

LONDON AIMS HELD VAGUE BY GOVERNORS

the true issues of the campaign and even more silent as to the policies he intended to carry out.

Governor Earle in Philadelphia, devoted most of his speech to the labor question, declaring that Governor Landon's nearest approach to a declaration of policy on any issue is his acceptance of the company union, the most powerful weapon against the rights of labor ever invented.

Sincere Purpose Recognized
Governor Martin, heard from Portland, expressed belief Landon "is sincere in believing that he has succeeded in liberalizing the republican party."

Martin named "Andrew Mellon, Ogden Mills, Joseph Grundy, Mr. Hearst and the Du Ponts, the great packers and the great financial interests, the oil and the bankers" as supporters of Landon.

"Are these the new liberals with whom Governor Landon is going forth so hopefully?" he asked.

Governor Cochran, from Omaha, said he wanted to introduce his audience "not to candidate Landon, but to Governor Landon."

"Candidate Landon is running for the presidency of an anti-new deal platform," Cochran said, "but Governor Landon ran for a second term for the governorship of Kansas on a 100 per cent new deal platform. . . . Kansas has been far from a self-sustained state during the administration of Governor Landon."

Farm Program Hoped
Governor Herring, speaking at Des Moines, said Landon "promises, if elected, to do about half as much for the farmer as the new deal already has done."

He criticized Landon's farm program as "vague."
The Roosevelt farm program, he declared, brought more than $100,000,000 to Landon's home state of Kansas and nearly doubled the income of Kansas farmers from 1932 to 1935.

NEW YORK, July 29. (UP)—New dealers opened their attack on Governor Alf M. Landon Tuesday by sending to widely-scattered microphones six demagogic governors who called the republican candidate's acceptance speech an evasion of the issues on which the election will turn.

One by one they analyzed Landon's address, pointed out the accomplishments of the new deal and asked the voters:

"Why change?"
New Campaign Technique
They followed one another in a steady stream and the nation's radio audience sat on the other end of a new technique in political campaigning.

Governor Henry Horner of Illinois said the middle west was "frankly disappointed" in Landon's speech. He dealt chiefly with Landon's inference that the new deal is "intentionally violating the constitution."

"Governor Landon himself was an ardent supporter of the AAA before it was invalidated by the supreme court," Horner said. "If he knew it was unconstitutional, why didn't he oppose it?"

Can't Eat Cake and Have It
The broadcast then swung to the east where Governor Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island said Governor Landon was running on a new deal platform.

"He doesn't like Roosevelt's farm policies," Green added, "but he wants to pay bounties to the farmers and to continue the present administration's policies on soil erosion and drought relief. . . . He wants to balance the budget immediately and at the same time continue to care for the needy and unemployed. The budget would be balanced now if the federal government discontinued its care for the needy and the unemployed. These are fine words of the governor's. . . but how is he going to eat his cake and have it, too?"

Martin Fears Old Guard
From the Pacific coast Charles H. Martin of Oregon attacked the political alliances Landon has made.

"The issue is not so much Governor Landon but the company he keeps," Martin said. "It is a well known fact that the manipulators of Wall street are 100 per cent behind Governor Landon's candidacy. They boast

Between Two Fires in Spanish Revolt

The British garrison on impregnable Rock of Gibraltar at the entrance to the Mediterranean found itself surrounded by the Spanish revolution, with shells from combatants bursting overhead. Rebels forces at Ceuta, to the south, were being attacked by loyalists, while rebel gunboats bombarded Linea, to the north. The rock is seen towering above parading British troops.

FEED SHORTAGE BRINGS INQUIRIES

The feed shortage throughout the drought areas of the United States is causing many farmers and livestock men to inquire about feed and forage available in Washington and Oregon for the coming winter.

To assist in the transfer and sale of livestock from drought areas to sections in those two states where surplus feed and forage is available, the United States department of agriculture has set up an office called the Federal Livestock Feed Agency at 264 Livestock Exchange building, Kansas City, Missouri. This newly established office is designed to assist farmers and stockmen who desire to secure feed, in locating feed, forage or pasture.

All farmers desiring to sell hay, feed, range or pasture should get in touch with the Federal Livestock Feed Agency at the above address. This agency does not buy or sell feed but will be glad to hear from farmers who have extra hay, feed, range or pasture for sale, and will put them in touch with other farmers who must move their stock or buy feed and forage.

Are Farmers Corrupt?
"President Roosevelt gave us the solution when he shortened hours of work and established minimum wages. Now, as a result of the supreme court decisions, we must look for another solution but no word or deed of Governor Landon leads me to believe he has the solution."

Governor Clyde L. Herring of Iowa took up the farm question by saying:

"What does Governor Landon intend to substitute for the present farm program? He makes some vague remarks on soil conservation and closes with a promise to keep the soil conservation out of politics. Apparently some Kansas farmers should tell the governor just how this conservation program is being administered. The farmers in each county elect a county committee to administer the conservation program. These committees are elected on a non-partisan basis. I wonder what Governor Landon would substitute for these farmer committees? Does he not think farmers are to be trusted to administer this program?"

Economy at Human Cost
Governor Roy L. Cochran of Nebraska said there were two Landon's—Governor Landon and Candidate Landon.

"I do not see anything in his record in the state of Kansas to give cheer to the taxpayers," Cochran said. "Governor Landon does watch expenditures. For example, he watches the expenditure on the education of children in Kansas. In 1935 he boasted that under his administration all the money appropriated for schools had been cut 40 per cent."

"To make this great saving, some of Governor Landon's school teachers were hired for $25 a month. For some the terms were shortened. Kansas was the only state in the union which has made no provision for general aid for school children at points distant from their schools."

About seven gallons of water are required by a cow that gives 20 pounds of milk daily.

OUTLOOK GLOOMY FOR CORN CROPS

WASHINGTON, July 29. (AP)—A gloomy picture of the corn crop in the middle west was sketched by the agriculture department today in its weekly crop and weather summary.

Arid conditions and continued maximum temperatures above the 100 degree mark were said to have speeded deterioration of the crop in Iowa, Minnesota and other plains states.

Scattered showers during the week brought temporary relief to portions of the Ohio valley and spots in the lower Missouri valley and southwestern plains. In general, however, the area between the Appalachian and Rocky mountains was described as seriously needing rain.

Patient Injured in Escape Attempt
SALEM, July 29. (AP)—A broken arm sustained in his attempt to escape from the state insane hospital proved too discouraging to Julius Kufeldt, 23, and he promptly returned to the institution.

Kufeldt managed to pry loose a bar on a third-story window of the institution last night and with the aid of bed sheets made a ladder. But the sheets parted and the man fell.

Kufeldt was committed from Klamath Falls in December, 1932.

First plum puddings consisted of liquid concoctions, served in soup tureens.

ART DEPARTMENT TO HAVE JUBILEE

SALEM—The art department of the Oregon state fair will come into its own at the Diamond Jubilee celebration here September 7 to 13, when it will be located in a building now being reconstructed for that purpose. The art exposition has been located for years in the upstairs addition to the agricultural pavilion, but this year will be found on a ground floor in the building between the agricultural and poultry pavilions.

The new art building, in which will be found both fine arts and photographic arts, will have a large main room with a gallery or mezzanine floor, and from this main exhibit room two archways will lead to another display room, an 18-foot addition now under construction, and at the rear of this will be an 18-foot square receiving room for packing and unpacking the paintings and photographs which are to be seen at the fair.

Special lighting to display the exhibits best is planned in the new art building.
Patrons of the arts will be particularly pleased with removal of the art department to a downstairs location, for in spite of the fact that 33,000 persons by actual check visited the art showing last year, they feel that a greater number will see the showings in the down stairs location. Also, visitors will be much more satisfactory at the new quarters.

Mrs. Lotta Smith of Salem will be superintendent of the art department and William Dell of Corvallis will hold that position in the photographic art section.

Field Inspection Work Completed

Klamath netted gem potatoes, 256 acres; Wisconsin pride potatoes, 15; Burbank potatoes, 1 acre; Marcus wheat, 57 1/2 acres; victory oats, 1 acre; Grimm alfalfa, 146 acres; ladak alfalfa, 48 acres; and approximately 1000 acres of grass seeds.

In addition to those which passed the inspection, several hundred acres of spuds, grain, alfalfa and grass seeds were rejected.

All potato fields which passed the first inspection will undergo a second field inspection which is tentatively set for August 13 to 15. Passing this, the seed will be subject to bin inspection after harvest and seed passing all these requirements will be labeled and sealed with the certification tag of the Oregon state board of certification.

Samples of grain will be taken from approved fields after harvest, and sent to the state testing laboratory at Corvallis, where they will be disqualified if any traces of foreign seeds are found. Providing they pass the laboratory test, however, a certificate of certification will be issued to growers.

Alfalfa and grass seeds which passed the first test, will be subject to further inspection after harvest, and if all impurities are removed, will be tagged and sealed with the certification tag of the state board.

Increasing interest on the part of growers in the production of pure seed strains is prevalent all over the Klamath basin, according to the county agent.

Certification of Marcus wheat is having marked effect in the improvement of the local wheat supply, he continued.
Certification of alfalfa seed is proving of considerable benefit in the Klamath basin also, as in past years many tons of certified alfalfa seed have been shipped from other localities. Increased cost of this imported seed might well go to local growers, as there is plenty of land available in this area for certified seed production.

ension," the speaker continued. "If Dr. Townsend persists in the program he is now following, its usefulness will be lost."

"If Dr. Townsend does not destroy the movement, then the racketeers within it will," Nelson urged consideration of lower pensions, starting from $50, to gain at least something for the aged.

Two Major Naval Engagements Occur in Spanish Revolt

north; converged on Seville and Cordoba in the south and claimed domination of the Guadarrama mountain slopes which guard Madrid.

A dozen rebel airmen died in seven crashing planes.

The insurgents, however, sent columns to support the rebel garrison at Zaragoza and to drive a wedge between Barcelona and Madrid, strategic loyalist headquarters.

At the northern rebel stronghold of Oviedo, Austrian miners, armed with dynamite, began a bombardment of insurgent barracks. The rebels were awaiting reinforcements.

Suspected fascist functionaries and officers were wrenched from state departments and the army.
Women Under Arrest
Women of prominence were caught in the leftist dragnet. They included the wife and daughter of Gen. Emilio Barrera and the wife of the trans-Atlantic liner Capt. Julio Ruiz de Alda.

The government appropriated 40,000,000 pesetas (about $5,600,000) for suppression of the 12-day rebellion.
Juan Garcia, who escaped after being imprisoned by rebel forces in the Guadarrama, said Gen. Emilio Mola, northern insurgent commander, was not in the sector.

Loyalists, although confident of victory, were beginning to admit the fight would last longer than they had expected.
The resort town of San Sebastian, in north central Spain, was again in the hands of the government after a forceful advance which brought the surrender of the Loyola rebel barracks.

Armed Civilians Beaten
Two of the rebel planes fell in an anti-aircraft barrage from the loyal destroyer Alsedo while another pair were shot down by two government planes over Cadiz.

Another insurgent plane was brought down at Larodo near Malaga and a sixth fell on the southern coast killing three fliers.

Loyal troops captured another plane at Olvera in Cadiz province.
Loyal civil guards defeated armed fascists and civilians in a clash near Malaga and captured 10 trucks loaded with ammunition.

Gen. Garcia Caminero, who was taken prisoner by rebels at Sanabria in Zamora province, escaped from his captors and was reported to have crossed the Portuguese frontier.

Jose Perez, a traveler from Toledo, arrived in the capital with a detailed description of the rebel seizure of the famous cadet academy Alcazar which was surrounded Monday.

"When the uprising broke out, the rebels seized the old cathedral and placed one machine gun on each of its towers from where they showered bullets on the militia," he said.
"When darkness fell and the machine guns were silent, the militia advanced and recaptured the cathedral in a fight in which several of the rebels were killed."

Severe Measures Loom
"Loyal authorities threatened severe measures against pillagers although many of the historic buildings were considerably damaged by bullets."

"The insurgent forces numbered about 1000. Many government supporters among them several wealthy men, were killed in Toledo."

The fascist general staff in the north, under Gen. Emilio Mola, outlined the territory its forces control as extending from Zaragoza to a point 31 miles north of Teruel City, and thence to within 50 miles of Madrid. From the capital, it circles to Talavera on the Alberche river and then moves southeast to a point half-way between Madrid and Granada.

The rebel line terminates at a point on the southern coast 82 miles from Gibraltar.

Burns Visitors—Mrs. William Claire and daughter, Betty Jean, of Burns, Ore., are enjoying a visit in Klamath Falls and Chiloquin. They formerly resided in this city.

VEHN RETURNS FROM CONCLAVE

"Varying the tension of water by concentrated thought in laboratory tests conclusively proves that mind exerts an influence upon matter," says Ralph Vehn of this city.

Vehn, who recently returned from the international AMORC, Rosieruelin convention in San Jose, California, states that numerous experiments conducted during the convention week in the physics laboratory of the order revealed that water placed in a tenonometer and registering a definite resistance could have its pressure discernibly altered by the concentration of thought upon it.

Whether the human mind has certain capacities which radiate from it and which are not limited by time and space is no longer an interesting speculation, but the subject of scientific inquiry. Dr. J. E. Ryan of Duke university, nationally known psychologist, addressed the Rosieruelin convention, says Vehn, upon his renowned researches in this field. Speaking of science, Dr. Ryan said in part: "In addition to the general relations of space and time, we want to find out what the relationship of those capacities is to ourselves, to our mental processes, to sense perception, to will, to attention, and we are finding out something slowly and surely. We have found certain conditions under which these capacities function more definitely than others."

It is also related that the Rosieruelin convention was attended by nearly one thousand persons from twelve countries and nearly every state in the union. Of special importance was the unanimous vote approving of the present administration of the Rosieruelin order.

TOURISTS TRAVEL WITH NEW TRAILERS
Bigger and better trailers are arriving in Klamath Falls daily, hooked to the rear of tourists' cars, according to Bernice Williams, in charge of tourist registration at the chamber of commerce offices.

Mrs. Williams said that more trailers are being used by tourists this year than ever before, and the size and quality of the vehicles is particularly noteworthy. Many of them are elaborately fitted, and are pulled by expensive cars.

Tourists are expected to register the trailers along with their cars on the out-of-state registration books. Not all of them, however, are aware of this requirement, and Mrs. Williams believes there are even more trailers than the books show. Even so, she said, the registration is far above previous years.

July is well on its way to ringing up a record tourist registration for the Klamath Falls office. This work is done at the chamber of commerce for the secretary of state.

KLAMATH CLOVER CROP INCREASES

A 50 per cent increase in this year's alsike clover crop over last season's production is predicted by County Agent C. A. Henderson, whose tentative survey shows that this year's shipments of alsike may total eight cars.

Alsike clover acreages are looking particularly good at this time, with a heavy set-on of seed throughout the basin.

Many growers are already planning for increased acreages to be planted to alsike next fall.

The seed is usually planted in the wheat stubble fields and protected by the stubble. It is carried through the winter and after a spring and summer growth is harvested in the fall.

Alsike works in well with the rotation of potatoes and brings greater profits to growers than does alfalfa.

It also has the advantage of being easy to grow, and is harvested at a time more convenient to the operator than alfalfa.

The first cutting of alfalfa comes during the heaviest irrigation of potato acreage, thereby doubling for a period the amount of farm labor required, whereas alsike can be threshed in the fall after the potato irrigation season is over.

Klamath county is particularly adaptable to the production of alsike and other small seeds and it is reasonable to look forward to the time when seed production in the basin is second only to the production of potatoes, according to the county agent.

All grass and clover seeds grown in this area are of an exceptionally high quality and free from weeds, bringing a premium price in virtually every market in which they are sold.

FIREBUG SUSPECTED IN MONTANA BLAZE

HAVRE, Mont., July 29. (AP)—Authorities checked reports of incendiarism today as a thousand fire fighters sought to maintain control of a forest fire which fatally burned three men and destroyed thousands of acres of timber in the Little Rockies, mountain range southeast of here.

Shifting winds last night reversed the direction of the flames and began to blow them back toward burned-over ground, and again the direction is changed again by the wind it is believed the crisis of the disastrous fire has passed.

Spanish Rebels, Loyalists Split Battle Victory

Copyright, 1936, by United Press
War between red and white armies for control of Spain raged unabatedly but inconclusively Tuesday with these outstanding developments:

A rebel garrison isolated since the outbreak of the revolt in the Loyola barracks at San Sebastian surrendered after a terrific bombardment. San Sebastian loyalists then marched to attack the rear of the main insurgent army in Navarre province.

Fierce Moorish troops from Spanish Morocco, battling their way to the strategic Malaga naval base, routed popular front armies after a bloody battle near Estepona.

In Madrid the government opened a $5,500,000 credit to finance the war against the self-proclaimed nationalists. Foreign diplomats speeded arrangements to evacuate their nationals upon demonstrating that refugee trains could get through to the coast. The government faced a long and bitter war when it learned how firmly the rebels are entrenched in the north.
