Poison Goes To Squirrels

Ground squirrels, as found in Klamath county, start hibernating the latter part of June and are generally in, tucked away in their holes, by the early part of July and do not emerge until February or March of the following year. It is a peculiarity of this squirrel that they start hibernating about the time that summer arrives and are out again before winter is over. They are frequently seen emerging from and around snowbanks.

All people now living on the earth could be placed in a half-mile cube.

Spud Storage Space Large

Sufficient potato storage space is found on the Klamath project to store all of the potatoes raised in that district in any normal year. This is particularly important as it enables growers to hold their potatoes and market them in a more orderly way.

In 1921 the acreage of potatoes found on the Klamath project was 116, in 1935 this acreage was 14,435.
