Swiftly Passing Summer Days Lure Everyone Out for Simple Pleasures

AUGUST has arrived before we have become accustomed to summer, and the fact that the season is passing so rapidly has spurred Klamath dwellers to feverish activity. Every moment of each glorious day must be enjoyed to the full, and the out of doors is calling everyone.

Gardens glowing in a profusion of color, smooth green lawns, fairway and greens of golf courses, and sparkling waters of lakes and streams all beckon people away from formal pleasures to the hearty enjoyment of active sport or lazy idling in the open.

The week past has been the most quiet of the season, with little activity seen in any of the social circles of the city.

Little more than a month remains, however, until club work is resumed, and schools will open for another year's work. This time then, must be enjoyed with not a summer's moment wasted.

I never was one to weep, my my dear,
When the end of a journey comes;
Or, having dined at a festal board,
To relish the fallen crumbs.

Either you serve the banquet up
In the style I'm accustomed to,
Or I'll thank you, dear, for the caviar—
And bid you a polite adieu!

"In Conclusion."
