

TWO CHANCES OF QUIETING DANZIG EYED

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (AP) — Europe, for the first time in months, is pausing as a whole to consider with cautious hope the possibility that the two new and highly important peace moves may provide a solution of the Danzig crisis.

These developments are the sensational entrance of the league of nations into the picture as a potential mediator, and the reported insistence of Hitler that his ally, Herr Hitler, handle Germany's dispute with Poland over Danzig with a moderation precluding war.

It is worthy of note that this fresh "peace talk" seemed to be accorded respectful—perhaps quite temporary—attention in the capitals on both sides of the controversy. Heretofore, one or more of the parties involved in this imbroglio have pooh-poohed such efforts.

The staid old London Times, which frequently receives inspiration from government sources, recorded that there was a tendency in Berlin to speak of peace plans. What attracted observers more, however, was the fact that the Times made several references to the possibility of peaceful settlement of Europe's problems and even asserted that if Germany and Italy were seeking peaceful revision of some of the remaining terms of the Versailles treaty, they would "no doubt" find a general readiness to confer among all the interested states.

All that, of course, was rather reminiscent of the appeasement overtures of British Premier Chamberlain and his government over a long period.

Several other London papers took a hand in publishing rumors, purportedly from the continent, of plans for negotiations.

The whole set-up was calculated to lead one to the impression that something worth-while was boiling up in the way of a round-table conference to settle the ills of Europe.

The advent of the league of nations was made on tip-toe. The first Europe knew of this development was when it became known that Prof. Carl Burckhardt, league commissioner from Danzig, had a plan for peaceful adjustment of the Danzig issue and actually had laid this before Herr Hitler at Berchtesgaden, Germany, over the weekend.

It even was reported unofficially from Berlin that Burckhardt's plan had been accepted by both Hitler and Foreign Minister Beck of Poland as the basis for negotiations.

The league's intervention is rather natural in view of the fact that it is the guardian of the free city of Danzig, taken from Germany and placed in the league's care at the end of the World War. Burckhardt is in a favorable position—if there is any such thing in this controversy—to negotiate between Danzig and Poland over the free city's desire for reincorporation in the Reich.

It isn't clear there is any connection between the league move and Mussolini's appeal to Hitler for mediation, or whether they were merely coincident. Anyway, the only thing that matters is that both are in the direction of peace.

There is another factor in this situation which cannot be overlooked. Pope Pius has been working persistently for peace, and some observers have expressed the belief that there is a connection between the latest developments and his efforts.

A couple of weeks ago it was reported his holiness might issue his first encyclical Tuesday (the feast of the assumption) and devote part of it to another appeal for world peace. But this was postponed. Vatican officials at that time said the final wording of the encyclical and the date of its release might be affected by the international situation.

It would be rash and unwarranted to predict at this juncture that a solution of the Danzig trouble is in sight. But the latest developments are in the right direction.

GLADYS PHIPPS HERRIOTT

For 13 years, Gladys Phipps Herriott has watched, first-hand, the modernization and improvement of the baking industry, as she has been in the employ of the Beck's bakeries for that length of time. Before coming to this city about seven years ago, she was a member of Beck's bakery staff in Medford.

Mrs. Herriott is a descendant of some of the west's "covered wagon" pioneers who made the slow, laborious trek across the plains to settle on the frontier. Probably as a result of this is an interesting hobby that she follows—collecting early American china. Mrs. Herriott says she only has a few pieces, so far, but whenever she acquires an article for her collection, she also insists on obtaining its history. It is her hope that eventually she will be able to assemble a really representative collection of that period.

At the present stage of low water in Upper Klamath lake the big logs will not float through the opening and must be pulled along the bottom by a power winch.

Reports Theft—State police reported to city officers the theft of a 1929 Ford car owned by Beatty John of Beatty and stolen from that place August 16.

On Vacation—Mrs. Ray Coulam and young son left Friday for Salt Lake City on a vacation trip which will keep them there for several weeks.

The existence of future punishment and everlasting destruction is an evidence of the goodness, the justice, and the wisdom of God.—J. B. Walker.

CAR OWNER LAUDS POLICE WORK IN THEFT CASE

Appreciation of the excellent cooperation received from the city police department was expressed in a letter to Chief of Police Frank Hamm on Thursday by W. G. "Doc" Noggle.

Noggle's car was stolen and valuable papers and brief cases thrown from the car. With the aid of Patrolman Frank Blackmer and Jack Linkenbach's Doberman Pinscher dog, the papers were located on the Aspen lake road. Red dust on the car wheels (found later at Lakeshore Inn.) the car mileage and faint tread on the road in the Aspen lake district gave the officer clues to the location where the papers were tossed from the machine.

Visits Mother—Dr. Roger DeWeese of St. Mary's hospital in San Francisco is spending his two weeks' holiday in Klamath Falls with his mother, Mrs. R. E. DeWeese.

COPCO CREW TO DEEPEN PASSAGE FOR ALGOMA LOGS

ALGOMA—A crew of 14 men, aided by a dredge and a steam shovel, were at work at the front of the Southern Pacific tracks through which logs pass into the mill pond. The job is expected to take at least two weeks.
