

FUNDS MARKED FOR IRRIGATION WATER PROJECT

Formal allocation of funds for the installation of an underground irrigation system in the Enterprise Irrigation district has been made in Washington, D. C. through the works projects administration, it was announced Friday by J. H. Thoma, WPA resident engineer for Klamath and Lake counties.

The federal allocation is $59,689, which will be supplemented by sponsor funds for material and supplies totaling $48,004, Thoma said, bringing the grand total for the project to $107,693.

A small crew will be started next Monday on the actual installation of the pipeline, which will be installed in units as the material is furnished. A total of 22.7 miles of concrete pipe is called for to complete the project, which will cover 900 acres and will serve 1400 users, some of whom are not being supplied with water at the present time.

Reason for the installation of the underground system is that the present open-ditch method of water distribution is inadequate and small landowners cannot get water when they want it. The concrete pipeline will assure an equitable distribution and a positive supply. It is planned to have all outlets padlocked after the system is installed, Thoma said.

The size of the WPA crew starting work Monday will be increased as the work justifies it. It is estimated that the project will require 1017 man months, Thoma said, using an average of 83.75 men for a period of one year.

WORKING WIFE COMPARES MEN

BY RUTH MILLET

For years wives have been warned that they must compete in looks, charm and efficiency with their husband's secretaries. Time and time again they've heard that their husbands are bound to make comparisons.

Well, if it's true—and it probably is—what about the other side of the picture?

Isn't it time someone put husbands of working women up to the fact that the little woman may be making a few comparisons herself?

It isn't as though she stayed home all day and saw no one more exciting than the butcher. She meets successful men, often finds that they talk to her as an equal, often that they regard her as an attractive woman.

If a husband takes her too much for granted, or doesn't do his share in the partnership, or doesn't seem to be as well-informed as the men who are in business, she is bound to make comparisons.

Now Men Must "Keep Up"

Once it was all the other way. The wife lived in a woman's world and when her husband came home at night she was so thankful for a little male companionship that she thought he was a super-man, and she would do anything to please him.

It's probably hard on marriage—though certainly a more equal arrangement—now that wives have also started making comparisons and passing judgement.

It wouldn't be hard on marriage, though, if men would face the situation and try to "keep up"—the way women have been trying to do all these years.
