PRE-CAMPAIGN MEETING SET NEXT SUNDAY

Workers who are to participate in the visitation evangelistic campaign will meet in the First Methodist church Sunday afternoon, February 26. This is a union movement with nearly all, if not all, of the churches of the city taking part in it.

At the Sunday meeting an inspirational address will be delivered by the Rev. John W. Warrell presenting methods to be used in this new type of evangelism, sponsored by two of the leading ministers of the Methodist denomination, Dr. Earl Carahan and Dr. Guy Black. In this mission there will be little of the usual publicity connected with evangelistic movements in the past, but chosen workers will go out by twos to invite those whose membership is elsewhere and those who have never joined a church to line up with some local church. Detailed announcements will be given with reference to this work later.

In preparation for this special work and also in carrying out the deferred "week of prayer," the ministerial association has arranged for three meetings to be held this coming week. These will be union services with the pastors of the entertaining churches in charge. They will all be held at 7:30 in the evening. The first will be held in the First Methodist church Tuesday evening, February 21, with the Rev. Gottfried J. Anderson delivering the message. The second will be held Wednesday, the next day, in the Church of the Nazarenes, with Adjutant Norman Boyer as the speaker. The third will be held in the First Presbyterian church Thursday evening with the Rev. Eugene E. Haynes the speaker.

The week following supper meetings will be held in the various participating churches at 6:30 o'clock. All visitors will gather in one church. Following the meal and the fellowship of the hour each church group will meet with its pastor, receive assignments and go forth in this mission of love to invite people to do what they already know all too well they should do.

While this is a quiet movement, free from anything of the spectacular, it is one that its sponsors claim has the possibilities of moving the city mightily—a method universally followed in the early church when the most remarkable growth in the history of Christianity took place. It is getting back to the methods and the message of the early church. And above all, it is a public assertion that the church of today is not divided but is at heart "all one body."

All devoted Christians of whatever faith are invited to give this quiet method of proclaiming the gospel and of fulfilling the responsibilities of the church their most earnest prayers.

High School News Notes and Comment

By JERRY O'CALLAGHAN
 PENDLETON senior high school has a system of renting out text books that is well worth a little study. The system is possibly the only one of its kind.

In place of buying text books, as students in other Oregon high schools are forced to do, Pendleton students rent their books from a student co-op. They are paying $3 a year for their texts with a 50 cents refund if the books are returned in good condition.

The senior high at Pendleton has been using such a system for four years and has found it very successful. It has practically eliminated the purchase of texts by the individual student.

The co-op has attracted the attention of a New York educational journal which has sent to the eastern Oregon school for details.

The co-op is staffed by students from the commercial department with a commercial teacher having active charge.

Several intellectuals who had made the necessary points were initiated into the Honor society Tuesday evening in a style that one wouldn't ordinarily associate with such a learned organization. Members also took part in the exchange of humorous Valentines.

Students from the music department attended an instructive film on symphony orchestras Tuesday afternoon.

Special benches have been made to be used by the vocal units of the music department when they appear in concert next Tuesday evening. The benches will be used to elevate the back rows.

This Friday is the deadline for essays on Americanism being prepared by the English students in conjunction with the Vets of Foreign Wars auxiliary and the American Legion auxiliary.

Upperclassmen are writing on "True Americanism—How Best to Achieve It." Underclassmen are writing on "What I Owe America."

"Whoa, Johnny," a one-act play by Helen Cox, sophomore, was first prize in a play writing contest recently staged by the literary club.

A poem, "What is Life," by Betty Reymers, won a first in the poetry section.

The club members are now preparing humorous essays. The organization, which strives to encourage creative writing among high school students, holds several contests throughout the year. In the spring they publish an annual containing the best works produced by members during the year.

All English students, with the exception of seniors, recently took a national placement test. Scores are not ready for release yet, but if the averages run as they have in the past they will be well above the national average. The test has been given under the supervision of Mrs. Lucille O'Neil, head of the English department.

Billingsgate fish mongers who have the reputation of using the strongest language in the world are reported to be ashamed of themselves after hearing recent political broadcasts in Europe.

KLAMATH AGAIN RUNS SECOND IN PROVIDING JOBS

January placements reported to the unemployment compensation commission by the Oregon state employment service were 19 per cent greater than in December, officials announced. A total of 3233 jobs were filled.

Klamath Falls office, covering Klamath and Lake counties, accounted for 359 or 10.8 per cent of the state total. Klamath Falls office ranked second in the state in placements, as it has repeatedly in past months; Portland with its metropolitan area was first.

Only 11 per cent of placements went to women, while war veterans took 12 per cent of the jobs filled by men.

Industrially, lumber manufacturing was second in the state with 12.5 per cent of those returned to payrolls. Personal services accounted for 9 per cent, agriculture for 6 per cent, government service 5 per cent, private construction 4 per cent.

TWO KLAMATH COEDS ON SENIOR BALL COMMITTEE

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Feb. 16 — Elizabeth Ann Jones and Margaret Goldsmith, both of Klamath Falls, have been appointed to committees for the annual senior ball to be given February 25 at the University of Oregon. Miss Goldsmith will work on the decoration committee and Miss Jones on the advertising.

Miss Jones is majoring in Journalism and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gomer Jones. She is on the staff of the Oregon Daily Emerald, student publication, and is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary. She is affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega sorority.

Miss Goldsmith, majoring in English, has been very active on the campus throughout her college career. She was secretary of the sophomore class in 1937, vice president of the campus group of Phi Theta Upsilon, junior women's service honorary. She is affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega sorority.

Both are graduates of Klamath Union high school.

A boy with a future in politics has been found in the merchant marine. His job was peeling potatoes and cutting the eyes out. He described himself to landlubbers as "ship's optician."
