Suspect

Klamath authorities disclosed Friday that this picture of Walter Price, 22, was selected from a sheet of roga's gallery pictures by several victims of the recent freight train hold-up, as the likeness of one of the three men who staged that affair on the Great Northern near Look-out. Price's whereabouts are not known to the officers. He was arrested here about a year ago by city police on a charge of running a "skin game" among transients, and was turned over to Klamath county to hold for Texas authorities, who wanted him for murder. Price later "beat the rap" in Texas. Picture is from Jailer Vernon Wilson's files. (Herald-News Photo-Engraving.)

First Bonus Bonds Arrive in Klamath

Immediately with the notation of the new address.

"If you are calling at the post office for your letter and require identification to procure same you may stop right up stairs and have your bonds certified for payment, using the same parties for identifiers. This will eliminate having to make two trips with your acquaintance to the post office.

"Do not sign the register notice nor any of your bonds except in the presence of the delivering clerk or the certifying clerk.

"Some of the following legionnaires will be at the post office during the rush days to assist you in identification or in any other way. They are at your service: Commander Tom Young, Bob McShelley, Vic Palmer, Jim Fowler, Henry McMillan, Walter Miller, Carl Cook, Bill Canton and others. Should you know any of them they will be glad to assist your identification."

Official information from the postal department in connection with the bonds, was as follows:
 "The bonds will be expected to arrive from the local post office on June 15. Upon their arrival five clerks will be detailed to receiving, recording and preparing them for delivery by the carriers, and preparing the notices for the mail boxes. The work will be completed late in the evening of the 15th, permitting the delivery of the bond registered letters to begin on the morning of the 16th on the carrier routes and the rural routes. The named routes, only the notices will be delivered.

"Actual delivery of the bonds will require about two minutes when made by the carrier and this will slow down the carrier on his round. It is hoped that each carrier will be able to cover his entire route once on the 16th. These registered bond letters can be delivered to the addressee only and patrons should not ask the carrier to deliver to any other addressee even on order "power" or "leave" as it cannot be done and will simply delay the carrier. Patrons of the post office should also bear in mind that the entire force will be on duty, those clerks and carriers on vacations have been called back, and the entire work force will be available to sixteen hours a day during the rush period of the delivery and certification of the bonds.

"If a patron on the first part of a carrier's route would insist on him waiting for the carrier to be brought to the post office, it would delay the carrier and might prevent him from completing his route till late afternoon or possibly the next day. Therefore we ask the veteran to help us in this manner by not waiting for the carrier to come to the post office, but having some one known to the carrier, in case they are not known, handy to identify the veteran. The instructions from the department are that if a person is not personally known to the carrier, the post office employee to whom they must have someone personally known to them and the veteran to identify the veteran. All people who identify a veteran must sign the register receipt or the bond, and in case of a wrong person, the post office will be held responsible for the amount of the bonds.

"We hope we will be able to have five certifying employees available on the 16th to certify the bonds which the veterans wish cashed. However, we can't be sure that we will be able to do this and it is possible that we will not be able to start certification of the bonds till the morning of the 17. These employees will certify bonds in Room 202 on the second floor of the post office building. If the certifying clerk does not know the veteran personally, the veteran must have two persons, personally known to the certifying clerk, sign the bonds with the veteran. These bonds will be with the veteran, as we cannot have the bonds signed up and then the identifying persons drop in later to sign the bonds. Of course, if the veteran is personally known to the members of the American Legion, it will be expected of them to assist in identification, then no further identification is necessary.

"It is estimated that the average number of bonds received by each veteran will be twelve and on the basis of the total number of them all it will require about 15 minutes per veteran. It is hoped that with five clerks certifying it will be possible to certify 250 veterans daily.

"Veterans should also keep in mind that where their applications went in late their bonds may not be among the first receipts. They should not call the post-office, asking if their bonds are there, as information concerning mail matter cannot be given over the phone. Those veterans who Live on the rural routes 1 or 2 should meet the carrier and receive his bonus letter. Should he miss the carrier the regular register notice will be left in his box. All veterans are urgently requested to bring this register notice to the postoffice with them when calling for their letters there.

All veterans please observe the following: Under no circumstances sign your name to either the register receipt of the bonds except in the presence of the delivering postal employee or the certifying employee.

"If the veteran does not wish to cash all his bonds at this time, he should bring in consecutive numbers, either the first consecutive numbers of his bonds or the last consecutive numbers, as this will assist the certifying employee. If in doubt as to the consecutive numbers bring all your bonds, but be sure to state that you only wish to cash the number you want to cash. After a bond is once certified, you cannot withdraw it with the intention of cashing it later—it must go through at that time."

Republicans Prepare for Hard Battle

The topics the governor and the Chicago publisher will take up when they confer. Another will doubtless be the type of campaign to be undertaken.

For his part, the presidential nominee has assured it will have no "pink tea" complexion, whether he travels widely and speaks often, or confines himself to a restricted number of major addresses.

Knox most likely will take up as the vice presidential nominee where he left off in his long quest for delegates pledged to himself for the presidential nomination. Hardly a state was missed in his excursions assailing the administration; while Landon left his desk but two or three times.

The republican campaign itself is generally expected to vary in pattern from the opening keynote of the proceedings here. Both Landon and Knox, while sparing few words against new dealing methods, have endorsed various Roosevelt objectives. Landon has said the wheat must be separated from the "new deal" chaff.

Their platform falls far short of advocating a return to the old order, either in government or party. The reciprocal tariff law and the president's power to change the gold content of the dollar are practically the only specific laws mentioned for repeal, if a new occupant takes over the White House next January.

Where ex-President Hoover had demanded repeal of the silver purchase act, the platform was silent. Before packing their bags, with hundreds of other delegates, to pile aboard homebound trains today, a group of westerners said they got assurance from Roy Roberts and Lacy Hayden, of the Landon management, that the nominee had "left the door open" to consideration of silver in his monetary policy. Utah, Idaho and Wyoming were represented in the meeting.

The Roosevelt silver policy has been among those that are anathema to a wing in his party sympathetic to the American Liberty league. One of the many questions being asked among the disbanding delegates was whether active support for their ticket and platform might be expected of Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis, former Governor Ely of Massachusetts and other prominent anti-new deal democrats.

Merrill Scouts Receive Charter

MERRILL, June 13.—Presentation of the state charter was made to the Merrill Boy Scout Troop Tuesday evening by their sponsor, the Merrill post of the American Legion, at a meeting largely attended by both scouts and Legionnaires.

Elmer Stukel made the presentation to Scoutmaster J. W. Scoggins, whose interest in scout work has brought the local troop to its present high standing in scoutdom.

Scoggins had on display charters for 13 consecutive years for the Merrill troop, which until five years ago was the only troop south of Eugene in Oregon.

Reo Fats, scout master, opened the session with a brief talk, and during the session plans were discussed for the proposed summer cabin to be built in the near future at Medicine lake, which when completed, will have a floor space of 30 by 60 feet, with mess hall, kitchen, bunks, lodge room and other accommodations. The building is to be open for use on the scout's summer camping trips and for other public gatherings at the lake. The Legion and scout troop will combine forces to complete the structure.

Work is expected to get under way in a month or six weeks, following re-plotting of the recreational grounds in the Shasta national forest.

The scout guests enjoyed half an hour of roller skating before the "big feed" prepared by the hosts.

Liquor Fund Used to Meet Over Drafts

Salem yesterday said he was powerless to act.

FUNDS TURNED OVER
 SALEM, June 13. (AP)—The state liquor control commission today turned over an additional $100,000 to direct relief from its reserve fund to take care of all overdrafts and the "floating" checks against the fund, it was announced today by the executive department.

Payment of the money, the office stated, eliminated the need of direct certificates of indebtedness which Governor Martin had refused to sign several days ago when he stated the expenditures for direct relief would be regulated by the cash income of the liquor control commission which has been set aside for that purpose.

Following the governor's refusal to issue $200,000 certificates, he ordered the liquor commission to turn over $150,000. This fund was found inadequate to take care of the outstanding checks for direct relief and State Treasurer Rufus C. Holman yesterday sought to have the governor change his policy and issue at least $100,000 in certificates.

Today, however, upon learning the liquor commission still had $435,521 in its reserve fund to take care of invoices, the governor requested an additional turnover of $100,000. This was done and the money will be available Monday for the overdrafts and other outstanding checks.

Indian Woman Injured Friday

Dolly George Pete, Klamath Indian woman, sustained painful injuries Friday night, when she allegedly beaten by several Indian men and slashed on the knee with a knife during a drinking party.

McKinley David was charged with disorderly conduct, and the others with being drunk on a public highway. All were fined $10, and Klamath Agency authorities were notified that the woman needed additional medical care. Eight stitches were taken in her knee Friday.

Why don't Banks pay interest on checking accounts?

MOST of the banks of the country (14,123 which are members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation) are prohibited by law or government regulation from paying interest on "demand deposits." Checking accounts are, of course, demand deposits, for they may be withdrawn at any time by the depositor.

It is now generally recognized that the payment of interest on demand deposits is not sound banking practice. A bank must be prepared at all times to pay out these funds on demand. Consequently, the bank cannot make full use of this money because it does not know when the depositor may want to withdraw it.

A checking account is primarily for the convenience of customers for keeping their money and writing checks. For those who wish to receive interest their funds can be placed in interest-bearing time deposits.
