS HIT AMAZING FORM

Half of St. Louis' Wins Traced to Hurling Of Dizzy and Paul.

(By The Associated Press) Say what you want about those Dean boys—their big-talk and off-time astonishing antics—but week by week it becomes more apparent that as they go, so goes the gas-house gang from St. Louis.

Stealing a page from the history of Babe Ruth's heyday with the New York Yankees, Dizzy and Daffy are just about the backbone of the National league leaders right now.

Deans Win Many Of course, there are such aces as Ducky Medwick, Pepper Martin, Rookie Stu Martin and the others whose batting has been keeping the Cards up there in the pennant chase, but even they seem to get better when one of the other of the Arkansas brothers is in action.

To date, the Cardinals have won 23 games and half of these victories are credited to Paul and Dizzy, yet the Deans represent only one-third of the six starting hurlers Frankie Frisch has on his bench.

Paul Beats Dodgers Paul never looked better than he did for a third and third innings in a 5-4 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. They got to him finally in the ninth but by that time his mates had the battle sewed up.

In allowing the Daffiness boys from Brooklyn only six hits and one run in eight innings, he was one of the few throwers who weren't belted all over the lot in yesterday's big-time bill.

Tommy Bridges, leading the Tigers to a 5-4 win over the Athletics, was the only winning hurler to go the route. For the rest, the boys with the bats had all the say—and they spoke up loud, with extra base blows.

Pirates Club Bees The Pirates clubbed the Bees for 12 hits in winning 5-4. Washington banged out 15 safeties to trim four St. Louis Brown hurlers 15-11, although the Browns held up their end with 19 hits off a pair of pitchers.

The White Sox surprised the Yanks 11-9 in a slugfest that saw 30 safe blows, including two homers by Rip Radcliff, rattle all over the field—and outside it. Boston's Red Sox opened up the power and collected 15 hits in taking Cleveland 14-8, despite the fact the tribe's war clubs also were swinging and knocked two of the Hub city hurlers off the mound.

Even at Cincinnati, where night-time baseball made a financially successful 1936 debut before 19,173 fans, Al Hollingsworth, star south paw, couldn't last. He went well until the ninth, when Chuck Klein's home run led a six-run assault to tie the count until Ival Goodman's four-bagger broke it up and gave the Reds a 9-5 win.

The Giants-Cubs game at Chicago was postponed.

Zaharis Stops Jumping Joe in Bay City Match

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3 (AP)—George "Big Boy" Zaharis, 216-pound Denver wrestler, won two straight falls from Joe Savoldi, 211, of Notre Dame football fame, here last night.

Zaharis took the first fall with a chin hold and a press after seven minutes. He took the second fall with the same hold in 1:40 seconds.

Brother Jonathan, 226, Salt Lake City, lost a handicap match to Ivan Pencheff, 211, Bulgaria, and Tommy Nilan, 194, Australia. Jonathan was to throw both men within 30 minutes. He succeeded in tossing Nilan with a press in 11 minutes but was unable to throw Pencheff.

Hardy Krukamp, 213, Columbus, O., and Howard Cantonwine, 236, Des Moines, Ia., were both knocked unconscious in a spill among ring-side spectators, after 27 minutes of a one-hour contest. The bout was called a draw.

LOUIS LAUGHS! KLAMATH SOX BEAT BLUES

St. Louis Team Stopped by Red Sox Tuesday, 7 to 3.

Making a comeback on Modoc field Tuesday evening after being defeated by the Grants Pass Merchants Sunday, the Klamath Falls Red Sox out-hit and out-played the St. Louis Blues, traveling collocation, to win 7 to 3.

The St. Louis Blues are rated as one of the best colored teams on the road, and boasted of 19 wins out of 32 games since hitting the Pacific coast this spring.

Fast Ball Played Both teams played fast, clean baseball, with few errors, and the large crowd of fans who turned out for the evening fray were well pleased. Although starting at 6:30 in the evening, a full nine-inning game was played.

Lyle Turpin, young right-hander started on the mound for the Sox. Turpin, recently of Roseburg, pitched two years in American Junior League baseball in that city before moving to Klamath. During the first three innings the colored boys touched Turpin for four hits and three runs, and he was replaced the first of the fourth frame by Carlstrom, veteran right-hand curve ball artist, for the Sox.

Curves Stop Blues Carlstrom, displaying a sizzling fast ball along with plenty of looping curves, stopped the Blues' rally, and held them scoreless the remainder of the game. From the fourth frame on, the Blues collected but two hits, one in the fifth and one in the eighth, making no scores.

This was Carlstrom's third straight win for the Sox. He is regarded as the best hurler in the Southern Oregon league. The Sox started hitting Williams, Blues' pitcher, from the first inning, but did not score until the fourth. Shipman, Sox captain and right fielder, sent a hard drive to short left field in the opening frame and Martin singled in the second inning. Starting out with a big rally in the fourth, the Sox scored five runs. Granger singled, followed by Bernard, who hit a home run through center field, scoring two runs. Martin walked. Haley singled, and Carlstrom walked, all three scoring on Brooks' hot single over second base. The other two runs were made in the sixth and eighth innings. In the sixth, Carlstrom tripled and scored on Brooks' single. In the eighth, Brooks scored on hits by Hammericksen and Wheeler.

Lefty Taylor replaced Williams in the sixth inning for the colored team. Taylor allowed the Sox but two hits and one run, and the Red Sox played up Modoc field Sunday at 2:30 p. m. against Glendale, Oregon Loggers. This will be a Southern Oregon league game. In the one previous tilt with the Loggers, the Red Sox were defeated by the score of 2-0. The Sox intend to take this next game, however, and a fast, peppy fray is expected by the fans.

Sam Parks Prepares Defense of National Golf Title

SPRINGFIELD, N. J., June 3. (AP)—They're going to stick the king of clubs, Samuel McLaughlin Parks, Jr., back in the deck tomorrow, and he doesn't expect to be lost in the shuffle before the last deal is made at sundown on Saturday—the finale of the 46th U. S. open golf championship.

Parks is not the gambling-type of player, nor is he the betting fraternity's choice. It was the same at his native Oakmont course a year ago when he confounded the old guardmen of the pro ranks by shooting 299, to capture the open title—a 100-to-1 shot come through.

Parks Popular Player They called him the fluke champion, and to this very day point to his unimpressive record through the winter and spring tournament circuit, but while they still hesitate to accept him as one of their own from a shot-making standpoint virtually every one of the 185 amateurs and pros in pursuit of his title are for Parks the man.

Some of them go even further than that. Tommy Armour, one of the craftiest of the oldsters, not only has been captivated by Parks' bland smile and warm personality, but he's gone for Parks the player, and thinks highly of the youthful Pittsburgh pro's chances in the championship.

Record May Tumble "I was sitting with Emil Loeffler, the Oakmont pro, last June when he learned Sam's score for the first time, holes of the third round," Armour related. "Loeffler told me Sam would win the tournament. He's a fine boy, and a fine prospect, he may not repeat here, but you can paste it in your hat he'll win the open again."

Parks was disinclined to discuss his own chances. He's quite content again to be rated a 100-to-1 shot. He figures that will put the pressure on the highly-regarded choices, Henry Picard and Horton Smith.

After all, if Parks fails to repeat, he'll merely join a select group which included Sarazen, Olin Dutra, Walter Hagen, Bill Burke and others. Only Willie Anderson, Johnny McDermott and Bob Jones ever scored successive victories.

PETE ACCEPTS MAT CHALLENGE

Belcastro to Meet Chick In No Time Limit Match Tuesday.

Pete Belcastro, junior heavyweight champion of the coast, Wednesday morning accepted Dude Chick's public challenge for a match at the Klamath armory next Tuesday night.

Details for the meeting were completed by Mack Lillard, promoter, who announced the affair would be wrestled on a no-time-limit basis. To win, a wrestler must either take two out of three falls or disable his opponent.

First Match a Draw Two weeks ago Belcastro and Chick wrestled a one-hour main event without either gaining a fall. Chick has never lost a match in Klamath Falls, while Belcastro is undefeated here so far this season.

Belcastro refused to put up his title. The way was cleared for the match Tuesday night when the Wyoming cowboy's idea of sportsmanship was offended by Belcastro's methods against young Cecil McGill, Los Angeles grappler. Belcastro won the match when he knocked out McGill with a drop kick during the rest period between the third and fourth rounds of the semi-final.

Referee Toy Aho gave the junior champion the match when McGill was unable to continue. Two Matten Compromise Chick made his challenge just before his main event with Al Stecher. The cowboy sought the match on the following basis: 1—That Belcastro risk his belt. 2—That the match carry no time limit.

At first Belcastro was unwilling to accept either provision, saying that he would wrestle Chick only on a one-fall arrangement. Belcastro finally agreed to a compromise, and accepted the second condition. He balked at making the match a championship affair.

Since Chick was so eager to take up the fight following Belcastro's exhibition of roughness against McGill, it was no trick for Lillard to sign him. Ted Christy of Los Angeles will meet Juan Viazaro, Portugal, in the semi-final, Al Stecher, Canada, and Bob Kennaston, Gold Hill, meet in the opener.

Lefty Molatore Leads Batters; Pitchers Tied

Lefty Molatore, center fielder for the Klamath Falls Pelicans, jumped into the Southern Oregon league batting leadership last Sunday as a result of his two hits against Glendale, last week's leader, Hugh Hartman, being able to collect but one blow against the Red Sox. Molatore's average of .426 places him 26 points in front of Bill Reible. Grants Pass outfielder, who has a mark of .400.

Harold Hammerickson, Red Sox speed-burning center guarder, batted out two infield searchers against the Merchants last Sunday to jump from 17th to 4th place. Rex Adamsom leads the Glendale hitters with a mark of .375.

Billie Reible and Neathammer, Glendale outfielder, have each scored five runs to head the tally-makers' department.

Bob Hardy, Grants Pass southpaw, and Clyde Carlstrom, Red Sox right-hander, top the pitchers with two wins and no losses.

Coatless Fans in Stands May Slow DiMaggio SAN FRANCISCO, June 3 (AP)—Joe De Maggio, San Francisco gift to the New York Yankees, is about to face an even sterner baseball test than those that have gone before.

The boys and men among the spectators are about to take off their coats. Ty Cobb explains. "Joe is a really great player," said the noblest Roman of them all, in discussing "Dimag's" marvelous start in the American league, "but his hardest days at the plate are just ahead."

"Pretty soon now it'll be as hot as all getout in the eastern cities and the men in the big doubledeck outfield stands will take off their coats. That solid white background will make it much more difficult to hit. If he can continue to murder the ball under these changed conditions he will have no worries."

"He'll hit. There is no question about that, for he is a natural, but when the real hot weather comes, he may be expected to slack up a bit. After all, he's human."

"It's much harder to hit up there in the summer than in the spring."

If the earth had no atmosphere, we would be subjected to a constant bombardment of shooting stars.
