not swim any more and went under.

North Bend Man Aids

Arlie Samson, North Bend, who was swimming at the resort, aided in the efforts to locate the body of the girl on the bottom of the pool. Officers said they were told the rescuers had difficulty keeping Ethelene, who was frantic because of the accident, from leaping into the pool in a dangerous attempt to find her sister.

The body was located finally in about 12 feet of water, at virtually the spot where Irene had gone down.

Dr. Adler, after inquiring about the preceding incidents, told the officers the girl probably was seized with cramps because she went into the water with a full stomach.

MRS. GILBERT HOME FROM SCOUT SCHOOL

Mrs. Earl D. Gilbert, local director of Girl Scouts has returned from southern California where she and Miss Ella Redkey completed a national training course for camp counselors.

A scholarship for this course was offered by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, national president of Girl Scouts. It was awarded to Mrs. Gilbert by national staff representatives of the Pacific coast region.

The training course was held at the Santa Monica Girl Scout camp in the San Bernardino mountains, 33 miles from Los Angeles, and was directed by Miss Esther Ansel of the national staff.

There were 120 in camp, including staff and students, and Miss Redkey and Mrs. Gilbert were the only ones from Oregon in attendance.

The camp was planned and operated like a regulation Girl Scout camp, in order that a practical application of theories learned was possible, and all phases of scout camping could be presented and demonstrated.

Both Miss Redkey and Mrs. Gilbert finished camp more enthusiastic than ever over the possibilities of the Girl Scout camping program.

Following the training course, Miss Redkey entered the University of Southern California summer school, where she will take advanced work in physical education until August 1.

Mrs. Gilbert remained in the Big Pines and Arrow Bear regions, and visited six other Girl Scout camps as the guest of Miss Ansel.

These camps included Al Shira, the Los Angeles camp, 7000 feet above sea level; The Camp of the Owls, South Pasadena's camp, directed by Miss Helen Cantline, who formerly taught in Merrill; the Glendale camp, known as Pine Glen; the Elbert camp and Camp Conifer, the Riverside camp high above the fascinating desert in the Arrow Bear region.

At the time Mrs. Gilbert and Miss Ansel visited these camps they had an enrollment of about 350 girls, all of whom were enjoying their camping experience to the utmost. The visitors spent at least 24 hours in each camp, and the Klamath Falls director declared the experience to $2,000,000 to move cattle to good grazing areas and to provide feed loans.

The officials estimated $25 a head would be needed to feed drought cattle until next spring. They said many farmers were using soldier bonus money to abandon their farms and move into Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan.

Alexander said the administration is not engaged in wholesale moving of persons out of the drought area.

"We have no money, no plans, or no authority for such wholesale moving," he said. "But we do have demonstration projects in the drought areas to show how this land should be turned back to grass."

Dalley and Alexander said they believed a large portion of western North and South Dakota should be taken out of intensive cultivation and returned to grass for cattle ranges.
