

JURY LIKELY TO RECEIVE CASE TONIGHT

The "broken window" case was expected to go to the jury late today.

Testimony was concluded about 11 o'clock, and at that time Circuit Judge Edward B. Ashurst denied a directed verdict sought by Austin Fligel, attorney for the state liquor commission.

The commission is defendant in the case, brought by the Standard Accident Insurance company, which charges that windows in the liquor store in the Pelican theatre building were cracked because the commission painted them with green paint.

Fligel, in asking for the verdict, declared the plaintiff had not proved the paint on the windows caused the breakage, and cited other possible causes, such as interior heat, floor load during the liquor rush prior to the Christmas holidays, etc.

Judge Ashurst, in deciding to let the case go to the jury, said that if it developed later the court was in error in so doing there still remained the possibility of a motion for a new trial or a motion setting aside the jury's verdict.

The liquor commission attorney has held that the legal status of the plaintiff, who claims an assignment from the Pelican Theatre corporation, is clouded because the building was for some time "littered" with "don't know whether we are at or horseback," said Fligel, referring to the matter.

Defense witnesses included a Mr. Arnett, upholsterer, who testified that he assisted in replacing the windows and two windows rested on screws, cracks extending from those screws. Manager Tom Ingram of the liquor store said that steam radiators were violently against the windows. William E. Ber, former liquor commission official, testified that other liquor stores in the state were painted in the same manner.

Four witnesses were called by Attorney Cumberbatch, representing the insurance company. They were Harry W. Poole, one of the proprietors of the Pelican theatre building in which the liquor store is located; Charles A. Williams, who replaced two of the broken windows in the liquor store; L. R. Bruce, who replaced the other four; and Francis H. Olds, former Klamath Falls glass and glass "expert."

Poole testified that none of the windows in the quarters occupied by the liquor store had ever broken before the green paint was applied and that none of the unpainted windows in parts of the building not rented by the liquor commission had broken before or since.

Williams said that both windows he replaced showed wavy, horizontal cracks, and Bruce testified that at least two of the windows he replaced showed the same type of breaks, which Olds later said were indistinguishable evidence of heat breaks and could not be due to any other cause.

On cross-examination, however, Bruce said that when he removed the casing to repair the windows, he found the remains of all four resting only on screws, with supporting base blocks gone. He admitted that two of the windows might have broken as a result of faulty installation. Olds said that windows partly painted in a dark color are bound to crack sooner or later. Heat rays from the sun pass through the unpainted glass but are absorbed by the painted portion, he said, thus causing unequal expansion and eventual breakage.

He testified that he had not observed the installation to see whether it was done properly, but was sure the wavy breaks could not be caused by any factor other than heat.

Ten Years Ago In Klamath

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 23. (AP) Almee Semple McPherson, missing Los Angeles evangelist, quivering with exhaustion, her hair shorn, bedraggled and covered with mud, staggered into Agua Prieta, across the border from Douglas today, was picked up in a semi-conscious condition, and brought to a hospital here by James Anderson, an American. Lying on a cot in the hospital, she told how she had been kidnapped from Ocean Park, Cal., and held prisoner in Mexico since May 15 by two men and two women, and she had prayed and talked to her captors of God.

* Completely out of control, a serious forest fire in Bear valley, five miles southwest of Keno, had burned over 20 acres of timber this afternoon and was threatening a large stand of virgin pine, according to word received from Keno today.

that the country is united in its determination that there shall be no backward step in our progress.

What he MEANS is that unless Roosevelt is re-elected by a tremendous majority, the NEW DEAL IS DEAD.

If President Roosevelt is re-elected by a scant majority, just enough to get him in and FAR UNDER his previous vote, he will no longer be able to dictate to congress and will be able to do only what congress PERMITS him to do.

So, you see, Jim Farley has a real job on his hands. He must not only re-elect Roosevelt but must re-elect him by a majority big enough to dominate and intimidate congress again.

from California, immediately presented a plank supporting the McGroarty bill, which embodies much of the Townsend plan. Greer said he had no doubt Bell was aiming at the Townsend plan in his remarks.

Wagner Named Chairman
The platform committee expected to conclude its hearings by mid-afternoon and set up a subcommittee immediately to work through the night on the platform suggestions brought from the White House by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York.

Wagner was chosen unanimously as chairman, as the committee started its work harmoniously today.

Green was the first spokesman for a major organization before the resolutions committee. He asked also for a five-day 40-hour week plank and continued public works.

With reference to the supreme court's invalidation of new deal legislation, the labor spokesman said workers of the nation were dissatisfied with having a mere majority vote killing acts of congress.

"For this reason," Green said, "we recommend that you incorporate in your platform a declaration in favor of the adoption of an amendment to the constitution of the United States which provides that no law shall be declared unconstitutional by the supreme court except by not less than two-thirds vote of its members."

He urged, too, a strong plank declaring labor's right to organize and bargain collectively, and a long list of other planks which included:

High wages and adequate annual income for workers; preservation of free speech, press and assembly; continuation of a social security program; ratification of the pending child labor amendment to the constitution; more restrictive immigration legislation; approval of the Wagner housing act and deportation of aliens who advocate revolution and violent overthrow of the American political and social order.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and L. J. Taber, master of the national grange, presented recommendations of their groups for farm aid.

The recommendations of the two groups differed sharply at several points.

The farm bureau urged the endorsement of crop production control, a permanent system of commodity loans and the maintenance of a sound rounded practical soil conservation and land utilization program.

Both farm organizations demanded recognition of the principle of price parity between the products of agriculture and industry in the domestic market.

However, the grange asked reference to production control and placed emphasis upon a soil conservation program.

Whereas the farm bureau endorsed the administration reciprocal trade agreements for expansion of foreign markets, the grange asked for revision of the reciprocal treaty act to require senate ratification of agreements and to repeal the unconditional most-favored nation clause, by which concessions of a single bilateral treaty are extended other nations.

The farm bureau asked for federal control or regulation of monopolies. Both groups recommended further maintenance and expansion of rural credit facilities, aid to cooperative marketing associations, continued federal and state support for efficient and low cost transportation.

The farm bureau demanded a managed currency, regulated on an index of basic commodities to maintain a dollar with a constant purchasing and debt-paying power.

The grange asked a monetary system providing "an honest dollar" with constant purchasing power.

The grange included in its recommendations the centralization of all land-use problems within the agriculture department.

LEGION OFFICE OPEN WEDNESDAY

The Klamath Falls American Legion celebration committee has opened headquarters at 127 South Sixth street. A telephone has been installed, an office girl is in charge of the desk, and the headquarters will operate from now until after the big celebration.

Plans continued to take final shape Wednesday, with a new parade feature announced by the committee.

A number of the local Indians in full war regalia will march in the parade. The Indians will have colorful feathered head-dresses, and will be painted and ready for battle. Mr. Lang will have charge of them in the parade and at the fairgrounds ETA.

At the close of each day's program the Indians will stage a war dance.

Parents who want to attend celebration events without having to worry about their little children received good news Wednesday.

The Camp Fire girls announced that at their headquarters, 532 Conger avenue, they will maintain a nursery. It will be open from 12:00 to 2:00 p. m. A large lawn is available for play, and competent attendants, under supervision of adults, will be in charge at all times. Children under two years must have bedding with them. A small charge will be made for this service.

LIGHT SHOWERS FALL WEDNESDAY

Scattered drops of rain fell early Wednesday afternoon after skies became overcast and a sultry atmosphere descended upon the city. Temperature was recorded unofficially at 90 degrees at 2:00 p. m.

Little chance of a real rain storm was held out by the local weatherman, who predicted continued fair weather with summer temperatures and brisk breezes.

The state weather bureau forecast is for generally fair weather during the next 24 hours, but with occasional cloudiness, and somewhat cooler in the eastern portion.

Northern California was also looking forward to generally fair weather, but with fog on the coast and scattered afternoon thunderstorms in the mountains. Little change in temperature was predicted.

COMMISSION STUDIES NEW CAPITOL PLAN

formed generally to recent suggestions by State Senator Allan Elyon of Portland, who headed a previous legislative interim committee on capital arrangements.

"In any competition, it is almost inevitable that revision of departmental layouts will occur, as no one person can have the intimate knowledge of practical working conditions of all departments," said the progress report of Whitehouse & Church, the Oregon associate architects. The architects said the "entire plan was checked and revised" after conferences with state officials and department heads.

ALBEE ELECTED 20-30 PRESIDENT

Marvin Albee was unanimously elected president of the 20-30 club Wednesday noon. Other officers selected were Jimmie Hall, vice president; Bob Henry, sergeant-at-arms, and Don Divens and Frank Eberline, directors.

These officers will be installed at a joint installation party with the Tulalake club at Calore, Wednesday night, July 1. Art Postor, retiring president, is in charge of arrangements, and announced that Sam Ritchey, past president and now a past active member of the local club, would act as installing officer.

It was also announced that Tulalake has been granted its charter by the Association of 20-30 clubs, being Club No. 159, and that the charter night had been tentatively set for Saturday, July 11, at the American Legion hall in Tulalake.

Entertainment for the meeting was furnished by Virginia and Marilyn Carr, tap dancers. Mr. Skinner, manager of the investment department of the California Oregon Power company, was introduced as a guest of Jack Fitzgerald. Cecil Whitney acted as chairman of the day.

for the good of the democratic party. Also there are too many carpet baggers. They filled many positions in Oregon with persons from outside the state. The Oregon democrats are deserving and possess all the necessary qualifications.

While preparing to participate in the program for the second day of the convention the delegates were visited by Sam Garland of Lebanon, former state senator, and I. Weinstein of Burns.

All were guests at a breakfast given by Grace Bryan, Hargreaves, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan. Representative Walter M. Pierce of La Grande, friend of Bryan for many years and one of the breakfast speakers, told the group the "two-thirds rule" should have been abolished at the Chicago convention.

The delegation, at its first caucus, voted eight to one in favor of abrogating the rule.

CONVENTION RESTS AFTER HUGE RALLY

the seating of delegations probably will come up along with the dispute over repeal of the two-thirds nominating rule tomorrow morning, and the platform tomorrow evening.

Morning drizzle furrowed the brows of some officials making ready for the mammoth rally planned for Franklin field Saturday night, when President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner will accept re-nomination. The weather bureau held out hopes of clear weather.

One patriarch of the party will be absent. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, tired by the strain of the one session he attended yesterday against physician's orders, decided to obey the doctor. He returned to Washington.

Among the platform difficulties that approached settlement were the labor and farm planks.

Veale, a participant in a fatal "mock duel" here in March, 1934, died from blood poisoning following severance of his toe while chopping wood.

The "mock duel" here in 1934 resulted in the death of Paul Kutch of Albany, a friend and fraternity brother of Veale. Late at night while visiting, the two staged a mock duel, and Veale's supposedly unloaded gun sent a bullet through his friend.

A coroner's jury held the shooting "accidental and unintentional."

best the south end of the county. Talk of changes in the secondary system developed after the highway board tentatively decided to shift the Weed-Klamath highway, from Midland to the state line, out of the secondary system and into the primary system.

When it was suggested the road from Midland to South Sixth street—the old Midland market road—be taken out of the secondary system, protests went up here from the court, the chamber of commerce and others. The commission indicated it would favor a secondary road farther south, either the one joining The Dalles-California at Mack's store, or a mile north of there.

Members of the court and County Engineer Frank Z. Howard said Wednesday that their first objective is to keep the Midland "market road" in the secondary system. They said that if the secondary system retains that road, takes in the Mack's store road, and eliminates the Midland state line section of the Weed road, it will have gained only about a mile in distance.

IRRIGATION NEEDS INCREASED HERE

Demands for irrigation water on the Klamath project have been increasing rapidly during the past few days of hot weather, according to bureau officials, and the main canal was carrying 920 second feet of water to Klamath basin farm lands on Wednesday.

This is the virtual capacity of the canal, and the load will not be increased more than 10 second feet before the peak of the season.

A slight decrease in demand is expected around the Fourth of July, it was stated, but otherwise the irrigation load will be maintained steadily during the next month.
